A visitor from the south relates an in-cident which occurred on the train com-ing up from Provo Thursday night. It appears that a detachment of the national guard boys occupied a reserved car when one E. V. Acheson, an employe of the telephone company, attempted to make his way into the car. Being refused admission he struck the guard, thus enraring other members of the detachment, who threat-ened to do him bodily harm. Luckily, however, he made his escape at Murray, the guard boys the while threatening to have him prosecuted for his interference.
