CRITICAL ANALYSIS.

UNIVERSITY OF DESERET.
Salt Lake City, June 8th, 1887.

By carefully examining DeLand's Chemical Baking Powder with the microscope and with chemical reagents, I find that it is free from Alum, Starch, Flour, Bone Ash, Ammonia and White Earth; and that it consists essentially of Cream of Tartar and Bi-carbonate of Soda.

The Baking Powder examined I purchased at Barnes & Davis, in this city

THE TRAIN ROBBERY.

Full Details of the Latest Exploit in Texas.

EL PASO, Texas, Oct. 15.—The reports sent from here last night, owing to the lateness of the hour, regarding the attempted train robbery, gave but a fraction of the tale. It was thought great work that one robber should be killed. What was the astonishment of the public, therefore, when the dead body of another robber was brought in this morning. The Galveston, Harrisburg & San Antonio express which should have started east yesterday at 4:30 p.m. was delayed till about 8:30 o'clock in waiting for the Southern Pacific train from the west. Engineer Lohren says that when his train had gone about a mile two men wearing came over the tender with revolvers in each hand. The engineer tried to stop the train, but the men ordered him to run on to a curve and stop "quick." When he reached the curve he supposed they meant, five miles from the city, they ordered him and his fireman off the engine and took them back to the express car. The robbers meanwhile were firing off their revolvers and shouting and cursing. Reaching the express car one of them threw a dynamite against the front door on one side of the car. The explosion knocked a large hole in the door and broke out the glass in the other doors. The robbers called the express messenger to come out. The messenger was J. Ernest Smith. With him was J. R. Beardsley, clerk in Wells, Fargo & Co's office at Fort Worth. When they heard the firing they and went to the rear of the car. At the command of the robbers they came out, Smith leaving his revolver just inside the door. The robbers ordered Smith and Beardsley to hold up their hands and then searched them. Smith was then commanded to go back into the car and light the lamps. He climbed back, and the foremost robber started to follow. Smith seized his pistol, placed it almost against the robber's breast and fired, sending the bullet through his heart. The robber fell back dead, but fired twice at Smith while falling. Smith and the other robber also exchanged shots.

The robber then attempted to get his comrade's body on the engine, intending to uncouple from the train and run on. While he was trying to lift the body upon the engine, got his double-barreled shotgun, leaned out of the car and shot at him. The robber sank down and then sprang up and ran off out of sight. the train returned to this city. The express car was repacked and the train went on, Messenger Smith remaining in the city. Deputy United States Marshals Van Riper and Ross at once started for Ysleta, thirteen miles east of El Paso, secured three experienced Mexican trailers and had them at the scene of the hold-up before daylight. City Marshal White and other officers were on the ground by sunrise. The hunt was short. Less than fifty yards from where he was shot lay the second robber dead. His body was brought back to the city and placed beside his late comrade in crime. An examination showed that only one buckshot had struck him. That entered the front side of the left shoulder and just above the heart. The officers are reticent, but it is learned they believe they are on the trail of more robbers. The theory is that the pals of the two men on the train were waiting with horses a little beyond where the train was held up, and the robbers intended to run forward with the engine and leave the rest of the train.

MESSENGER SMITH

The two robbers killed were about 25 years of age and powerfully built men. The first one killed had on his person an express receipt dated at Terre Haute, Indiana, Sept. 28th, for a trunk marked J. E. Emerson and received from J. E. Emerson. The second robber is minus a third finger on his right hand. One had about $20, the other $15. They are recognized here, but their names are unknown. They were both photographed to day. Messenger Smith is from St. Louis and is now living at San Antonio. He has been an employe of Wells, Fargo & Co. for four years. He runs between El Paso and San Antonio.

THE CITIZENS

of El Paso presented him with a suit of clothes to-day, and have raised over $100 for a medal. J. W. Nichols, superintendent of Wells, Fargo & Co. for Texas and Louisiana, telegraphed Smith to-day, congratulating him on his victory, saying if his example is followed train-robbing will soon be a thing of the past.

Gladstone and Morley at Work.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—Messrs. Gladstone and Morley each contributed an article for the "Home Rule Handbook, which will be issued on Monday, preparatory to the liberal federation meeting in Nottingham. Mr. Gladstone's article is entitled, "The Lessons of Irish History." He traces the history of Ireland for the past 700 years and deals with the necessity during the present crisis of becoming acquainted with the true state of the account between Ireland and the United Kingdom.

Earl Spencer in a preface to the work says: "We don't know how parliament can pass the large land purchase bill without establishing some strong Irish government to act between the imperial government and the tenants." He argues that home rule possesses a vitality that will survive the land question.

Train's Latest.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 15.—George Francis Train succeeded in creating a sensation to-day at the tomb of Abraham Lincoln, where he, together with Belva A. Lockwood and a number of other persons, visited to-day. Train declared unqualifiedly that the remains in the sarcophagus were not those of Lincoln, but only a dummy or sham. Afterward Train explained he had reason to believe that at the time of the theft of Lincoln's body a substitution was made, and that the whole was preconcerted by detectives in league with the unprincipled Shylocks who paid the thieves to go to the penitentiary, and who would, sooner or later, be hawking about the remains of Lincoln as an attraction for dime museums.

SIR CHARLES TUPPER.

Decided Opposition to His Appointment.

TORONTO, Oct. 15.—The Mail in an editorial on Sir Charles Tupper's appointment as the Canadian representative on the Fisheries Commission, says:

At the last session of Parliament Sir Charles Tupper gave the country to understand that he for one was not prepared to listen to reason on the fishery question. On the contrary he was in favor of what may be termed a spirited cruiser policy, for the maintenance of our hard and fast interpretation of the treaty of 1818, and he cared nothing for the American threats of retaliation. He also let it be understood he was more than ever convinced of the feasibility of creating a united and prosperous dominion by means of the

PROTECTIVE SYSTEM.

If Sir Charles was still in this unenviable frame of mind, we think we should have good ground for challenging his fitness to represent us at Washington. It is said, however, that during his absence in London, he has made it his business to study the whole situation. It is fair to conclude that as an intelligent man, he has not sought light in vain, but is to take somewhat larger views of things than he did six months ago.

After reviewing at length the condition, financial and political, of Canada since the confederation, the Mail continues:

A radical change is necessary if the confederation is to survive. If we are not mistaken in supposing this view of the case is shared, at least to some extent, by Sir Charles, we shall probably not be wrong in saying that he must regard a commercial union as the only means short of annexation by which we can obtain relief. That it affords the only means of settling the is the conclusion at which Mr. Bayard has arrived and at which two English representatives on the commission will no doubt be forced, when they come to examine the hopeless complication into which the original question has resolved itself. Sir Charles will thus have it in his power to terminate the long-standing dispute with the United States and to lift the dominion out of the slough by one and the same stroke of statesmanship. No Canadian public man ever had a fairer opportunity of serving his country, and we beg him to remember that in the nature of things it can never present itself again.

The Globe says:

The appointment of Charles Tupper as representative of Canada at the convention about to be held in Washington is calculated to excite much suspicion wherever he is known and create profound uneasiness among all who desire that the exchange of commodoties between the United States and Canada shall be than it is at present. No one who knows him will imagine that he goes to the convention to maintain the rights or guard the interests of Canada. The people will ask whom and what will he represent at Washington. The monopolists of all kinds, men who desire to extort money to which they have no right from the people of Canada by means of an act of Parliament, are now the main proprietors and supporters of the dominion government. They are opposed to any treaty arrangement that would break down any part of the system that brings them wealth, and Sir Charles may be regarded as the representative and champion in the convention of all these monopolists.

MADE MORE FREE

THE PRESIDENT.

He Gets "Left" for Once—At Nashville.

BARTLETT, Tenn., Oct. 15.—The presidential train was on time here. Information has just been conveyed to the President of the death of Judge Ellett, and he is greatly shocked. He expressed the warmest sympathy with the bereaved family. Dr. Bryant says he found no signs of life when he reached the unfortunate man's side, but he said nothing until he was relieved a few minutes later by two local physicians, and they simply said: "The judge is dead."

AT NASHVILLE.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 15.—At McKenzie, Tennessee, the President and Mrs. Cleveland and the Postmaster-General actually got left, the train starting gaily off without them. McKenzie is the crossing of two roads and the train had been switched from one to another on a "Y." When the train reached the station the mayor came aboard and told the President a platform had been erected and that the people were waiting to hear and see him. The President said since they had made such preparations he would go out and show himself, but wouldn't talk. Accordingly, he, his wife and Colonel Vilas alighted while the train was being switched. The railroad people put the general manager's car in between the engine and the vestibule train, and when this was done started right off from the opposite depot, the manager of the railroad supposing and party to be aboard. The train had gone a mile down a steep grade before the manager could be reached, and then, owing to a light engine and a heavy train, it took quite a little time to back up to the station again. The party came aboard laughing, but the President said for the future he would confine himself to getting off at the places indicated in the programme. All along the road great crowds were collected to see the passing train and the usual demonstrations were made. At a quarter past nine the train reached Belle Meade, six miles from Nashville, where ex-senator Howard Jackson, and his brother, General W. H. Jackson, entered the car and welcomed the President's party. The President, Mrs. Cleveland and Colonel Lamont entered the carriage of

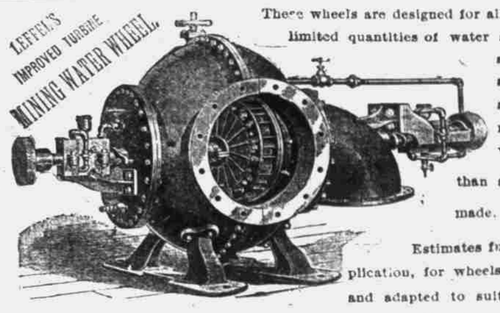
to become his guests this Monday morning, while the Postmaster-General and his wife, Dr. Bryant and Mr Bissell accompanied the ex-senator. Other members of the party proceeded to Nashville on the train and were quartered at the Maxwell House. Mr John Hinman, of New York, the well-known southern financier, by invitation joins the presidential party here and will remain with them until after their arrival at Atlanta.



These wheels are designed for all purpose where limited quantities of water and high heads are utilized, and are guaranteed to give more power with less water than any other wheel made.

FAULTLESS FAMILY MEDICINE

"I have used Simmons Liver Regulator for many years, having made it my only Family Medicine. My mother before me was very partial to it. It is a safe, good and effective medicine for any disorder of the system, and if ever time is a great preventive of sickness, I often recommend it to my friends, and shall continue to do so."

"Rev. James M. Robins, "Pastor M. E. Church, So. Petersburg, Va."

TIME AND DOCTORS' BILLS SAVED by always keeping Simmons Liver Regulator in the house

"I have found Simmons Liver Regulator the best family medicine I ever used for anything that may happen, have used it in Indigestion, Colic, Diarrhœa, Bilious ness, and I find it relieves immediately. After eating a hearty supper, Hon going to bed I take about a teaspoonful and never feel the effects of the supper eaten.
