LOCAL BRIEFS.

The Epworth league and the young people's class of the First Methodist church will meet in social session this evening, at the church parlors.

Hydrographic Inspector Murphy of the Geological survey, has gone south to inspect the gauging stations on the streams in that part of the state.

Corporal Fred Smith of the battery, was chosen second lieutenant last night, at the state armory. Lieutenant Smith has served three years in the guard.

Col. Sam Park is able to be around, and attend to business after three weeks of severe illness, during which several surgical operations were performed.

Clarence Denton, the colored man who was shot in the thigh recently on Commercial street, is in danger of death from blood poisoning, at the Holy Cross hospital.

H. A. Storrs, electrical engineer of the Geological survey, will be in town this week from Washington, to consult with Prof. Swenson on matters involving power in connection with the great irrigation scheme which is about to be launched.

The office of the construction quartermaster, U. S. A., in this city is in receipt of a complete set of new and costly topographical maps covering the intricate mountain country. These maps are sent out by the department of the interior.

Frank Folger, a boy living at 266 Center street, slipped on the roof of his summer kitchen while shingling, and cut off his thumb and forefinger with his hatchet. He was removed to the Keogh-Wright hospital where his hand was dressed.

There was a spring opening last evening, at the entertainment at the Garden, First South and West Temple streets, and the police opened up on the garden. F. Dubois is now in the municipal building on charge of violating the liquor ordinance.

The Grand Army posts here have adopted resolutions of respect for the late Private George S. Miller of F company, Fifth Illinois volunteers, who recently died at San Diego. He was formerly in business in this city and leaves a wife and four children.

There will be a concert in the First Congregational church next Thursday evening, for the benefit of the kindergarten piano fund. Mrs. Hattie M. Hamburger will read, and the Orpheus club will sing and the program generally will be attractive. There will be no admission but a contribution will be taken.

T. C. Callister, F. D. Pyle and H. W. Sholly of the Reclamation office in this city, are taking civil service examinations today, in the federal court room. There are 15 candidates in all for different engineering positions in the general land office, and eight more are applicants for admission to the naval academy.

The petition for a rehearing in the case of Kate Johnson vs. Park City, appellant, has been denied by the supreme court. That court recently affirmed the judgment of the lower court by which plaintiff was awarded $1,500 damages for injuries received by falling on a defective sidewalk in Park City in May, 1900.

Proprietor Yancy N. Frazer of the Red Onion gambling house called today to state that the report was incorrect relative to Maurice Ramsey's receiving any injuries in his establishment. Mr. Frazer states that Ramsey came up into his place and begged a partner to get something to eat. This was given him by one of the employees and he immediately went down stairs with a bottle of whiskey in his hand. Mr. Frazer ascertained that Ramsey went across the street and presently returned; and it was then that he stumbled and fell, and struck his head against the curb, fracturing his skull. The last account Ramsey is near death, but the doctors are hoping to save him yet.

Internal Revenue Collector Callister has received a decision from the commissioner of internal revenue at Washington which is of special interest to manufacturers of tobacco and cigars. It relates to the printing of the union label over the government caution label on packages of tobacco and cigars, which is now prohibited. The section of the decision relating to that matter follows: "The printing and use of the union label, or other extraneous matter, on the caution notice label by manufacturers of tobacco and cigars is held to be illegal and contrary to the regulations."

At yesterday's session of the Ministerial association, Rev. Dr. Benj. Young read a paper on "Tendencies of Modern Literature." The speaker presented the trend of these tendencies, and particularly the fact that so many critics were prone to cater to lower standards because they were popular. There were present at the meeting two Methodist missionaries from Gujarat, in western India, who explained their work they had been doing among the native children, and said that evangelical efforts in India were proving successful. The committee on public morals, which has been considering the matter of prize fighting, reported progress, but no action was taken.

A more appreciative audience than the one which assembled in the Twentieth ward amusement hall last night would be difficult to find. It was comprised principally of the old folks, missionaries' wives, widows and orphans, for whose particular benefit and entertainment the bill was given. The bill was "Caste," which the dramatic club had given for the third time. Among those present was Bishop Romney, who has been a strong friend of the organization. Like the others present, he greatly appreciated the work done. All joined in the frequent outbursts of applause that were given the performers, who have individually and collectively done so much during the winter months to contribute to the entertainment of the ward.

A crowd of perhaps 500 people listened early last evening in front of the Kenyon hotel to Rev. Dr. Lamkin, the evangelist, who spoke for 15 minutes from the text, "A lion met him in the way and slew him." The speaker said the ways of life are full of lions, and they are slaying people every day. There is the lion of infidelity, a destroying and powerful beast, and there are others. The doctor seemed to make considerable of an impression; and the impression continued later in the evening, when he spoke of the "Evidence of a Christian Life." The evangelist preaches this afternoon, on "The Present and the Future of Heaven," and this evening, he speaks on "The Human Will, Its Acceptance or Rejection of Jesus Christ."

NOW IN QUARANTINE.

"Mother" Jones Isolated on Account of Violating Health Laws.

"Mother" Jones, in order to start off with the usual amount of notoriety, has violated the quarantine laws. She visited the place at Scofield, where Organizer Wm. Price is lying with what is termed one of the worst cases of smallpox ever developed in the state. She visited with the organizer until she was good and ready to leave. Immediately she was quarantined by Dr. Holmquist and Sheriff Wilcox and they have isolated her in a private lodging house. "Mother" Jones takes her detention as a matter of course. She has made several dates to speak to the miners, but cannot keep them, as she will be detained the customary 15 days.

Taking Desperate Chances.

It is true that many contract colds and recover from them without taking any precaution or treatment, and a knowledge of this fact leads others to take their chances instead of giving their colds the needed attention. It should be borne in mind that every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality, makes the system less able to withstand each succeeding cold, and paves the way for more serious diseases. Can you afford to take such desperate chances when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, famous for its cures, can be had for a trifle? For sale by all druggists.

UTAHN WRITES NOVEL.

Mrs. Caroline Stanley the Author of a Book That Promises Well.

Mrs. Caroline Abbott Stanley, formerly of this city and for some time a resident of Provo, has written a novel, which is classed as a splendid contribution to current literature, and for which a large measure of success is predicted. It is entitled "Order No. 11," and deals with the results of the famous order issued during the Civil war by the federal general, Thomas Ewing, commanding all residents of Cass, Jackson and Bates counties, Mo., to leave their homes. Mrs. Stanley spent her early life in that part of Missouri, and witnessed many of the incidents described in her stirring narrative. Mrs. J. C. Royle likewise passed through the exciting period in Missouri, and age will review "Order No. 11" at the monthly meeting Monday of the Ladies' Literary club, of which Mrs. Stanley was a prominent member.

THE GIRL AND THE BEE.

A Story of the Ignorance of a City Girl.

The city girl coming down to breakfast at the home of her mother, and observing a plate of honey on the table said, "Oh, I see you keep a bee."

That's about the way some people talk about the blight of baldness—just as if a bald head was something one got all at once just by the result of the blight.

Amusements

It was a thoroughly "thrilled" audience that assembled at the Grand theater last night to witness the presentation of "Kidnapped." And the word should be spelled in capital letters if not printed in red ink. It was the largest audience, too, that has thus far welcomed and enjoyed the work of the Elford Stock company. The author is David K. Higgins, and when it comes to the creation of scenes that tingle to the finger tips and set the pit and galleries alike in wild commotion, he appears to have Lincoln P. Carter distanced. The stage settings were at times startlingly realistic, and if the hero and heroine had 399 narrow escapes their rescues were "Johnny on the spot" quite that number of times, with a margin of several to spare in case of emergency. Conspiracy was planned and conspiracy was exposed; robbery was executed with amazing details; the burning houses, the fiery felled; the bad man and equally bad woman were omnipresent; but the good man and the better woman ever put a quietus on their machinations. Back and behind all these and mixed in with the details were burning houses, fiery rivers, leaps for life, real live horses, driven singly and in pairs (the man who handled them is a master at stagecraft) and scores of other things that "thrilled." Yes, that is the term. Everything in "Kidnapped" is stated that Manager Wyman served notice on the members of the company that their services would no longer be required unless they forthwith became "thrillers." So "thrillers" they now are, one and all. When the curtain fell every reformer felt, figuratively speaking, because he or she was completely exhausted and out of breath. The man who thinks there was even a percentage of the energy expended in this city on the spot, that went up in perspiration at the other house, is sadly un-informed. It wasn't in it with "Kidnapped."

But seriously the whole performance was strongly calculated to give a minute in the house at the end of the fourth and last act, as the crowd poured into the streets, would have convinced even a passer-by of that fact, as his ears would have been assailed thus by the "thriller" that came from the "dress circle." "Well that's all right." Or thus, from the "newspaper" that shot down from the galleries with the exclamation, "Gee, Jimmie, but ain't that a hummer?" "Well yes, yes," and wouldn't I like to get a swipe at de villain."

Mr. Rosso, as Louis Rihngold, the German dude, was particularly interesting last night, while James Corrigan as Michael McMooney, divided the center of the stage and also the applause with Pauline Maitland who did a double role—that of an Irish woman with a heart and that of a French lady with a head and a cunningly. Lilian Elliott as the heroine, both very pretty and appeared to better advantage than in any previous performance. Myrtle Selwyn, who played Daisy, has become quite a favorite and is always well received by the audience. And last but not least is Charles Blair who made his first hit since arriving in Salt Lake. He did the part of Nossy, the Jew, like the real article. "Well I 'Kidnapped' engagement ends tomorrow night. The outlook is for good business as the sale of seats for tonight and tomorrow's matinee is in advance of the management's expectation.

Manager Elford, owner of the company, is expected here from San Francisco tomorrow or Thursday. He will be accompanied by his wife who is also a well known actress. It is understood that they will remain in Salt Lake until the end of the season and that Miss Norton will be seen in some of the approaching plays.

At the Theater tonight the widely advertised musical farce comedy, "The Telephone Girl," opens an engagement for two nights and a Wednesday matinee.

The sale of seeds began this morning at the Grand Theater for "A Lion's Heart," which the Elford Stock Co. will present the last half of the week.
