Bishop C. N. Lund, of Mount Pleasant, C. C. N. Dorius, of Ephraim (south), W. T. Reid, of Manti (north), L. S. Anderson, of Ephraim (north ward), each reported his ward in a good condition generally, exceptional cases were also reported, showing in some instances that saloons are sustained by the assistance of those who profess to be Latter-day Saints.

INDUSTRIAL ENTERPRISES.

I perceive that considerable interest is being aroused concerning the necessity of establishing manufactures in our midst. As the promoter of the sugar industry it may be readily conceived that I have given the subject of the necessity of industrial pursuits some considerable reflection. While I regard this present time as the most difficult the Territory has ever seen in which to establish any manufacturing industry, yet I think it is possible that if a convention were held some industries, amongst the great many we lack, might be mentioned which would prove feasible and practicable. The difficulty which I see is not the lack of interest, for I know that some of the principal leading men among us are thoroughly in earnest upon the question of industrial enterprises; neither is it the lack of money, for some of these men control financial resources of sufficient extent to perform what they see ought to be done, but the difficulty of the situation (as I know to my cost, for I have just lost a year's work through it). Is the political agitation which affects almost every important industry that can be mentioned. If, however, a convention were held, the various industries could be passed in review and their feasibility and practicability discussed, and the possibilities of their successful conduct, independent of the political agitation, estimated, and some might be determined upon for the establishment of which capital could safely be invited.

I would suggest that the D. A. & M. Society, if it find it within the province of their powers to do so, or the Salt Lake Chamber of Commerce, inviting the corporation of the Chambers or Boards of Trade of other cities, take the matter up and call a convention at as early a date as would allow sufficient time for advertising and awakening the necessary general interest. I make this suggestion with the view that the interest manifested is in behalf of the general growth of the principle of production and manufacture, that important branch of the financial power, for the benefit of the Territory, but if the benefit sought for is simply local then it would seem that the Salt Lake Chamber of Commerce could with propriety take up the matter and they should be requested to do so.
