

JOHN D. ARCHBOLD CROSS EXAMINED

Put Through Grilling Process Regarding Mysterious Loans by a Standard Oil Subsidiary Co.

IS "ACTIVE" TRUST OFFICIAL

In Reply to Request to Furnish List of Companies Acquired from 1882 to 1899, Said He'd Consult Counsel.

New York, Dec. 1.—Seeking to unravel the puzzling ownership of the Security Oil company of Texas, and other oil companies which the government charges are controlled by the Standard Oil company, Frank B. Kellogg, federal counsel in the United States, today subjected John D. Archbold to a grilling cross-examination today. Mr. Kellogg also sought information regarding certain mysterious loans of $2,700,000 made to James MacDonald by the Anglo-American company, a Standard subsidiary, but Mr. Archbold, a director of the Anglo-American company, was unable to throw any light on the question.

For over a year the government's counsel has been trying to obtain information regarding these MacDonald loans, but has failed. The government enabled the Standard to secretly purchase the Manhattan company of Ohio. Mr. Archbold said that he and H. H. Rogers resigned as directors of the Anglo-American company shortly after the election a year ago. The vice president of the Standard denied that the resignations were brought about by the present government proceedings.

Mr. Archbold was closely questioned about many pipe lines and refineries which had been purchased by the Standard. He denied that the refineries had been bought that they might be dismantled, thereby removing competition. They were secured, Mr. Archbold said, to succeed to their volume of business.

ARCHBOLD "ACTIVE" OFFICIAL.

When asked if he was a leading official of the Standard, Mr. Archbold said he was not. He had heard of the Manhattan Oil company of Ohio, and that he knew little of it.

Objection was made by counsel for the defense as to this line of cross-examination. The witness said the company was a competitor of the Standard.

"Do you know anything about the General Industrial Development syndicate, limited, of London?" asked Mr. Kellogg.

"I have heard of it since these hearings began."

"Is it controlled directly or indirectly by the Standard?"

"Not to my knowledge."

"Don't you know the General Industrial Syndicate purchased the Manhattan Oil company?"

"No, I do not."

Mr. Archbold was asked if it was not true that the Standard had purchased the tank cars, refineries and pipe lines of the Manhattan from the London company.

The witness said he understood that the purchase was made.

Archbold said that Anthony Brady had told him that he purposed selling the Manhattan company and wanted to obtain a contract for oil supply for the People's Gas, Light and Coke company of Chicago. A contract was entered into, Mr. Archbold said, but he did not know the terms of the contract.

"Don't you know that Mr. Brady testified a year ago that that contract was worth $1,200,000 to the People's Gas, Light and Coke company?"

"I do not know."

Mr. Archbold said it had not been suggested to him that one of the conditions of the sale of the Manhattan was the contract given to the People's Gas company. The witness said that for many years James MacDonald was manager in England of the Anglo-American company and severed his connection three or four years ago. Mr. Archbold's attention was called to the loans of $2,700,000 which the Anglo-American company had made to Mr. MacDonald, but he said he knew nothing of them.

"About this time the General Industrial company bought the Manhattan Oil company," Was the MacDonald loan for that purpose?"

"I don't know," said Mr. Archbold.

"Will you produce the London books of the London Anglo-American company?"

HE IS SCRUPULOUS.

"I don't think I have the power. I am not a director now."

"A list furnished by your company shows that you were elected a director of the Anglo in June, 1907."

"I think I resigned shortly after that."

"Did you resign as a result of this investigation?"

"I should not say I did."

Mr. Archbold was asked to produce a list of directors of the Anglo company at this time.

Mr. Archbold said that Mr. Rogers and himself resigned from the Anglo company, that men more directly connected with the company could take their places. The witness said he was not sure that Mr. Teagle resigned.

The attention of Mr. Archbold was called to the evidence of Mr. Brady, who testified that assets worth $1,200,000 were paid for the contract for the Standard. Mr. Archbold said he had no recollection that the General Industrial company had anything to do with the contract. The witness said he could not explain the loan to Mr. MacDonald and had not investigated it.

"Why didn't you investigate it?"

"I did not feel called upon to do so."

"Will you try to find out about the loan?"

"If counsel so advises."

Mr. Archbold, interrogated about the Indiana Pipe Line and Refining company, said he was under the impression that the Standard purchased it.

"Who was behind the company?"

"The Cudahys of Chicago, I believe."

Mr. Archbold said he understood the Corsicana Refining company had been built with the Standard's money. He was not aware that the money furnished for the Corsicana company only appeared on the Standard's books as a loan to Folger & Payne.

"How is it held now?"

"Folger & Payne are paying for it. The vexatious conditions in Texas made us want to get rid of it."

"Will you produce the English books of the Anglo-American company?"

"I don't believe I have the right."

Mr. Archbold said that under advice of counsel the legal ownership of the Water-Pierce Oil company was held by C. M. Pratt and M. M. Vanburen.

Mr. Archbold's son-in-law, Mr. Kellogg called the attention of the witness to the testimony that the Waters-Pierce company was an independent concern.

Mr. Archbold told of the Standard's business relations with the Tidewater Pipe Line company. When the Standard obtained possession of 31 per cent of the Tidewater stock, it took over several small independents at the seaboard.

GATHERING UP POLICY.

"Our purpose is securing these independents was to succeed to their volume of business," added Mr. Archbold, who told of the construction of the Crescent pipe line and the United States pipe line.

The witness said the stock was bought in the United States pipe line for an investment and to know what was going on. Mr. Kellogg asked the witness if after the Standard had purchased 35 per cent of the stock of the United States pipe line, the other stockholders of the United States pipe line had placed their stock in trust. Mr. Archbold said he understood that was done.

"You testified before the industrial commission that the United States Pipe Line company was a trust."

"Yes, it is a pure, unadulterated, restrictive trust," replied the witness.

"Restrictive of the Standard?" said Mr. Kellogg.

Mr. Archbold was questioned about the purchase of the Globe Refining company and Western Pipe Line company. Other pipe lines which were taken over by the Standard were subjects of interrogation by the federal counsel. Mr. Archbold said there were several pipe lines which the Standard did not own.

RELATIONS WITH RAILROADS.

The witness said that the Standard's pipe lines frequently occupied the rights of way of railroads, which were paid for.

The vice president of the Standard said the refineries which had been purchased were not dismantled, but rather taken down and available parts consolidated with the larger refineries of the Standard.

Mr. Kellogg wanted to know if it was not a fact that the Republic Oil company was organized by clerks in the Standard's office and that for a long time its real ownership was not made known. Mr. Archbold said he knew nothing of it. Mr. Kellogg asked the witness to produce a list of all companies which had been acquired by the Standard from 1882 to 1899. Mr. Archbold said he would consult with counsel on the request.

Mr. Archbold said he was one of the owners of stock of the Acme Oil company of New York, which, he said, was held under a common ownership with others and was not under the domination of the Standard.

Adjournment was taken until tomorrow when Mr. Archbold will be further cross-examined.

ANTI-HOOF AND MOUTH DISEASE CAMPAIGN

Washington, Dec. 2.—So expensive has been the campaign of the department of agriculture against the foot and mouth disease prevalent among herds of cattle in New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan and Maryland, that Secy. Wilson soon will ask Congress for an emergency appropriation of $500,000 for this work.

When the disease affected the cattle in New England $300,000, was spent in freeing the country from it, but in that case little trouble was encountered in ascertaining the origin while at present the experts have not been so successful.

Dealers in the quarantined states are appealing to the department daily for permission to fulfill contracts whose forfeiture means loss of thousands of dollars, but the department cannot find its way clear to grant relief.

Port Townsend, Wash., Dec. 2.—Instructions have been received from Washington directing the convening of a court-martial in this city Thursday morning to try Lieut. Muller S. Hay of the United States revenue cut-

Berholt, one of the members of the court, has not yet reached San Francisco from the north, the trial will probably have to be deferred until next week. The alleged offenses are said to have taken place in Alaska. The friends of the accused officer assert his innocence.

TO BE GIVEN AS A

SPECIAL PRIZE

To the Contestant Polling the Most Votes
Issued Between Nov. 8 and Dec. 5, 1908.

This beautiful $450.00 Ludwig Piano is offered as a special prize to the contestant turning in the greatest number of votes which may be issued during the next days. No votes issued previous to November 8, will be counted in making our decision as to the winner of this special prize. We want contestants to hustle for all the business they can get during December. Some contestants have been holding votes ever since the contest opened, while others have voted all the votes they had, and it would not be fair to offer this special prize to the contestants turning in the greatest number of votes unless we made the provision that it must be votes issued between November 8 and December 5, on new business, as it would give some of the contestants an unfair advantage over others. This is our reason for making the above rule.

ALL VOTES ISSUED BETWEEN THESE DATES AND VOTED UP TO 10 P. M. DECEMBER 5, WILL BE COUNTED BY WELL KNOWN JUDGES IN MAKING A DECISION.

A $450.00 LUDWIG PIANO.

New Contestants Stand Just as Good a Chance of Earning This $450 Prize as Old Contestants

It does not make any difference whether you are in the contest or not—if you only have 2,000 votes, or even if you have not entered the contest, you stand just as good a show of winning a prize as somebody who already has 100,000 or more votes, because this special prize is to be given to the contestant polling the greatest number of votes which may be issued during the next 4 days.

If you start in as a new contestant and can get more votes during the next 4 days and can make a greater increase than any one of the old contestants, you will be the winner of the piano. Now, this means that if you earn 150,000 votes and one of the old contestants makes an increase of only 100,000 votes, you would be the winner, although the old contestant might have a total of 450,000 votes.

The prize is to be given simply on increase and not on the total and remember that all votes counted in the contest for this special prize must be new votes issued between November 8, and December 5.
