Engineer McCartney of the San Pedro, Los Angeles & Salt Lake road stated this morning that there was nothing definite known even by his department as to which route would be partment as to which route would be selected by the directors at the forth-coming meeting in this city. As to the statement in a morning paper to the effect that Tintic and Ophir mining dis-tricts would be tapped by the Clark road when it was built, Mr. McCartney smiled and said "that is no news, of course those districts will be tapped, as was the original intention when the company was first organized." WHY IT FELL THROUGH. McKenzie Mill Combine Found Things

Different Than Represented.

An old time flour and grain dealer in this city says one reason why the Mc-Kenzle combination fell through was because eastern investors who were to furnish the capital discovered that in some cases the flouring mills were capitalized for nearly twice their value, and that were the trust idea carried out the erection of say four new mills advantageously placed with regard to railroad communications, would be able to do up the proposed combination, Said he, "Years ago, when railronds were not what they are now, it was all right to build a mill by the side of a purling stream," as all the grain wanted was grown within easy reach and the growers never failed to bring the same to the mill. Now, the mill that is located by the side of a railroad and has the latest machinery is the mill that will do the business. The old mill now pays the cost of hauling the raw material from the railroad to the mill, and the finished product from the mill to the railroad, and this cost of hauling wo ways is what will destroy profit in short order. There has been a great change in industrial conditions in this intermoun-tain country within the last ten or fifteen years, and individuals or corpora-tions that do not keep abreast of the times will have to take a rear seat."
