DEMOCRATS HONOR THOMAS JEFFERSON

His One Hundred Sixty-First Anniversary Fittingly Celebrated—Last Night.

ELOQUENT TRIBUTES PAID HIM.

A. J. Weber Assails President Roosevelt—Good Musical Program Rendered.

The Democratic clubs of this city and their guests celebrated the one hundred sixty-first anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson, at the Ladies' Literary club last evening. There was a good turnout, and the occasion was one of absorbing interest.

Elmer S. Harris, master of ceremonies, introduced as the first speaker, Judge O. W. Powers, who paid an eloquent tribute to Jefferson, and then pitched into local conditions. He deplored the act of the Republican legislature in making possibly the affair now going on in Washington, which forces men to leave their business and go down there to testify. The judge created a hearty burst of laughter when he remarked: "I am glad I belong to a party that does not have to hold midnight meetings to stir up harmony."

James H. Moyle spoke next. This was his tribute to Jefferson: "The home at Monticello remains at this day a holy place to which devout Democrats—by whatever party name they call themselves—resort, and make new pledges of their faith. The great apostle of liberty remains yet before us, simple and unmythical. There were no portentous events which he was born to; he was of nature when he died. His elevation and beautification have been the acts of love and gratitude in the lowly, who have none the less preserved his memory as a faithful record. Let us take Thomas Jefferson, both by precept and example, and it is possible there will not, in the records of mankind, be found another person so strikingly worthy of the admiration of those who believe in equal rights for all and special privileges for none. He loved the masses and was confident of their good intention and trusted them implicitly and wisely, and was repaid by such a tribute of affection, and such an effort by the people to meet his ideals, that while the masses grew freer, more intelligent and jealous of their rights, his fame steadily increased and will so continue throughout the annals of history."

Judge A. N. Cherry followed in rather a humorous talk, and J. R. Letcher, after a few words, introduced a resolution requesting the presidents of the clubs to appoint a committee to assist in raising funds for the purchase of the Jefferson home at Monticello, with the idea of making it a public shrine. A. J. Weber, in his speech, referred to President Roosevelt as "the miserable misfit who now occupies the presidential chair."

Mrs. E. J. D. Roundy, president of the Woman's Democratic club, spoke briefly, and recited "Ring for Liberty."

The music of the evening, "as furnished by Miss Ruth Wilson, Miss Milie Williams, Mrs. Nellie Bruce-Fugley, Walter Howard and Miss Jeanie Hayward."

Miss Bessie Mulholland gave a clever exhibition of clock swinging during the entertainment.
