They Laugh and Weep for Joy That the Aeronaut Was Spared for Other Efforts.

New York, Aug. 9.—A dispatch to the Journal and Advertiser from Paris gives the following additional details concerning M. Santos Dumont and the recent trial of his airship. All Paris is excited as only Paris can be over M.
Santos Dumont.

The "dirigible" balloon has become the personal pride and joy of Parisians.
They knew the whole world was watching every flight of this balloon.
So their disappointment was acute, their chagrin intense, their excitement overwhelming, when they heard the balloon was wrecked, first reports making it appear that the young Brazilian aeronaut had been killed. From all over the city people hurried, taking the first vehicle at hand, running, telling each other the news, first toward the Eiffel tower, then to the Exposition Trocadero hotel, on whose roof they soon learned the balloon had crashed. The accident was bad enough, but not nearly so bad as the first flying rumor had it. Santos Dumont was not hurt, but only his astonishing coolness saved him from death. In fact, Dumont was infinitely cooler than the thousands that quickly surrounded him. As soon as he found himself safe he asked for a cigarette, which he lit. Dumont, in the ascent, wore a religious medal given to him by the Countess d'Eu, daughter of the late Emperor, emperor of Brazil. Half jokingly, half reverently, the aeronaut kissed the medal saying, "It was this that saved me."

Prince Bonaparte, Lieutenant Nolx and other skillful aeronauts have not lost faith in the balloon's ultimate success, because they perfectly understand the cause of the accident to it—the failure of the motor to pump air to fill the inner balloon so as to compensate for the gas which had escaped and so to keep the great balloon taut inflated. When the stern fell in a flabby way the screw began to cut the suspensory wires and the only chance left to Dumont was to stop the machine and drift with the wind.

M. Deutsch was much gloomier that his 100,000 francs had not been won than was Dumont over the accident. Said the donor, much-disturbed: "I have feared an accident to some one striving to gain my prize. I have wished to retire but the committee said I could not honorably do so. So I returned to the laboratory. The cause should be changed so as to escape the danger of falling into Paris."

But Paris is happy that the accident was not more serious. Everywhere toasts are being drunk to "the balloon that certainly will sail and to Dumont who will guide it."

It is estimated that repairs to the balloon will cost 50,000 francs. M. Santos Dumont says it will be ready on September 1, and that he will make another trial before Sept. 15, when the competition closes for 1901.

Edward De Roszke Engaged.

New York, Aug. 9.—The announcement is made that Maurice Grau has engaged Edward De Roszke for the coming season of grand opera in this country. Sibyl Sanderson has also been engaged for the season.

ANOTHER BIG ONE.

Concerns Engaged in Ship Building to be Consolidated.

New York, Aug. 9.—Says the Journal and Advertiser: It is reported that all the details connected with the proposed ship building combination have been arranged and that the new corporation will be launched in a few days.

It is understood that the Cramps are to be the back bone of the trust, aided by the Newport News company.

The plan also includes the Vickers and Max intensifiers and the Bethlehem ship and armor plate works.

Other concerns that are to be included, according to present plans, are the Union Iron works of San Francisco; Bethlehem works of Bath, Maine; the Hyde Windlass company, of Bath, Maine; the Crescent ship yard of Elizabethport, N. J.; the Samuel L. Moore Sons & Company of Elizabeth, N. J.; and the Canada Manufacturing company of Carteret, N. J.

The schedule for the trust is that the name will be "The United States Ship Building Company," and the capitalization $65,000,000.

It is said the holders of Cramp Co. stock will have the option of taking cash or seven per cent preferred stock of the trust for each share of Cramp stock.

POOR WOMAN.

Antonia Paratora Ordered Deported
While Dying.

New York, Aug. 9.—Antonia Paratora, a young Italian woman who landed in this country from Italy recently, has been deported on an order from Washington, notwithstanding the earnest protest of the ship's doctor. The case is peculiar. When the girl reached New York she was light-hearted and happy. She had friends here and went there with them, with ideas of good fortune and wealth in store in the new world. But home sickness attacked her and she was soon a victim of extreme melancholia. Deserted by her friends, she became an inmate of Bellevue hospital. The order for deportation followed. When the unfortunate woman was taken to the dock she was a mental wreck and only a shadow of her former self. The official insisted on putting her on the ship.
The physician said she would undoubtedly die on the voyage.
