LAND.

A CORRESPONDENT of the New York Herald has been giving the public some new ideas concerning the inground in the northern seas called cle in honor of President Garfield habitants of that little spot of Iceland: He takes a different view of the place and the people from that which is generally entertained, and states that the latter are not by any means as virtuous as commonly supposed. But we are disposed to doubt the truth of his whole letter from some remarks he makes which we know to be incorrect. They are boods that have been

"While we were in Iceland there were a number of Mormon disciples at work, meeting with flattering suc-cess, and just before we arrived they sent away twenty female converts to America, via England. The Dan-ish Gove nor of Iceland declared, when questioned by President Dur-gin, of Hillside College, Michigan, that the women left Iceland for Ice-land's good. Now, if all the Mormon recruits leave Iceland for the good of the place, I am afraid there are a great number who are not such models of propriety as the writers models of propriety as the writers would have their readers believe all the people are."

The writer here starts out with a mistake-or a falsehood, it matters not which-and proceeds to imagine a great deal on the basis of the error. It is not true that "twenty female converts" emigrated from Iceland to Utab. The company referred to numbered twentyone, arrived here August 7th, and was composed of several families, with the usual make-up of husband, wife and children, except that twins were born on the way to one of the families. It is evident that imagi-nation has had full play in the mind of the Heraid correspondent. It is generally thought that "Mormon" missionaries are sent out to drum up female converts, which is a gross er-ror. He jumped at the conclusion that the Icelandish emigrants were "females," and has theorized on this intangible and erroneous hypothe-sis. It is quite probable that the rest of his imaginings are equally un-tenable. His reasoning is on this were born on the way to one of the

DEATH BED CEREMONIES.

IT appears that a number of the professional clergy have taken strong exceptions to the exclusion of gen-tlemen of their cloth from the sick guarded line. Among oth r remarks on the subject this appears in the New all buying of them being interdicted York Sun:

"During the long and trying ill-ness which his chief physicians have recently declared was incurable from the outset, there is no record that he was ever visited by a min-ister of the gospel, that any religious service was performed at his bed side, or that his sufferings were southed by religious consolation in us consolation in any form. No man is pure enough their fields to waste, there being no possible defense against the united action of their tenants." in this life, not to need preparation for eternity, and thankful is every true Christian for a time of repent-ance before the final summons."

There is a grant deal of absurd tradition and unmitigated nonsense in this. In the first place there is no evidence that the attendant physicians prevented any "minister of the gospel" from having access to the suffering patient. In the second Editor Descret News: of the gaspel" from having access to the suffering patient. In the second place there is no absolute necessity for any "religious service" to be per-formed at the bedside of a dying person. And in the third place there is no reason to suppose that James A. Garfield did not have quite as much time for repentance and premuch time for repentance and pre paration for eternity, as if a dozen or a hundred so-called "ministers of condole with the nation, family the gospal" had prayed around his couch, or repeated in his ears scriptural sentences with which he was
