EVENING NEWS.

Friday, Feb. 24, 1882.

INCONSTANCY.

Howling wind in the leafless tree, What can be so frail as these. In north, in south, in east, in west And every noise but reason, Soften or never at rest.

Your "monsters" true, blow all one way As if they might in one quiet stay. But voyagers trusting you too long May of course despair. For you blow back just as strong.

A squall, a whirlwind or a gale— Turning the faces of the bravest pale; Screaming and roaring wildly on. Upon destruction bent, Till ruinous work is done.

Sometimes you rush with stilling breath, Straight leaving in your path half death. But bleeding wounds and bleeding feet, To show where you have passed In a hot and deadly quest.

Soft at times as a sigh of love, As gentle as cooling turtle dove, Wandering over daisies and hill, Kissings such fragrant bloom With pleasure our senses fill.

Cooling, perhaps, a slake one's cheek With fever heated throats and weak; Your welcome presence then we own, But you distress us on By totally withdrawing down.

Your change is true, replied the wind, But am I worse than human kind— My mischief and foibles cease, too, For just as you describe. And would you were that I do.

Does not man on his way through life Overwhelm the world with sorrow and strife. Trust in him long and you will see, With all he seems to know He's as mischievous as me.

He will talk of justice, truth and peace As if his goodness never would cease; But when he comes to the settlement of the State debt, the payment of interest on the bonds funded under the late defalcation, which the governor says left the treasury comparatively empty.

New York, 8.—It was reported today that the Mutual Union and National Union Telegraph Companies had settled their differences and that a lease of the Mutual Union lines by the Western Union had been agreed upon. The terms of the lease were to be the interest on $10,000,000 of Mutual Union bonds at 6 per cent. per annum, and 15 per cent on the stock.

Nashville, 8.—The message of Gov. Estes read before the Legislature in this session. The greater portion refers to the settlement of the State debt, the payment of interest on the bonds funded under the late defalcation, which the governor says left the treasury comparatively empty.

New York, 8.—The first straw-barricade of the season sold in the market here last week. They were raised by the army of the United States and sold at Jacksonville at $1 a quart.

New York, 8.—Mace and Blade gave their sparring exhibition at Madison Square Garden. Attendance small, at no time over 5,000. The performance was of the famous nature, and failed to awaken a sentiment of enthusiasm. A very large force of police, under command of Captain Williams, was present.

From a Havana letter: During a review on Sunday, while the volunteer force were marching past Captain General Pendergast, a man left the ranks and planted himself in front of the General, and cried, "Death to the Bourbon! Long live the Republic!" The offender was immediately arrested, but liberated next day on bail by the Colonel of the installation. The order given was that during the march past the General, the Captain should give the cry, "Long live the King!" and be repeated by the men. The offender was immediately arrested, but liberated next day on bail by the Colonel of the installation.

By TELEGRAPH.
