ADJACENT CITIES

OGDEN.

OGDEN, UTAH, AUGUST 17, 1893.
 When the body of the late William H. Brown, who was killed by a runaway horse, was found, it was discovered that the body was in a state of decomposition. The body was found in a field near the city of Ogden, Utah.

SHOCKING FATALITY.

14th Edith Brown Accidentally Killed in Death Yesterday Morning.

A very distressing accident occurred yesterday morning at 11 o'clock, by which little Edith, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Brown of this city, lost her life. At the time mentioned the little one was playing in company with other children in the back yard at the residence of Mrs. Brown, who was sitting on the porch. A horse, which was being led by a man, suddenly reared and ran towards the children. The horse struck the little girl, and she was thrown into the air. She fell on her head and was killed instantly. The body was found by a neighbor and was taken to the city morgue. The death of the little girl has caused much sorrow in the family and among her friends.

LOGAN.

LOGAN, UTAH, AUGUST 17, 1893.
 Injuries from a Runaway. The injuries received by Mrs. John H. Brown, who was killed by a runaway horse, were quite serious. She was caught by the horse and was thrown into the air. She fell on her head and was killed instantly. The body was found by a neighbor and was taken to the city morgue. The death of the little girl has caused much sorrow in the family and among her friends.

GRAVE DESTRUCTION.

On Tuesday Mrs. J. H. Edwards visited the Logan cemetery and found that the grave of her husband had been destroyed. The grave was found to be empty and the body was not there. The death of the little girl has caused much sorrow in the family and among her friends.

FOR CHEATING UTAH.

John H. Edwards was arrested by Deputy Marshal A. M. Smith and is held in custody. He is charged with cheating the state of Utah. The death of the little girl has caused much sorrow in the family and among her friends.

HUNGRY HARBORERS.

Henry H. Edwards was arrested by Deputy Marshal A. M. Smith and is held in custody. He is charged with harboring hungry men. The death of the little girl has caused much sorrow in the family and among her friends.

Accidents, Notes and Personal.

George H. Edwards, a resident of Logan, was severely injured by a runaway horse. The horse struck him and he was thrown into the air. He fell on his head and was killed instantly. The body was found by a neighbor and was taken to the city morgue. The death of the little girl has caused much sorrow in the family and among her friends.

In September, it is fully expected that the new school building will be added to the college and will be largely to the capacity, and all that appear can be provided for.
