FLEEING ROBBER DODGES BULLETS

Invulnerable Yeggman Successfully Eludes Police, Waiters, Bartenders and Others.

HELD UP YOUNG'S CAFE.

Fire Escape, Two Dark Alleys and a Gun Help Him to Get Away From His Pursuers.

Three patrolmen, a night watchman, and a bartender fired about 50 ineffective shots at a fleeing robber after he had held up Young's cafe, 125 Main street, taking about $150 from the cash register, about 2:30 o'clock this morning, and after a long chase through the business district, the robber made his escape.

The hold-up compelled William Murdock, night manager of the cafe and John Mullins, a waiter, to stand with their hands in the air, while he rified the cash register. Then the rob-ber ran out on Main street, with Murdock after him. Murdock encoun-tered Patrolman Thomas Cassidy, and asked if the officer had seen a man running out of the cafe. Cassidy said he had not seen the man, but that he had not seen the man, but that he had heard the door of the Nevada coming house slammed but a moment before, and they headed for that place, where they saw a man looking as though he had just goiten out of bed, start for the lavatory from one of the rooms. Cassidy called to the man to halt, but he simulated pain in his stomach and went on to the lavatory, whence he escaped down the gree escape and on to Commercial street. with their hands in the air, while he street. Sergeant John Roberts was stand-ing on Commercial street, and, having ocen notified of the robbery of Young's cafe, he Immediately concluded that the man running down Commercial street was the holdup. Roberts ordered the fleeing man to hait, but this com-mand merely served to increase his speed, and Roberts started in pursuit, firing shot after shot from his revolver,

CONTINUES PURSUIT.

On reaching Second South street, the fuglity turned toward State street. Sergeant Roberts saw Frank Wood-ward, night bartender at the Log Cabin saloon, and shouted for him to stop the robber. Woodward joined in the chase and had gotten close up to the robber, when the latter turned, and pressing his revolver against the bartender's stomach warned him to drop out of the chase if he valued his life. As the holdup started to run again.

bertender's stomach warned him to drop out of the chase if he valued his life. As the holdup started to run again, three patroinen tore loose with their revolvers, the fusilade sounding like a miniature battle, and the shots awakened every person sleeping in the neighborhood. But none of the many bullets touched the running rob-ber, the only damage done by the revolvers of the police being a small. On reaching State street, the robber turned south and ran to Victoria al-ley, through which he field to Main street, where he ran into Night Watch-man Taylor. The holdup took a pot-shot at Taylor, grabbed the night watchman's hat, and ran on west of Main street, where he disappreared. The police are still in hot pursuit. So far the police bave failed to cap-ture the desperate robber, though the entire force is searching for him. Early this morning Chief Barlow, all the pildon Rober, and and the music solemnly pathetic. Chief Barlow's office, behind closed foors, and the police think they have a clue as to the whereabouts of the thief. It was reported this morning that be-ween $15$ and $45$ in gold was found on Commercial street by a number of col-ored men and a policeman, but so far is the latter is concerned, the report was not verified. That some colored men picked up gold coin, left along the rail of the fleeing robber is no doubt rue, but who the men are could not be uscertained.

ascertained. Patrolmen Tyler and White were also mixed up in the shooting as the robber dashed down State street. Their marks-manship was indicated by numerous builtet holes through the windows of the Falstaff saloon, the shots going 10 feet high. After the robber secured the hat from Watchman Taylor, he dis-appeared behind the Clift House and all trace of him was lost.

New York Firm Puts in Claim With Receiver for I. C. Glosz.

LOST AT POKER; In the federal court this morning the bankruptcy case of I. C. Glosz, the Sec-ond South street furtler, was resus-citated by a petition presented by Re-villon Freres, of New York, who claim that there is in the possession of the receiver of the Glosz establishment $1,50 worth of furs for which the Sait Lake firm is indebted. The matter was re-ference to Commissioner Baldwin and the receiver was cited to appear. Other creditors who have peretofore appeared in the case are Bennioff Bros. of New York, the Bennett Paint & Glass company, and N. M. Hamilton of Sait Lake. The present claims aggre-gate something like $0,000. In the federal court this morning the Losing all his money in one of the many poker games running in the city.

JUDGE MARSHALL RETURNS.

Resumes Seat on Federal Bench After Six Months Absence.

Loshig all his money in one of the many poker games running in the city, and becoming desnondent through heavy drinking, William C Hunt, an old time cowpurcher of wyoning, but recently of Nevada, committed suicide this morning about 2:30 o'clock, at First South and State street by cutting his throat with a small penknife. Hunt came here three or four days ago from Nevada and stopped at the Lincoln House. He was heard several times to complain over his losses at the gambling table and he continued to drink heavily. He left the Lincoln House shortly after 2 o'clock this morn-ing, walked to the corner of First South and State where he plunged the blade of a small knife into his throat. Hunt fell to the sidewalk and died from loss of blood before anything could be done to save him. Justice Hanks was notified and ordered the body sent to the undertak-er's. The blade with which Hunt cut his throat was only one and one-half inches long. He was about 51 years of age. Judge John Marshall resumed his sea on the federal bench this morning after an absence in Oklahoma since the spring term. The case of the Silver spring term. The case of the Silver King Consolidated Mining company against the Silver King Coultion Mines company, in which the former claimed damages because of alleged mining on its property was before the court. There is something like $500,000 involved. The plaintiff was granted permission to file an amendment to the bill of complaint. The taking of testimony, which has been in progress for some time, has been extended to Feb. 1.

"He shot me without provocation, while I was unarmed and entirely unsus-pecting any belligerent intentions on his part. I had just arrived in the camp and was making a tour of in-spection. I had passed some of the boys and spoke to them. Fitzpatrick and his wife drove up and demanded an audience with me, I talked with them and invited them in the house. Fitzpatrick said he wanted me to settle his bill, He had been working as a teamster for my foreman, Mr. Dodge, and I told him he h-<sup>o</sup> better settle with Dodge. Mrs. Fitzpatrick then took a hand, and if she did not give Dodge a tongue lashing, no one ever did. I had heard men cures and swear before, but no man ever swore as Mrs. Fitzpatrick did at my foreman, I remonstrated with her, saying that that was no place to give volce to such talk, and she said 'he was all of that.' I said perhaps so, but I do not care to hear you use such lan-guage here. I told her I would call Mr. Dodge in, and at that Fitzpatrick came up and said: 'I want you to set-tle with me, right here.' I said, T can-not settle with you, I don't know any-thing about it." STORY OF THE SHOOTING.
