There was nothing doing at the Grand theater last evening, at least in the way of a public performance, the same condition prevails today, and, so far as the Frankenfield company is concerned, there will be no change of situation in future. The pictures and other means of advertising have been and to the wall, the sign "Boxoffice losed" is seen throughout the day, nd everything about the place is ominously still.

Upon the surface, everything seem-ed to be running smoothly with the company that has held the boards at the Grand for several weeks past. The audiences, that greated the players nightly were all that could be expect-ed, the thronged resorts taken into Upon the surface, everything seemed, the thranged resorts taken into consideration. But trouble has been brewing for some time past within the company itself, and last night the the de-bubble burst and a strike was de-clared to be on, and that meant that the performance was off. Upon the head of James H. Morrison, manager for the company, fell the wrath of the players. They said that impty stomachs were not conducive to wrath of the players. They said that empty stomachs were not conducive to good acting, and eatables were to be obtained only for money. Complaint was made that no salarles had been paid for two weeks, board and room bills were in arrears and embarrass-ments and discontorts were the lot of members of the cast. Under these conditions, the players flatly refused to again go before the footlights. At first a threat was made to quit werk at the end of the third act Thursday night, then a compromise was effect-ed, and it is stated that all promised to finish out the week. If such a com-pact was entered into, it was broken by the players. The two engagements of today and that of last night would have helped to straighten out matters. Neither side of the controversy will make statements relative to the mai-ter, but most members of the company are against Mr. Morrison. Manager Emmick of the Grand says that the bonse is not in the fuss. A strong musical company is headed this way from Chicago, and it is expected that they will be here in time to begin an engagement at the commencement of next week.

of next week. Some of the Frankenfield players have sufficient money to enable them to get out of town, but others are not so fortunate, and are in the condition scribed in theatrical parlance as "stranded."

Baker said he went to Cripple Creek in December, 1903, to establish a union store. He was arrested by the mi-litia and taken before the commanding officer. When he told what his mis-sion was, the officer said they didn't want any union stores in the district and advised him to take the first troin out of town.

"What did you do?" asked Darrow "I took it," said Baker. DEPORTATION EXPERIENCES.

DEPORTATION EXPERIMENCES: William Amole, of Denver, who was a watchman at the Portland mine, Crip-ple Creek, up to the time the union miners were deported following the Independence depot affair, was called to give his experiences during the deportation peciod. He said he was arrested and released several times, and finally was flogged by two masked men. He was cross-examined very briefly. briefly.

PINKERTON METHODS.

PINKERTON METHODS. Something of a sensation was caused by the calling of the next witness, Morris Friedman, who has written a book which he claims is an expose of Pinkorton detective methods. Triedman says he is now a news-paper correspondent. He worked as a stenographer in the Pinkerton of-fice in Denver during the Cripple Creek strike, doing particularly the work of James McFarland, who has worked t<sub>1</sub>, the case against W. F. M. in the present case. Friedman said he became thoroughly familiar with the office work and methods. Asked as to the placing of Pinker-ton operatives in labor unions Fried-man said a man named Crane became secretary of the Smeltermen's union at Colorado City and was also chair-man of the strike committee. Other operatives who were connected with unions in Colorado were Joseph F. Gaddon, Charles H. Rhymer, George W. Riddell, P. B. Balley, Cummings Lutlow and Conbeag. Friedman de-clared he handled most of the daily report from these men for a year and a half. an hour for 24 hours, is beating all records. Riddell was in the courtroom as Friedman began his testimony. He was identified by the witness. Two of the Pinkertons were deport-ed with the rest of the union men from Cripple Creek and Telluride. "Do you know a Pinkerton named Londoner?" asked Darrow. "Yes, sir." "Was he a member of the union?" "No, sir, Londoner was supposed to be a capitalist and trying to find out the secrets of Mr. Heinze." The reference to the Montana min-ing millionaire called out a wave of laughter. Friedman next told of an operative named A. W. Gratias, who was chair-man of the miners' relief committee at Globesville, just outside Denver, "At first Gratias was instructed by Mr. McParland to make the relief bills as large as possible said the witness, "in order to drain the Western Fed-eration's treasury. This didn't seem to work so Gratias was told to cut down the bills to the lowest notch so as to dissatisfy the men on strike." DEPORTS FROM OPERATIVES.

REPORTS FROM OPERATIVES.

REPORTS FROM OPERATIVES. The roports from the operatives in the various unions usually covered all that had transpired at union meetings, what the miners were doing in private, where they went in the evenings, etc. Friedman said he had copies of a num-ber of these reports. It was a part of his duty to copy these and mail them to the agency's clients. Friedman said the Pinkertons spied on both the West-orn Federation of Miners and the Unit-ed Mine Workers. The witness had not brought the copies of the reports to court with him and was withdrawn until the afternoon session, making way for James Mooney of Missouri. Mooney said he was a farmer and also ran a coal mine. "You do both?" queried Darrow. "Yes, sir; I'm what they call in Mis-souri a Jim Crow farmer and a one-horse coal operator." As member of the national board of the United Mine Workers, Mooney said he was called to the Trinidad coal fields of Colorado, where there was a strike.
