

Music and Musicians

THE Salt Lake musical fraternity, and incidentally the entire community are complimented in the invitation accorded Prof. John J. McClellan, the Tabernacle organist, to give the initial dedicatory recital in the big new Auditorium at Minneapolis, next week. The building has just been equipped with an instrument of the same make as our own and almost as large. It is rated as the third biggest organ in the United States and is said to be a marvel of musical and mechanical perfection.

Prof. McClellan left yesterday for the Twin Cities country, where his performances are being prepared for as a distinctly red letter event in Minneapolis musical annals. He was accompanied by Mrs. McClellan and Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hansen. The party will be gone about 10 days. From the advance programs issued by Prof. McClellan before his departure it is evident that he proposes to give the Minnesotans an elaborate and varied musical program. In all four recitals have been arranged for.

The four programs to be given will include 55 selections. The programs are models in the organ concert line, and give to meet the demands of the most critical audiences. Among the principal numbers are: Fantasy in D for piano; Rheiherm; Chromatic Fantasy; Theobald; Canzonetta from Violin Concerto; B. Godard, adapted for the organ by Prof. McClellan; Elegy in F Minor, Archer Gibson; Andante from Fourth Organ Symphony; Beilke; Wagner; Choral from the Stephans; Guilmant; Andante Lemare; Concert Overture; Hohs; Grand Offertoire; Beethoven; Batiste; Meditation and Toccata, E. d'Evry; Capriccio; Lemaire; Cantilene; Gesse; Large Haenel; Prelude and Siciliano; Masseguet; Elegy in G; Lemoine; Toccata and Fugue in D minor; Bach; Nocturne; Gaston Dethier; Canzona; Walsteinholme; Final Duo; Tristan and Isolde; Wagner; Third Organ Sonata; Guilmant; Offertoire in D; Batiste; Virgin's Prayer; Massenet; Andante; Prélude; Bergognone; Masseguet; Masseguet; Toccata in F; Widor; Cantilene in A minor; Salomé; Concert Overture; Faulkner; Ave Maria; Henselt; prizid; Die Meistersinger; Wagner; Toccata in F; Faulkner; Romances in D flat; Lemare; Andante (for strings); Mayde; Elevation; Guilmant; French March; Chorus; Religious March; Lohengrin; Wagner-Dubois; Jerusalem; the Golden Sparks; Overture to Oberon; von Weber.

Carence Eddy and other noted organists will follow during the season, and it is quite a distinction that Mr. McClellan should have been chosen for the dedication.

Ysaye's date in Salt Lake is set for Thursday evening next and the whole musical fraternity is agog with excitement over the event. Certainly nothing in our recent musical annals approaches the interest of this day. Under the whole program himself with the exception of a piano number by his accompanist, Mr. De Beve, and a feature of the evening will be the rendition of the famous Kreutzer Sonata by Beethoven. The program also includes Miss Agatha Berkhoel in Gounod, and other numbers by St. Saens, Teck-Houek, skt. Schumann, Ernst, and Vieuxtemps. Ysaye's appearance will form the only event of next week at the Theater.

Manager Pyper of the Salt Lake theater has been notified by Mr. S. M. Worthington that owing to unforeseen circumstances (traveling, etc., etc., etc., his voice, results of "sore throat and pain," etc., etc., etc.) has been necessarily postponed indefinitely; or words to that effect. Before his little duet with George Skelton, in which the latter took very much the primo part, Mr. Worthington took his mind, preternaturally in the theater, to the effect that he proposed to show an example of Salt Lake how a recital should be conducted. He would open their eyes, and en passant remarked that he had sold between 700 and 800 tickets at a dollar each. In view of some of the last few events, in which he has become involved, he added that the gentleman must have spoken carelessly, mentally. Mr. Worthington's studio in the Commercial club block has been emptied of its occupant, with the numerous portraits of him. About like self in a wide and assorted variety of styles, there is only one, namely, that he is here again. Mr. Worthington announced with some show of exultation after the publication of his little study in pedestal obituary to Mr. Skelton, that he would submit to it at ("Pride of the Lion").

One of Henry W. Savage's operatic productions next season may be an English grand opera by an American composer, Timon of Athens. The work of the D'Urberville's is to be used for the libretto by composer Elliott Schenk. The combination proved attractive enough to decide Mr. Savage on taking violin at the Denver Business men's excursion concert in the Tabernacle, and says that he was pleased with it more than ever. He will have Ysaye here the instrument when he arrives. It has now been varnished, as well as oiled, and looks like a genuine Cremona.

The Tabernacle organist has $50 worth of fine new organ music stacked up in his studio, which he will play at this season's recitals.

The St. Mark's organ in its new location looks much more impressive than when in its former stand in the east transept. But the church needs a new instrument, and there are hopes that some wealthy Episcopalian, either in Utah or elsewhere, will feel moved to present it with from $500 to $600, with which the old instrument can be rebuilt and made over into a really excellent one.

Tracy Cannon, assistant organist at the Tabernacle, officiated at yesterday afternoon's recital in the Tabernacle, and will play at both of the recitals during the coming week. At that time, Mr. Cannon is a promising young organist thoroughly in love with his art, and the audiences who attend will be pleased with his playing.

SHARPS and FLATS.

Some of the experts across the ocean now maintain that the best Scotch songs are really English; others think the point is not proven.

Pauline Hall has written the libretto for a musical review, "Frizzig, Frizzig Fandier," that will be produced in New York this summer by George W. Lederer. Maude Levy will probably write the music.

The concert pianists and singers of the present and future who hope to a chance with an elaborate production.

Orefice's opera "Chopin," which is founded on a number of themes taken from the life of the great Polish composer, has proved a success in Italy, was recently performed at Prague for the first time in German. Now one of the violists of the Vienna Opera has followed that Italian's example, and written a ballad entitled "Chopin's Dances," the music of which is based on Chopin's melodies. The first act plays in Warsaw, the second in Paris.

In Germany last year there were 87 performances of new operas that were given, from two to 15 performances, and 1000 revivals. Of the newer operas, however, the only one who has had a permanent success is Humperdinck, whose "Hansel and Gretel" maintains its popularity. It had 157 performances last year.

Although Fritz Kreisler does not wear his hair as long as some other musicians do, there are times when it is longer than necessary. On one of these occasions he was walking along a London street on a warm summer afternoon, when he met a woman who, having seen a number of hairs of his hair, told him to keep to the change and get his face washed. The boy retorted quickly: "Ah, there, you'd better keep it yourself and get your hair cut!"

Home is to lose its municipal military band, but in its place the city will support an orchestra of a hundred players, who will give concerts, some of which will be at popular prices. This same band will be led by the city, free of charge, to some of the smaller towns to enable a five-weeks opera season, a young Rome's solanum gets. A feature of the present season has been the performance by the Joachim quartet of Berlin, all of Beethoven's quartets.

"Lili Lehmann's Secret of the Veil" is the title of a 16-page brochure announced for immediate publication.

Lili Lehmann's Secret of the Veil

depends on her beauty in her native land in Warsaw. She is generous, and has, therefore, many pensioners among her numerous relatives. When she was married to the Prince, owing to her husband's title Count Rumford, political affiliations and opinions, she continued these allowances out of her income from her performances in this country. To provide against old age she purchased a large ranch in southern California, out of which she hoped to earn enough money to continue her benefactions, but so to concur upon the ranch for herself. But the ranch turned out a failure.

As she had not expected to play any more, especially in this part of the country, or in New York City, Mr. Paul, her manager, suggested that she should return to Europe, and hoped we could tempt her to give a farewell performance, especially as she had hosts of friends in New York City, who would be happy to see her again in one or two of her famous impersonations. As Mr. Paulowski himself was extremely desirous of appearing with her in the same bill, May 2 was decided upon for the date, as it enabled him to make his own farewell appearance with her, prior to his departure for Europe.

"The success, financial and artistic, of this idea has been great in the number of letters of sympathy and good will which have come from every direction. Outside of any other question, however, even though madame might not be in need, this tribute to the famous actress, for the magnificent work she has accomplished on the stage, makes it alone a worthy object of friendship, sympathy, and a certain sentiment of farewells."

"Among the first on her friends to urge this were Mr. and Mrs. Groves, Cleveland; Joseph Jefferson, Mr. and Mrs. Michael, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Flager, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Cowden, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Saint-Gaudens, Mr. Soothern, Miss Mansfield, Miss Julia Marlowe, Miss Maude Adams, Miss Ada Rehan, John Drew, William Gillette, Mrs. J. Pierpoint Morgan, Mrs. A. A. Low and very many others."

Friday in excellent health and spirits. At Friday evening's Mutual, President McQuarrie gave an interesting talk on his short vacation, referring particularly to the late conference held in Salt Lake City. The subject was of deep interest to his many listeners, as news direct from home is always appreciated by Gothamites. President McQuarrie left the following evening to begin his tour of the different conferences, reaching Pittsburgh and Allegheny City Sunday in time for services; he will be absent nearly four weeks, and will visit North and West Virginia conferences before returning. Mrs. McQuarrie was gladly welcomed by her family and numerous friends; her place in the concert house has been ably filled by Elder Porter, who very willingly shifts the burden.

"Dearly," the song "Sally Fisher sings so beautifully in "Sergeant Blue," is becoming immensely popular; wind-sheets also, according to the places I have filled with copies of it. Siegel and Cooper have a room in their music department entirely covered with the song, and altogether it is one of the hits of the piece.

Mr. Joe Howey, Jr., has been elected captain of the wrestling team for Columbia next year. He is the only student, so far, who holds a perfect Columbia record in wrestling bouts, and comes in for a good share of praise from fellow students and admirers, outside the college.

Manager Charley Ennis of the "Lazier" Steam Launch Co., is occasionally seen by friends here; though a busy man, he finds time to hunt up Salt Lake people and with his charming wife to exchange greetings with old westerers.

The household of Alfred Farrell, 223 Manhattan avenue, has been on the sick list for a brief time, though all are now improving and able to eat. Severe colds which have developed into grippe, however, are the main cause; like old New Yorkers, the family are taking refuge in the common complaint, the changeable climate.

At the "Criterion," 69 west Tenth Street, a veritable mecca of literary and artistic folk, may be found Mr. and Mrs. Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Richards, whose well known hospitality is a household word. Mr. Richards is steadily gaining ground in the musical world and his compositions are becoming more popular each day. "In Venice," one of his latest compositions, is a favorite with a professional Broadway favorite, and will be introduced by her in a coming production. Martha McCulloch Williams, the well known writer, and her husband, are among the closest friends of Mr. and Mrs. Richards. Mr. and Mrs. Williams are delightful people, and between One Hundred and Forty-fourth street, will entertain a large party of literary friends and musicians the coming week, to which Mr. and Mrs. Richards will be present.

Several Utahns were present at Sunday services, among them Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Frewin and their little daughter, who are on their way to England for a short trip, and to make a solo tour of the country for two years. Mr. Frewin addressed the Saints at afternoon services. Mr. Albert Scowcroft of Ogden is here in the interest of his business, and is located at the Imperial, Thirty-second and Broadway. Mr. Scowcroft will remain in the east two or three weeks.

Mrs. Nancy Black, formerly of American Fork, who has a daughter, Mrs. Mrs. Groves, now residing here, died at the home of her daughter, Miss McMillan, in Newark, N. J., on Saturday morning. She had been ill Monday, May 1. Many of the Brooklyn Branch will attend the services, for Sister Black was well known and greatly loved by the entire conference. President McFarlane will have charge of the services.

Under the able management of President Sadie G. Pack and her co-chairs, Mrs. J. R. Clark and Miss Ross of the Relief Society, a most interesting concert program was given in Haworth Hall Saturday evening. Miss Elton Thomas, Miss Irene Farnsworth and Pauline Hall, 218 West Eighty-eighth Street, furnished the musical part of the entertainment in a truly delightful manner. Miss Florence Gilliwalls and Miss Edna Taylor were happy in their recitations. The entire affair was a credit to our talent here, and the originators are entitled to a vote of thanks from the whole branch.

NO WIT IN MUSIC.

There is little room in music for humor and no room at all for wit. When I hear some one speak of the wit of a Chopin scherzo, I think: "My friend, you had better see a doctor at once, you are slightly deranged mentally." Those who are familiar with words can be humor in music, as, for example, the prolonged low notes Handel gives to Polyphemus when he asks for a hundred heads "for my capacious mouth." Mrs. Murphy owns a great amount of real estate in the region of Ronkonkoma. But the humor of Haydn and Beethoven in their works is largely lost to us. In the case of Haydn, when she dedicated to Mandu Adams when she decided to build there. She and Mrs. Adams have always retained the friendship formed in those remote days, and now that they are neighbors the tie grows closer.

Speaking of the old days and friends, it was quite a novelty to some friends who were walking down Broadway with Mrs. Adams to find that she had a book of poems by Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Richards, whose well known hospitality is a household word. Mr. Richards is steadily gaining ground in the musical world and his compositions are becoming more popular each day. "In Venice," one of his latest compositions, is a favorite with a professional Broadway favorite, and will be introduced by her in a coming production. Tuesday, May 2, will see the departure of Mrs. Annie Adams and Mrs. Isabel Pitts from the flat they have occupied all winter, 261 West Fifty-first street. Mrs. Adams will go direct to Lynnbrook, the home of Mrs. Belle Douglass Murphy, on Long Island, and will remain until next spring. Mrs. Pitts has concluded her visits to friends in New Jersey, when she will meet Mrs. Adams and together they will take up country life in earnest for the summer at Ronkonkoma, Mandu Adams' home. Mrs. Belle Douglass Murphy will be remembered by old time gossips as "Lillian's" company, that braved the western plains in the '60's and toured the coast in those early days when the gold fever was at its height. Saturday evening saw the departure of Mrs. John Sears, from Sioux City and Utah—the Sears-Squires household dissolved partnership. Mrs. Sears and Mrs. Squires will settle in Ogallala, Nebraska, return to old quarters, 34 West Fifteenth street, the house formerly kept by Miss Miller. Miss Lulu Snow will move to Miss Miller's sister's, on West Twenty-third street, near Ninth avenue.

Miss Clara Young made a brief visit to her parents last weekend, returning in a few days to Vassar, where she and her sister remain until June 1. YSAYE A MUSICAL TITAN.

UNDER this heading, the New York Herald describes a recent concert given by the famous violinist.

The last rehearsal of the Orpheus club will be held on the 18th inst., after which the members will rest from their vocal labors for the season.

Prof. Rubin Goldmark, the musical lecturer, will arrive in this city Monday next, and will give the first of five lecture recitals Tuesday evening following, on Das Rheingold, the first of the Niebelung tetralogy. There will be five recitals in all, that of Thursday evening included.

It was the return of Eugene Ysaye, the Belgian violinist, and his truly wonderful playing, that the public will remember. The crowded house fairly thundered with applause after his two concertos, and if Mr. Gericke's rules were less fragile than those of Medes and Persians, would have succeeded in his persistent demands for an added number.

There were moments when Mr. Gericke's playing seemed overfrigid, but the work was exquisitely finished. So also was a highly interesting orchestral arrangement by Felix Mottl of Liszt's legend, "The Sermone di San Francis di Assisi" to the Fifth Avenue. "There is money in the vaudeville circuit," is the professional cry, from legitimate to burlesque, and all are catching the fever.
