

LOCAL AND OTHER MATTERS.

Correspondents willing for publication are requested to write on one side of the paper only. No notice can be taken of anonymous communications. Correspondents' names must in every instance accompany their communications, not necessarily under signatures, but it is a guarantee of their truth.

THEATRICAL.—Mr. Wadsworth's benefit tonight should draw together a crowded house, for he is a popular actor and he presents an entertainment varied in character and calculated to please tastes the most diverse. The tragedy of "King Lear," though a play with which all are familiar who are acquainted with Shakespeare's works, will be played for the first time here. Dealing, as it does, with paternal affection, filial love and fraternal ingratitude, illustrating with all the power of Shakespeare's genius the base and despicable act of crushing the hand which showered favors, and that hand a father's; although the period is legendary rather than historical, it presents a vivid picture of ill required love turned to "high wrought frenzy." Old "Lear," with his reverend and whitened locks, uttering the fury of the storm and springing madly to ill digested thoughts born of madness, is one of the most sympathetic spectacles presented on the stage. Edgar, too, has kindred points which command him to the sympathies of the audience. All lovers of Shakespeare who attend will enjoy the sublimity and grandeur of "King Lear." The after-piece is most amusing and natural; and Mr. Kimball's performance is different from that of Tuesday night.

PROSPECTIVE.—A telegraphic dispatch from the west, which contained nothing else of interest, states that the grain and hay crops of California and Nevada promise unequalled yield this season.

PASSABLE.—A telegraphic dispatch from S. Pitchforth, Esq., dated Chicken Creek, and received last night, states that the Beaver Bridge was again passable, and Layton's train was crossing at the time of forwarding the telegram. Layton is loaded for Jennings & Co. The fact of this bridge being repaired, will be a matter of gratification to the travelling public who have business that way.

GOT KILLED AT IT.—A man by the name of Richard Bennett, went to Omaha from Fort Phil Kearny, where he had been butchering, got on a prolonged bust, at the end of which he took a couple of revolvers and started to shoot somebody in the Cassinian House, where he had been staying. He scared the bar-keeper badly, fired two shots through the counter at him, and then "went for" the clerk. The latter, though a small man, struck him with his fist on the temple, got him down, and in the struggle, both pistols went off, the balls entering Bennett, who died in half an hour.

REDDEVILLE.—An exchange says young men in Salt Lake must marry at nineteen or pay a fine of $300. This is the "three black crow's" "redemption," to a dead certainty. About a week ago some other exchanges had the fine placed at $200. Taxes on a little longer, and when you are sent "the year," won't know the own workmanship. "Three black crows"; why, yes, six of them, and made like the boy's wooden mill, all out his own hand, with sufficient material left to make another or two.

CHEYENNE PRICES.—Mr. George Goddard has placed in our hands a price list of F. T. Neckols of Cheyenne, which is lower than the prices contained in the Commercial Reports of the Cheyenne papers. We quote the figures of a few leading articles, that an idea may be formed of rates in thatburgh, which will soon be within a still shorter distance—in point of time—by the extension of the railroad.

Rice Coffee in No. 2 $1.30; Sugar lbs. @ 21¢

Tea $1.30 @ 45¢; Dried apples 10¢; Dried peaches 17¢; Coal oil 22¢ per gallon; Carolina rice 17¢ per lb.; Nails 10¢; Oysters $.50 per case; Palm soap 10¢ per lb. Other articles are proportionate.

DROWNED.—By a communication from Wm. Henry Walker we learn that Charles Joseph Phelps, son of Charles and Mary Ann Phelps of Pleasant Grove, Utah County, was drowned in Provo river on Tuesday the 5th. He was with his father in a wagon, crossing the river to get wood. His father saw the wagon was being drifted down stream, and tried to avoid getting into deep water, but was unable; the wagon bed was floated off, and they were thrown into the stream. The boy was drowned, and the father barely escaped. He was ten years and ten months old, and the only child of his parents.—MIL. Star please copy.

EASTERN TELEGRAMS.—The absence of eastern telegrams to-day is due to the line being down between Julesburg and Omaha. A heavy snow storm is reported in that quarter, which has blocked the trains; but the operations here have been unable to learn particulars.

DISCHARGED.—The persons who were arrested for shooting Sam Brannan—Andrew Snyder and others—have been discharged, after examination. J. W. Clark, the Justice of the Peace who discharged them, says the evidence was very clear that ardent spirits was the real criminal, for if there had been no drinking, he believed, there would have been no shooting. He adds:

"That a man possessed of the good sound judgment of Brannan would have been caught in such an undertaking, unless under the influence of liquor, is not believed by me."

The testimony on both sides agree substantially in the following:

Fifth.—That they had been guilty of taking the mill that night, April 18th—night of the shooting.

Second.—That a crowd was assembled where Brannan was free to use.

Third.—That Brannan and others were endeavoring to get persons to assist him in taking the mill that night.

Fourth.—That they assembled at the Jew or Chinese store, and an hour before midnight (an hour between ten and eleven o'clock at night), to do an unlawful act, started from the store and proceeded towards the mill.

Fifth.—They then proceeded directly to the mill grounds back of the Jew's store, where they were ordered to halt by the mill owner, and that they did halt.

Sixth.—Those words were exchanged between those who had assembled and those who told Brannan he was placed there to meet the mill, and he intended to hold it. Brannan answers, "You are a liar!" talking three or four minutes, probably more, in a loud voice between them, when Brannan replies, "All right, when you meet the mill I will come in the daylight." Some who understood him in say "comes in daylight." That from this point the party were divided, those who advanced with Brannan toward the mill.

Seventh.—They continued to advance, and were again halted, and told not to advance, as they were compelled to shoot. They continued to advance, parading until the shooting commenced.

Now, as to the warning which Brannan had, Mr. Garret, one the party, informs him, if he was going to take the mill, "to take a second thought." He did not do so, but shot at night, but proceeds after being visited by his party repeatedly that there was danger, as the boys were armed.

He examined the evidence for the defense and comes to the conclusion that the Brannan party shot first, and the other party did not fire; and, by construction, it must have come from Brannan's own party, for the reasons stated, and acknowledged on the evidence disclosed the prisoners were not guilty of shooting, and ordered their discharge from custody to the State Penitentiary for long detention but sentenced to life imprisonment.
