

reflect our delight in your happiness; in times of grief and discouragement (and they come to all) let it assure you how gladly we would do anything in our power to lessen the bitterness.

"So shall we—in spirit—be with you always."

"Dear friend, you have done much for us in the past five years; we fear we have not always been appreciative."

"No doubt we could do much more for your work lighter, your heart happier, forgive us for all that has been careless, all that has failed in word or in deed."

"Take with you, ever here and everywhere, our best prayers for the welfare and happiness of yourself and of those dear to you. We feel sure that your present work—for which you are so well fitted—will be your life-work."

We hope it will. In your association with many others, in all the years to come we ask you not to forget us; but to remember always as your affectionate friends, the teachers of the Logan public school."

Mr. Merrill responded in a few well-chosen words of appreciation and thanks, assuring the teachers of his realization of their cordial support and friendship, and of his pleasure in this knowledge.

When the little gathering dispersed, it was most reluctantly, and with a most heartfelt "God speed" to their much-loved friend and co-laborer.

For five years, Mr. Merrill filled the office of superintendent with dignity, ability and unswerving honesty in word and in deed.

Utterly incapable of the diplomacy which wins more transient friends, Mr. Merrill's blunt frankness has secured the enduring friendship of those who have known him longest and most intimately.

His resignation has caused much grief as well as surprise among students, teachers and patrons.

No field to which Mr. Merrill was so, most fortunate in securing his services.

CLUB CHAT.

Over 400 new members have been added recently to the enrolment list of the Equal Suffrage league of Nebraska. New organizations have been formed in many towns as a result of the good work done in the conference tour of the state by Miss Gail Laughlin and Miss Laura Gregg. Miss Laughlin has just returned to New York, but Miss Gregg remains in Nebraska and will address the Chautauques of the state.

The mayor of Onelida, N. Y., has appointed Miss Florence Kirkpatrick, one of five library trustees who are to erect and afterwards manage the new Carnegie library in that city. Following his example, the Mayor of Toledo, O., appointed Mrs. Russell, a prominent business woman, to the trusteeship of the local library trustees. This appointment, however, met with some opposition, the attorney-general's office even declaring the appointment illegal under the charter of Toledo. Chautauques and others are making an earnest effort to have the appointment sustained.

One of the questions which is agitating Washington women is the matter of having advertisements in their year book. The year book for 1903 is the only one in which advertising pages have ever appeared, and great dissatisfaction has been expressed by many. On the other hand, a faction declares that the advertisements in no way injure the book, and if the money thus earned increases its usefulness, it is the part of common sense to continue them. There is a great deal of sentiment attaching to the year book of a federation, and the Washington dispute is likely to be a warm one. It will be one of the matters settled at the annual meeting this month.

FEMININE FLOTSAM

Happy is the woman whose most becoming color is nature or violet. These lovely but trying tones are to be most fashionable in the coming fall. The pinkish heliotropes are also seen in the advance models and fabrics. It is said that only these shades will be worn, not purple or the bluish violets.

Trained skirts are not seen except for weddings and very dressy occasions. In front is a little longer at the sides. The fashionable skirt touches the floor and lies on the floor not more than four inches at the back. Walking skirts, or sidewalk skirts as they are called, must escape the floor all around.

It is predicted that the fall will witness a revolution from the over-decorated gowns of the spring and summer. The new fabrics will be rough, with "mud" stripes, splashes, and broken checks. These do not admit of much trimming aside from stitching and buttons.

Velvets and velveteens in black and dark colors are being imported in large quantities. It is said that the new velveteens will be revelations of beauty in weave and luster, and are guaranteed not to rub off on white gloves, as velveteens always has done.

Common soda is a daily boon in the kitchen if used intelligently. A little soda added to boiling vegetables will hasten the cooking and add to their tenderness. If used in washing dishes very little soap will be needed and the dishes will not have a greasy ring at the top. Jewish people, or the orthodox ones at any rate, never use soap in washing dishes, the usual substitute being soda. In hot weather it is a relief to wash in soda. Soda is also used in cooking them by washing, not soaking, them in soda water.

Hash is made more appetizing if served with a horseradish sauce. The same is true of cold meats, and of that humble dish, boiled beef. A thin cream sauce is the foundation, and the horseradish added is the freshly grated kind and not that which has been mixed with vinegar. Allow it to cook for about three minutes and serve hot.

Colored handkerchiefs for wear with shirt waist costumes are decidedly in favor. There is a cross-barred silk and linen handkerchief which is immensely popular. It comes in every variety and combination of color, in Habasut effects, and has a very soft, fine texture. These handkerchiefs cost $1.

At the same price are linen colored handkerchiefs, which are useful for traveling, automobile, etc. They look fresh long after a white one would be quite dingy. Fine linen handkerchiefs with fancy borders in clear blues, pinks, yellows, and heliotropes are seen.

Nothing sets off a pongee or linen gown like a touch of red, and a great deal of red is worn in the way of hats, belts, stocks, and handkerchiefs. The brightest red still popular, and ruby or cherry red still more so. A handsome belt is of scarlet leather three inches wide. It fastens in the front with three straps cut directly into the leather, not sewed on. There is a little space cut out between each strap, which allows the belt to crush slightly. The buckles are brass. This belt also comes in a rich rosy red, and has two straps. The wide belt is rather more modish. Red leather bags are often very large and are usually expensively mounted.

A shirt waist suit of gray linen is most effectively embellished with embroidered sprays of white wheat. The waist has three tucks sloping from the under-arm seam diagonally across the bust, and a corresponding group of tucks is seen on the fullest part of the sleeve, just above the deep cuff. Collar, shaped stole front, and cuffs are embroidered lightly with wheat sprays, and this is carried across the shoulders in front. The belt is stitched with white but is not embroidered. Three tucks finish the skirt.

Some new patent leather belts are perforated invisibly in the back to admit of ventilation, which is very desirable, especially when the belts are worn.

worn with golf or other outing dress. Belts with heavy metal disks and buckles in the back do not seem sensible for summer wear. They are very heating and are hard on thin waists besides.

Like other articles of dress, the petticoat has fallen into the prevailing fashion for innovations. Frou-frou frills and ruffles are not seen on the handsomest petticoats, their places being usurped by shaped volants, which are a mass of lace medallions and embroidery. These are apparently attached to the skirt by lace and main-sock headings threaded with broad, soft ribbons, tied at intervals in large bows. Grass lawn petticoats are seen, the volants usually mounted over colored silk under-linings and worked with silks to match. These are good with pongee and colored cotton gowns.

A small fortune awaits the inventor of a perfect motorizing hat. The necessity of muffing up the head, eyes, and throat certainly presents difficulties, and the thin materials such as lace, gauze, and chiffon are hardly substantial enough for windy driving, and are worse than useless in wet weather. The hooded hat of silk does not seem to gain much in popularity. Perhaps it is not becoming to many faces. It is not beautiful in itself, a back view suggesting the veils Maine fishermen and Klondike miners wear as protection against mosquitoes. Motor wraps leave nothing to be desired. The thinnest silks and pongees are treated with rubber, and are at the same time light, graceful, and waterproof. An English coat has what is known as the aprot front. It can be worn as an ordinary long coat, or by a clever contrivance, enlarged as far as the skirt is concerned to form an apron which perfectly protects the gown. It has storm front wind guards, and a collar which turns up or down forming when turned up an adequate throat protector.
