The Tribune this morning announced that it was the purpose of the Mormon Church to erect a magnificent structure on the old Deseret News corner to be known as the Joseph Smith memorial building, and added that the fact had been confirmed yesterday. The truth is the fact was confirmed many months ago, having been published in the "News" as long ago as last April with particulars that were copied into the Tribune at that time.

A damaging blaze occurred at the nouse of Dr. R. C. Dalton about 9:39 by the explosion of a light. The place is at 252 East Third South and is oc-cupied by Dr. Dalton and Rev. Wil-yam Brodie and their families. Mrs. Brodie first discovered the blaze. An alarm was sent in and the apparetus from No. 1 responded. After the 're was out it was discovered that nearly all the furniture and clothing belonging to Dr. Daiton was destroyed. The loss is estimated at $700 on building and contents.

been customary. Elder George C. Lambert of the 231d quorum, presented a paper on the same subject. He averred that in the hands of a skillful Elder-one versed in its contents-the book was invaluable.

President Seymour B. Young spoke upon "Proprietles in Prayer and in the Atministering of Ordinances." He said we should seek for the spirit of praye. The Lord's prayer was an example of how to pray. Prayers should not become mechanical, nor should they be too long. "Lord teach us how to pray" should be on the lips and in the heart of every Latter-day Saint. In adminstering to the sick long prayers should not be used. The Savior set the example: "Thy faith hath made the whole," "Take up thy bed and walk.

"The Calling and Mission of a Seventy at Home" was presented by Elder Murdock of the 13th quorum. He said it was the same as abroad-to bear testimony to the truthfulness of the Gospel and to herald its restoration in these days. A returned missionary's first duty was to his quorum; then the auxiliary organizations of the Church. He opened by re-marking that it required considerable nerve on Chaplain Marvin's part to ask him to take the Dean's place, but then he had noticed in the Philippines that the chaplains had nerve and plenty of the chaplains had nerve and plenty of it on the battle field. The speaker then told how the chaplain of the Twentieth Kansas picked off a sharpshooter in a tree with his revolver, as the native was aiming at a wounded American soldier. From what could be learned, it appears that Hobbs does not love his mother-in-law to any alarming extent and when he went home last night and found her there he made some insulting remark. The used woman resented it and Hobbs, it is alleged, knocked her down on a bed and made threats of killing. The woman's screams caused some of the neighbors to send for the police. Complications Come to the Front in The Way of Legal Tangle.

Clarke took his place, and he "brought down question of an apparent conflict bequestion of an apparent conflict between certain statutes of this state, passed in 1896 and Sec. 1, Art, 10 of the Constitution of the United States is raised.

The section of the Constitution cited says that no state shall pass any law impairing the obligation of a contract. The history of the Folsom case shows that, in 1892, Folsom borrowed $7,500 from Bishop Raleigh, who died later, and William Asper and others are his executors, and as security gave a mortgage on certain real estate. The mortgage was foreclosed in 1897, and, after selling the property, a deficiency judgment for $2,200 was entered in favor of Bishop Raleigh, who had an execution issued against other property of Fol-som's. In 1896 the statutes of this state increased the exemption of the head of a family from $1,000 to $1,500, so Folsom claimed that the property levied upon to satisfy the deficiency judgment was exempt under the laws of 1896, and that that statute did not require a proson to establish a residence on the property in order to claim its exemp-

It was contended by the attorneys for Bishop Raleigh that Folsom could only claim exemption under the law that was in effect in 1892 as that was when the mortgage was executed. They fur-ther claimed that Folsom had never resided on the property in question so could not claim it as exempt. In the lower court Judge Hall rendered judgment in favor of the executors of the Raleigh estate.

The point to be decided by the supreme court is whether the laws of 1888 or those of 1896 are applicable to this case. A similar case was that of Kirkman against Bird, in which the subject matter was personal property instead of real property. The supreme court decided in that instance that the law in effect when the judgment was A telephone message was received at o'ice headquarters last night to the rendered was the one to determine the points in the case instead of the law which was in effect at the time the debt was contracted.
