It is doubtful if any educational inrecitation rooms for training. The sanitary arrangements for heat, light and ventilation, are as perfect as science and experience can make them. A committee of the board of regents, with Architect Kletting, visited the best and most modern universities and normal school buildings in the United States, and our new University build-ings are the results of their observa-tion.

The removal of the Training school from the West building of the old University sight changes very much the patronage of the school (though children from any part of the city are admitted) and the new patrons in the eastern part of the city particularly, as well as the general public, are interested in the elucational facilities which the school offers. The "News," ever anxious of serving the public, ever anxious of serving the public, gladly gives the desired information.

The school provides for the training of about 450 children, embracing all of the eight grades of tha common schools, and also includes the kindergarien. The children from any part of the city are admitted free of charge to any of the eight grades, incharge to any of the eight grades, in-cluding manual training and all other special work of the school. A yearly registration fee of ten dollars is charged, for the kindergarten. The building is one of the best equipped normal training buildings in the Unit-ed States. The school is a part of the normal school of the State University, and is designed to present the best and latest approved educational practice. It is to serve as a model for the common schools of the State as well as a trainschools of the State as well as a training school. The Legislature has been generous in providing the University with the necessary equipment and generous in providing the University selection of expert teachers to carry with the necessary equipment and on the work of the school. Beside the material essential to putting into op-teen years of a child's life, they are likely never to be formed. Again the correlation of brain and hand in educafion are essential to the fullest development of both mind and body. The next training school has shops, tools, etc., for the successful application of this work in all grades of the school. DOMESTIC SCIENCE AND NATURE

In connection with book study sysmutic sense training given, as children of all sales of all their environment, viz, heat light, air, plant, animal, etc. Suitable laboratories are provided for this purpose. Work in domestic science, especially for girls, will be carried on. The question is asked, Will this work in normal training and domestic science lessen the efficiency of the regular grave work? efficiency of the regular grade work. The theory which is justified by actual practice answers that the contrary is true. By enriching the motor and sense experience of the child, you make easier for him the learning of the various formal studies of the school; for the reason that they are connected with the sector interests of the child. ed with the social interests of the child and with his real life in the world about him. The boy or girl who has shown strong mechanical or industrial tendencies will thus be conditions favorable to their develop-ment hence the school more nearly reaches the natural inclinations of every child.

CITY SCHOOLS

It is fast becoming recognized by the best educators of our country that manual training is an essential part of every child's education, from the standpoint of both mental power and practical skill. A strong sentiment is growing among parents so that they are now making a demand upon the public schools for such training.
