Present on the stand of the Apostles George Teasdale, the Stake Presidency and other leading Brethren of the Stake, Bishops of Wards, also returned missionaries George Condie, Joseph S. Hunter and Henry H. McConeil.

The Conference, was one of the most spirited and impressive ever held in this Stake. The teachings were clear, pointed and timely, they were of a nature that combined comfort with instruction, and inspired the minds of the people with faith. Each of the speakers appeared to dwell with the power of the spirit of truth upon special points, producing a variety of principles influenced with a powerful unity of purpose. The people gathered in from the different Wards of the Stake until the house was filled, with the expectation of being fed with the bread of life, and they were not disappointed, but return to their homes feeling greatly blessed and encouraged, especially by the instructions of Apostle Geo. Teasdale. In his instructions every species of impurity of conduct was unsparingly denounced. The necessity of men living with and treating their families in accordance with the law of the Lord, the conditions under which children are reared influence them for good or evil during the after career of their lives, the necessity of husbands loving their wives, children loving their parents, and Saints loving one another, were urged with force and earnestness.

The reports of the Bishops indicated an increase of faith and good work in the midst of the Saints.

The general and local authorities and list of home missionaries were presented and unanimously sustained.

Statistical reports of the various Wards and societies were read and made a very good showing.

President Thos. J. Jones and Council felt that it would be well for the Saints not to let the teachings and instructions we have heard fade away but strive to put them in practice in our lives.

Much good counsel was given by the various officers in the Stake and returned missionaries in regard to our duties as Saints of the Most High God.

The Saints generally felt to make new resolutions and endeavor to serve God more fully in the future than they have done in the past.

WILLIAM H. HOLYVAK, Stake Clerk.

REMARKS ON LIFE INSURANCE.

A CORRESPONDENT TAKES A SENSIBLE STAND.

FRANKLIN, Idaho, March 28th, 1884.

Editor Deseret News:

What concerns the public I think of great interest, and it is sometimes good to have the public periodicals ventilate the same. Life insurance companies are getting all the policy holders they can. If the names of a few of our leading men are attached, it is a bait to many of our reliable farmers and business men to invest some of their funds. The agents of many of these societies picture in glowing colors the great good that will be realized by becoming members. We venture a guess that not one farmer in twenty can pay twice a year for a life insurance policy without crippling him financially and if he fails once, all that he has paid is lost to him. Several of my old neighbors have invested in insurance affairs, and now they see their folly.

A safe plan for farmers is to invest in good improvements or bank their surplus cash. These do more good by keeping out of these insurance affairs, than the means will do our friends good after we are gone.

Wealthy people may insure if they are pretty certain of the cash coming in, but the man that labors in a fluctuating country like this for cash, had better keep on the safe side.

Now we do not say these companies are frauds, but for most of our people might just as well be. No sensible man we think should advise any of his friends to invest in any of these insurance companies of life policies. A variety of travelers are canvassing the country to get the money from our pockets, and no returns will ever come back.

The News can, as it has done, only more so, give its conservative views to the people on all matters of general interest. The papers often mould public opinion, and to warn and forewarn their readers will be of great good to them.

Spread the good word on all important subjects, and receive the gratitude of your readers.
