course, perceive that it is quite foreign to the purpose of my cor-res pondence to discuss the justice or injustice of the great excitement which now menaces the peace of the State. Your Excellency agrees with me that excitment this, and also that it is highly desirable to allay it by means and measures which are alike honorable to all parties. It is my purpose to con-fine discussion to those points which are essential, and on which we may reach an agreement, and may therefore wisely avoid those which are non-essential and on supposed necessary, there would still be four full days left before the assembling of the legislature.

when your Excellency asks me to indicate the points that have not been adjudicated, I reply that such an attempt would be valueless and indeed foreign to this peaceful mode of adjustment. Your Excellency must be aware that there is oftentimes much dispute among lawyers as to what has been adjudicated by the court, as there is touching that which has been exacted by the legislature. Your Excellency will readily admit that the court is the best able to determine what has already been adjudicated; and with the strong tendency of the judicial mind to adhere to one of its own maxims, standing by that which

Can your Excellency give the people any assurance of what may nappen should the Constitutional mode of adjustment be rejected and an attempt be made to organize the legislature by force-of membership, which so large a proportion of the without the solution of the people of Maine believe to be contrary to the actual result of the election? I will not permit myself to doubt, with the two courses before your excellency, one of absolute and honorable peace, the other of possible violence and dangerous disorder. Your excellency will be same class before your excellency will be same class be promptly choose and ateadily adhere to the former; and in that belief if they are the people and a second and a second and a second and a second and an attempt to the actual result of the constitution.
