DUMB WAITER IS GREASED FOR USE

"American" Club Quarters Over Saloon Declared Ready For Occupancy.

SLATE IS BEING FRAMED.

Lippman for Mayor With McMillan On Deck-The Only Lively Spot in The Preliminary Skirmishes.

With the opening of headquarters today in Hicks' old pool hall, above a wholesale liquor house and a saloon in West Second street, the "American" party launched its municipal campaign of "reform." It is in these quarters that the oil will never be allowed to burn out. The lamp will be kept burning both day and night. Before the doors were thrown open, the last official act of George Hancock, who has charge of the headquarters, was to spread 15 cents' worth of axle grease on the wheels and cogs of the "dumb waiter."

The "patriots," among whom human ties appear to be tightening about this time, will gather Saturday night in a "red-hot" meeting of the "American" club and receive their instructions as ward heelers. The aspirants for office ward heelers. The aspirants for office are numerous and they have placed themselves in the hands of their devoted friends. Many of them say they are in the fight against their own wishes, but still they are laying plans. From the factions which have appeared of late, J. E. Darmer, the chairman, who draws $1,000 a month and looks wise, assisted by Frank I. Sefrit. C. J. Crabtree and W. M. Snyder, will have a troublesome time arranging a slate which will satisfy everybody. In these conniving factions can be seen these conniving factions can be seen the shadow of the long knife which has been already drawn and sharpened: It is one of the many nightmares which appears gruesome before Chairman Darmer. In what way he and his advisors, the personal representatives of Thomas Kearns, can weld these fac-tions together and ward off the slash of the knife which threatens them is their chiefest dilemma. This committee is feeling about groping in the dark, but so far there has been no light.

NARROWED TO TWO. The choice of a mayoralty candidate has narrowed itself to two men. They are Joseph Lippman and Henry G. Mc-Millan. Mayor Bransford has given his final word, it is said, that he will not accept the re-nomination. It was offered to him by Frank I. Sefrit, as a special commissioner from Thomas Kearns, with the party organ. Mayor Bransford. the party organ. Mayor Bransford, who is nationally a Democrat, is believed to be the logical candidate on leved to be the logical candidate on account of the situation at the present time. Bransford, it is believed, would poll the votes of many Democrats and independent voters. He has never allowed the "advisory committee" to dictate to him, which is one redeeming feature about his administration.

With Bransford out of the race, Lippman is the next choice and is now stronger than anybody. His friends, stronger than anybody. His friends, who are the rabid "barn-burners" among the party, have secretly laid out their plans. McMillan's friends say he is still in the race and he has a num-ber of stalwarts among his forces. J. B. Moreton, city recorder, has in-formed his friends that he will not ac-cept the re-nomination this year. More-ton is a friend of Bransford and when he found Bransford out of the race he made his final decision.

RIVES IN THE FIELD.

Ben S. Rives his chief deputy, is out for the nomination and is considered as strong as anybody. Rudolph Alf, city auditor, will accept the nomination again and Harper J. Dinniny, city at-city auditor, will accept the nomination again and Harper J. Dinniny, city attorney, has delivered himself again into the hands of his friends. Gideon Snyder, the city treasurer, is again after the nomination. As usual Darmer will run for city judge and S. P. Armstrong is talked of as his running mate for the other judgeship.

These have declared themselves, but there are a number of other aspirants who are not quite ready yet to jump into the ring. The camp followers are in numbers about headquarters and are looking for what they might get out of it, if the party wins.

The quarters are commodious and the best that the "American" party has ever had. The large hall has been partitioned off making several offices for the officials and leaving a good sized hall where meetings can be held. Chairman Darmer has an office in the front of the building. It can be left by the fire escape in a time of emergency. Then the treasurer who collects the commodiant to the asset of the can be deleased. gency. Then the treasurer who collects the campaign fund and doles out the expense money has an office with a burglar proof safe in it. The advisory committee has another room which is sound-proof. The "dumb-waiter" is the first thing you see when you enter the sound-proof. The dump-water is the first thing you see when you enter the hall. A platform has been built for the speakers and hard benches and chairs provided for the listeners, if there he are Simian With Gentry Show Thinks His Friend Gone.

There is much trouble in the camp of Gentry Brothers shows, which wil be here Monday and Tuesday. If there is any man in Salt Lake City who understands monkey lingo, his services are needed by Gentry Brothers. The story of all the trouble is this; With Gentry Brothers is a big monkey from the interior of South America. When he found himself cast America. When he found himself cast among animals new and strange he sought a friend. That friend he found in Ben, the biggest sheep in the trained herd with Gentry Brothers shows. Ben was kind to the stranger. Never once did he resent the monkey's desire to climb on his back and dig his fingers deep into his long wool.

Ben had quite a coat of it, and if he was proud of the decoration, his pride was secondary to that of the monkey was secondary to that of the monkey affinity. Daily these two creatures spent hours with each other. The sheep seemed to enjoy the association as much as did the simian.

In his new summer dress the monkey failed to recognize his old friend. The South American—who does not understand sheer shearing—parched himself on a cage and barked defiantly at the "new comer." Since he has failed to find the original heavy coated sheep he is pining away. Gentry Brothers are in dire need of an interpreter who can explain to the monkey that sheep shearing is a part of North American life. of North American life.

Mrs. J. H. Price Williams, who arrived in Salt Lake City on Saturday last for the purpose of locating her sister. Louise Price, whom she had not seen since 1886, was a pleased visitor to the Deseret News office this morning. On Wednesday she caused to be inserted in the columns of the "News" an advertisement soliciting information as to the whereabouts of her sister. Next day she received a call from parties who gave Mrs. Williams the address of her sister, who is now located in Nevada. Mrs. Williams took occasion to comrilment the "News" for the efficiency of its columns as an advertising medium, and extend thanks for a sysisting her and extend thanks for assisting her in the object of her visit to this sec-tion of the country. MARRIAGE LAWS ATTACKED.

The Rev. Wm. Thurston Brown Draws From Ibsen to Illustrate Points.

The Rev. William Thurston Brown,

As a text he took Ibsen's "Doll's House," and read the dialogue between Nora and Helmar to Illustrate the result of conventional matrimony. While these characters do not represent the average man and woman the speaker these characters do not represent the average man and woman, the speaker said that in his opinion it shows the real standing of a multitude of married couples. In a book published a year ago, "Together" by Robert Herrick, he took up what the author emphasized the right of every child of being well born.

In conclusion he declared that the home should be broader and that there should be more individualism. The marriages of the future he believes, will be based on intelligence where perfect freedom and equality will exist between men and women.

UTAH RIFLEMEN READY TO SHOOT

ITS CHANCE TO WIN IS GOOD.

Firing in Class C, for Which the Bronze Soldier of Marathon is Offered to the High Team.

The Utah rifle team, which arrived at the Camp Perry rifle range Wednesday evening is, according to a brief telegram received here, making great preparation for Monday's shoot in the international matches. The team has been afforded an opportunity to practise and, under the efficient coaching of Lieut. Ned Green, Fiftcenth infantry, who accompanied the team, has learned much of the technical side of rifle firing in competition.

The matches beginning Monday will be the greatest in the history of rifle firing in the United States. Utah fires in class C this year, and, although the team's chances are opposed by many teams composed of marksmen of experience, Gen. E. A. Wedgwood, who accompanied the team as its captain, is sanguine of its success when it faces the butts. The record of the team sent to Camp Perry last year was not one to be ashamed of, considering the fact that it was the first year for Utah in the competitions. This year's team is superior in a remarkable degree over the team sent to Camp Perry last year and had the advantage of an entire week's practise as a team before leaving the city. The team this year is also provided with star gaged rifles, which have been given exhaustive tests and which, under the skilful eye of Lieut. Green, have been put in the bestpossible working order. perience, Gen. E. A. Wedgwood, who possible working order.

Each team is composed of 12 men with three alternates and a complement of officers. The shooting is at 200 yards slow fire, 600 yards, 800 yards, 100 yards, 200 yards rapid fire and a skirmish run, and it is expected that this match and it is expected that this match will occupy all of Monday and Tues-day.
