But this is done by the votaries of all parties in reference to the regular archists ready to concentrate at any nominees And any departure from given point, the fact is somethis is denounced by Demecrats and Republicans alike. The scratching of Cieveland for Harrison by Tammany voters is proclaimed as treachery.

The truth is, the union that prevails as a fact among the "Mormons," is a brief time is horrible to contem just what other parties hold in theory plate. and vainly try to bring into practice. It has been copied by their local enewles, who, after many years of denunciation of it, have managed to establish it for the time being among themselves, and they openly admit that while they shout for division among the "Mormons," there must be nothing but union in their own ranks. The argument that the union of the majority here is tantamount to political distranchisement of the minority is one of the most childish of pleas. The Democrats might make the same plea in Iowa or Kansas. If the "Mormons" ought to be deprived of the suffrage or bindered in the attainment of any political right, because they largely vote one way, then the Republicans of those States which are overwhelmingly Republican should also be disfranchised for the same reason. But it will be claimed, these "Mormons" are directed politically by a Church, and that is what is objectionable. This is not true, but suppose it were. If there is no compulsion, if everybody is free to vote as he pleases. if there is a secret ballot so that the voter who chooses to cast a ballot different from others can do so undetected, why should not the members of a Church unite politically, as well as the members of a club, or any other organization?

The main thing is, that people shall anarchists in this country has taught be able to vote at the polls for the men of their choice. It does not matter whether they vote for certain candldates because they suit them individually, or whether they conclude to vote for them because that is the best policy, or whether they accept them for any other reason, su long as they do it voluntarily.
