[SPECIAL TO THE "NEWS."]

Farmington, Jan. 10 .- The angriest man in town this morning was Sheriff Abbott. The cause of his perturbed state of feeling was the publication in a Salt Lake morning paper today that Nick Haworth, the accused murderer, had made a confession of his guilt, predicated upon an implied understanding that the penalty inflicted upon him would be no more severe than life imprisonment.

The fact of the matter is that Sheriff Abbott still believes and firmly maintains that Haworth is guilty as charged. But when it comes to having made a confession the man has done no such thing. The most that can be said is that he has made some very unwise admissions that may work much to his detriment. Just how and why the story started of his reported confession, came to be given out is not quite clear. Rumors regarding the matter were heard here a day or two ago and yesterday Sheriff Abbott went to Ogden to spend the day tracing them and other matters down. He is in Salt Lake today on the same business. When seen by the "News" correspondent this morning before going down to the capital, he politely and very firmly declined to have anything to say about the case. During the whole period of pursuit and the time that has clapsed since the ar-rest of Haworth Sheriff Abbott has maintained a dignified and discreet silence, and says that now is not the time

CHILDREN BARE THEIR ARMS.

fice for Free Vaccination.

Most of Them However, Fear "After Effects"-Doctor King in and Doctor Keegh Out.

There was a novel spectacle at the office of the city health board in the joint building during the whole of today. Immediately after the opening hour Dr. J. C. E. King, the new city physician was duly installed and his predecessor, Dr. Keogh, walked out to give his entire time to private and hospital practice.

While this formality was in progress and while a brief consultation was being held between Superintendent Cooper and the health officials school children thronged the corridors of the building in great numbers to be first upon the ground to take advantage of the institution of free vaccination. It is somewhat strange to relate that not all of them, by any manner of means, were children of poor parents, or of parents in medium circumstances; some of them were known to be the children of well to do citizens. There was this noticeable fact, however. The poor child was usually accompanied by either father or mother, while his antithesis was thrown upon his own

Drs. King and Stewart injected the vaccine and in most cases the children appeared to rather enjoy the novelty of the ordeal. "Does it hurt?" was asked by a sturdy little ten year old.

"Nop; not much," he replied with a plainly assumed effort at bravery. 'How does it effect you, my little lady?" was the question put to a bright sixth grade school girl.

"I didn't like it very well; but mamma and Uncle Tom say that if I don't get vaccinated I will get the smallpox and I will then be taken to the pest So I'd rather be vaccinated, even if it does hurt.'

As soon as a vaccinated child fell out of the column to give place to another, he would be fairly beseiged by those who had not yet submitted to the process and plied with questions that were indescribably amusing.

About fifty children were vaccinated this morning and probably twice that number will be vaccinated during the afternoon. For hours groups of children, less courageous than those within, stood on the outside peering through the windows making grimaces at them. Vaccination will be carried on free of charge from 10 a. m. to 12 o'clock noon, and from 2 to 4 p. m. daily. Another Samuelson Sick.

while Lewis, fully sixteen years his junior, became very violent and at one time during the proceedings it took the combined strength of four men to hold him down on the floor. Phelo's disease was said by the examining physicians to be senile dementia, and ewis's was classed as acute mania. The examination of both the unfortunate men was conducted before County Clerk D. C. Dunbar, sitting as judge pro tem, County Physician H. A. Anderson and Dr. J. N. Harrison. The wife and daughter of Phelps were sworn. Their testimony tended to show that the old gentleman has been more or less irresponsible for the past three Frequently he would imagine months. that he had a pressing business engagement and would wander away from home and get lost. Mrs. Phelps, in answer to Clerk Dunbar, said she did not want to see her husband committed to the aslum. What he needed was a guardian; someone to be near him at all hours of the day and night in order to see that no harm befell him. Mr. Dunbar seemed somewhat adverse to sending Phe ps to Provo and thought the old gentleman's sons, of whom there are several, ought to be required to take care of their father.

Phelps, at one time, conducted a sec-ond-hand store north of the Herald building. He came to Utah along with his parents in 1848.

The definite announcement on Monday by M. E. Ingalls that he would retire from the presidency of the Chesapeake & Ohio and the Big Four, has caused a renewal of the report current a few months ago that A. L. Mohler, now president of the Oregon Railway & Navigation company, would succeed Mr. Ingalis as executive head of the roads mentioned. The Oregon Railway & Navigation company is controlled by the Union Pacific, in which the Vanderbilts are largely interested, and the selection of Mr. Mohler as president of the Chesapeake & Ohio and the Big Four, or possibly the Big Four alone as that road is now controlled by the Vanderbilts and the Chesapeake & Ohio, according to the general understanding of the situation, is to be operated under the more immediate direction of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, could be regarded as in the nature of a transfer from one branch of the same system. The Chesapeake & Ohio, it is believed, will continue to be the seaboard connection of the Big Four system, even though there should be a division of management. The Chesapeake & Ohio is a heavy carrier of soft coal, and with the freight rate on that commodity maintained at a reasonable figure, the road is assured of an independent and profitable traffic. A report was current yesterday that he Northern Ohio division of the Lake Erie & Western, extending from Akron, Ohio, westerly to Delpos, a distance of about 150 miles, is to be given to the use of the Erie, which is controlled by J. ONE FRAUGHT WITH DANGER

Also Capable of Breeding Disease Even More Surely Than Under the Old Way.

I would just like to say a few words

The New York Tribune says this To the Editor:

in regard to modern scientific vaccination. The other evening at a meeting of the State board of Health, statements were made that would lead people to believe that the present scientific methods of vaccination are quite free from the danger present some years ago, when human virus was used, and one member went so far as to state that "no possible harm could follow vaccination if properly done." If they had agreed that the modern smokeless amunition was harmless when used by skilled marksmen they would have been just as near the truth. The active element in vaccination is pus or matter from a sore on a diseased helfer, and it does not matter whether this corruption is put on ivory points or mixed with sterilized lymph; it is capable of breeding disease even more surely than under the old way. Does it look reasonable that the rotten matter from a festering pustule on a diseased animal can be implanted into the blood of a healthy child, and make that child any more healthy and prevent disease? If this filthy corruption were put into the stomachs of the victims it might prove as harmless "as the juice from a beefsteak," but where it is placed directly into the blood of the innocents it is almost as sure in its action as the poison from a venomous serpent. It is commonly known that the poison of a deadly serpent may be taken into the mouth or stomach of a human being with very little danger, while if taken directly into the blood as it is in the bite of a snake it is almost sure death. Compulsory vaccination was tried in England for some forty odd years, with results that proved to even stubborn Englishmen that vaccination was no preventive of smallpox, and they recently repealed the law compelling cination. Can we not profit by their experience? Must we go through the same tribulations that they have gone through? Are we to be compelled to poison the blood of our healthy offspring with the virus from diseased animals and lay the foundation for all manner of diseases, as scrofula, consumption, erysipelas, abscesses, ec-zemas, etc.? Are the rising generation to have a legacy of disease fastened upon them that will handicap their best mental and physical life from this time to the grave? If a child gets the smallpox and gets over it he well, but if he is vaccinated 'takes" thoroughly, he never will be well until the poison is eradicated from his system by the proper medicines given so as to antidote the vaccine pol-on in the blood. Modern scientific vaccination is just as surely evil in its results as was that of the last generation; because it is modern and scientific does not help matters any, for the poison is there just the same. Statistics are abundant to show that the same results follow modern vaccination that have followed it all the way down from the ancient Indian heathen inoculation.

Respectfully yours, G. W. HARVEY, M.D. A CASE IN POINT.

Seeing there is a great deal of excitement over smallpox and vaccination, I wish to give my experience which I consider is far more than some of the young doctors of Utah have had. I left England, I think, about the 8th of May, 1860 on a sailing vessel named William Tapscott, we had on board nearly 1,000 persons. Some time after we set sail the smallpox broke out, and as soon as we got into quarantine we were all vaccin ated, and I had been twice vaccinated before leaving England, and when landed in New York, I broke out with the smallpox, and there are a number of persons here in Salt Lake that can testify than not many had it any worse than I had and lived, and three persons slept in the same room with our beds not three feet apart. All the time two more ate and drank and spent their evenings in the same room till bed time and numbers of persons came almost daily and spent hours chatting and quite a number visited me; and a little girl four years old, that lived in the same house, came daily when I got so I could notice her, she ate of my ples and cakes and candies and not one of all these ever took the smallpox. If the smallpox is as contagious as the doctors would have us believe, how was it that all these friends of mine escaped and how was it that I, being vaccinated three times, having the full benefit of this great preventive, had it so bad?

I wish to say for the benefit of those whose fate it may be to have it, that I had no doctor, my wife was my doctor and nurse. If those who have it will, when the scabs come off, keep the dust and dirt out of the pits and keep the face well oiled with olive oil, they will not be pock marked in the CHARLES M.
