Bodies of Seven Hunters Have Nov Been Taken Out - The Funeral Will Take Place at Ogden.

[SPECIAL TO THE "NEWS,"] Scoffeld, May 11,-The body of James C. Hunter was recovered this morning. The remains will be shipped to Ogden for burial. James C. Hunter was the seventh of his immediate family to perish in the mines. The bodies of the others were recovered soon after the disaster, but this one could not be found. Several days ago, bodies were located in a room.

The rescuers finally decided to run a drift through the wall, and when this was accomplished the remains of Edwin Street were found, drill in hand. Yesterday the body of Street's partner, Padfield, was found in this room, and the car was partners, and Paddeld, was found in this room, and the car was partially uncovered. As Hunter was the driver of this car, and portions of his clothing were found close by, it was considered certain that his body would be recovered there. The task was a most difficult one, as a great quantity of rock had fallen and the ground was very unsafe, but it has been successfully accomplished.
