

JIM JEFFRIES AND HIS GREAT RECORD

No Doubt That the Champion Heavyweight Has Retired From Ring.

"DISCOVERED" BY DELANEY.

The Man Who Has Handled Many Champions Will Retire With the Big Boiler Maker.

A few evenings ago the "News" published a dispatch to the effect that Jim Jeffries, champion pugilist of the world, had made the announcement that he had retired for all time from the prize ring, and also from the stage. He has had enough of the roped arena and the footlights, and from all accounts the big boiler-maker is sincere in his determination. It is interesting to note that the champion crown would be placed on the head of Bob Fitzsimmons, and then there will be a merry scrap for it between such men as Fitz, Hart, Johnson and others.

But without discussing that question, it is interesting to note that the time to look for the fight has been set by the big fellow.

Jeffries was "discovered" by Billy Delaney, who has since been his manager, and who retired from pugilism also at this time. Delaney assumed him to be a champion, and he was defeated by Fitzsimmons in 1890, and followed it with victories over Sharkey, Corbett, Reuben Fustum, Corbett and Munroe—seven battles in five years.

Jeffries was born at Carroll, O., on April 12, 1875. He was taken to California when he was a young boy, and he was brought up in a boiler shop at Los Angeles. He is a heavy-set man, and he has a good deal of the boiler-maker's physique.

He was in 1890, and as Alcock Greig, a "saloon" man, with his upstairs boxing ring, was the headquarters for "pugilists," Jeff dropped in on Alcock, made known his wants and was fitted against one Dan Long, whom he dropped for the count in the second round.

Bill Delaney saw the husky boiler-maker go through his little struggle, and he overheard the making of a champion. When the Corbett-Fitzsimmons battle was on, Delaney induced Corbett to take Jeff into his camp and there is no doubt he learned a trick or two from the champion.

The month following the Corbett-Fitzsimmons battle at Carson City, March 17, 1891, Jeffries knocked out Van Dine in two rounds, and a month later he stopped Henry Baker in nine rounds. On July 17 he held Gus Rubin in a three-round draw, and on Nov. 20 he broke even with Joe Choynski over the same route.

He began really fighting in 1894, on Feb. 28 by defeating Joe Goldard in four rounds. On March 2 he beat Peter Jackson in three rounds, and exactly a month later trimmed Pete Everett in three rounds.

Tom Sharkey bumped against him on May 6 and was compelled to take the short end of the purse at the end of the 20th session.

All of these battles took place in California, and Delaney, thinking him good enough to beat all of the second-rounders, took him to New York and in the prize ring he was defeated by Bob Armstrong and Steve O'Donnell in 10 rounds each without leaving the ring. Jeff, however, was in no condition to fulfill his part of the contract, and made a miserable failure of it trying to knock out Bob Armstrong in the fifth round. Despite this, the referee awarded him the verdict, but Jeff's pugilistic stock soon dropped below par.

The contract was left on Aug. 5, and

There is satisfaction in using big Jim hid himself back to the coast and was practically forgotten until Bill Brady matched him to fight Fitzsimmons for the championship.

Jeffries' record, or rather his showing against Armstrong, did not warrant his fighting Fitzsimmons for the highest honor of the prize ring, and he entered the ring at Carson City on the night of June 9, 1890, he was the "frank outsider" in the fight. He won the fight in the eleventh round, and on Nov. 5 defeated Tom Sharkey in a fierce and hotly-contested seven-round battle.

On April 6, 1891, he knocked out Jack Pinnick at Detroit in the first round, and on May 11 he stopped Jim Corbett at Carson City in the third round.

He returned to California after that battle, and he was defeated by Hank Griffin at Los Angeles in four rounds, and a week later he knocked out his present opponent, partner, Joe Kennedy, in two rounds.

His next championship battle took place at Carson City, where he was defeated by Fitzsimmons in eight rounds, on Aug. 14, 1891, he beat Jim Corbett in 10 rounds.

He failed to stop Jack Munroe in battle in four rounds in December of the same year, but on Aug. 29, 1894, he made the ex-miner cry quits in less than five minutes.

It was this fight that was the last but not the least of his career, and he was without a black mark against him, and as the last heavyweight champion, engaged in more championship battles in a shorter space of time than has any heavyweight in the history of pugilism.

FITZ AND SCHRECK HERE.

Famous Fighters Accept the Big Made by Willard Bean.

It is reported that when bids were opened in Chicago for the fight between Fitzsimmons and Mike Schreck, the offer made by Willard Bean was at once accepted. It is now certain that the round bout would take place here.

The preliminary details are to be arranged immediately. It is quite certain that the fight will take place in the arena of the Salt Palace here, track July 4th in the date set for the battle.

In the meantime Willard Bean is going ahead with preparations for the contest between Jimmy Fiske and Jack O'Keefe, on the 12th of June. It is understood that the fighters are now on their way to Salt Lake.

NELSON WAS OUTPOINTED.

Little Abe Attell Had Better of Six Round Go With Him.

Philadelphia, May 22.—Hastings Nelson of Chicago made his first appearance in the prize ring in this city tonight and proved a rather easy proposition for Abe Attell of San Francisco. It was the old story of the finished boxer against a fighter. Attell's cleverness proved too much for Nelson, and in the first four of the six rounds of the fight the Californian jabbed the other man at will. In the fifth round Attell's strength began to wane, but he was able to hold Nelson easily.

It was a good fight from start to finish. The fight started in it looked as though Nelson would not last the six rounds, but what he lacked in cleverness he made up in power and ability to take punishment. All through the first four rounds Attell jabbed Nelson in the face and in the fifth round he went away without receiving a blow. In the second and third rounds, however, when Nelson led, he caught Attell several times hard on the jaw without doing any damage.

In the latter part of the fourth Nelson sent Attell to the floor, but he was on his feet in an instant. The fifth round was a close one, and Nelson was on his feet in the sixth. In the latter part of the sixth, however, Attell recovered himself and was hammering Nelson with rights and lefts when the bell sounded.

J. P. Ketchum, fireman on the R. G. R. R., residence 372 1/2 south Main St., says: "Starting with a tired out feeling just across the river, the symptoms gradually developed until it became a regular thing to have backache. The constant shaking, jolting and jarring of the train aggravated the complaint and with the passing of time it grew worse and I was compelled to look for something to bring relief. An advertisement about Doan's Kidney Pills attracted my attention just then and I went to the P. J. Hill Drug Co. store for a box. The treatment gradually lessened the aching, until it disappeared. This should be of considerable value to those who suffer in Salt Lake City from backache."

Up to the time the men stepped into the ring it looked as though they would not meet. There was a hitch over weighing in. Attell weighed in at 125, but Nelson refused to get on the scales, claiming that his contract did not call for it. Attell refused to go on, and the management decided to put on Kid Zerman of Chicago. Attell finally consented to fight. Nelson looked to weigh about 131 to 132 pounds.

MEETING OF AUTOISTS.

Discussed Plans for Decoration Day Parade—They Want Good Roads.

There was a meeting last evening at the Salt Lake Auto company's office on State street, between car owners and chauffeurs, for the purpose of discussing plans for the big parade on Decoration day. They will join with the veterans on that day, and it is expected that at least 50 machines will be in line for the occasion.

During the meeting the question of good roads was brought up for discussion, and the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the Salt Lake Automobile club is in perfect harmony and accord with the good roads movement, which is being inaugurated in this state, and will use their efforts and influence in furthering this purpose.

Tomorrow afternoon at Walker's field the Reillyites and the Infants will open a series of five games, and the fight between the two teams will be for last place in the percentage column. The Reillyites are here and in practicing faithfully for the opening game. The home team is in good shape and the boys are learning something from acting manager, Tommy Lewis, who has charge of the team while Reilly is in Los Angeles.

The Infants have been strengthened considerably and they are confident of giving the locals the worst of it in this week's series.

Of course the home guards have different ideas. They were out for a good hard practice yesterday and this afternoon, and today says the Infants will be lucky if they get away with a single game. Eddie Hahn has been signed for the outfield, and is expected to form a good battery with Hahn is there with the stick work and is regarded as a splendid fielder.

HORSES FOR GUARD.

Captain Webb Securing Suitable Animals for Future Duty.

Captain Webb of the battery has been quietly, but effectively perfecting arrangements with owners of horses in this city and in the suburbs for the use of desirable animals when the command is ordered out for duty. In years past, suitable animals have been difficult to get, and the sad spectacle has more than once presented of horses so hands high over and weighing some thirty like a ton, arranged in a line to a gun carriage with the youthful artillerymen on their backs almost lost to view, while perhaps immediately ahead were horses not much over 12 hands high. Of course, it was the best that could be done, but it "looked like all possessed," and when the regular artillerymen caught sight of this novel spectacle, they almost fell off their caissons and gun carriages—the shock was so great.

Captain Webb has tired of this sort of thing, and by the arrangement he has now perfected, the battery will no longer be a laughing stock on account of its equine personnel, and the horses in use next Decoration day will present an appearance more like those in use by the regulars.

OLD SORES OFFENSIVE- DANGEROUS

Nothing is more offensive than an old sore that refuses to heal. Patiently, day after day, it is treated and nursed, every salve, powder, etc., that is heard of is tried, but does no good, until the very sight of it grows offensive to the sufferer and he becomes disgusted and morbid. They are not only offensive, but dangerous, because the same germ that produces cancerous ulcers is back of every old sore. The cause is in the blood and as long as it remains the sore will be there and continue to grow worse and more destructive. The fact that thousands of old sores have been cut out and even the bones scraped, and yet they returned, is indisputable evidence that the blood is diseased and responsible for the sore or ulcer.

Some years ago my blood became poisoned, and the doctor told me I would have running sores for life, and that if they were closed up the result would be fatal. Under this discouraging report I left off their treatment and resorted to the use of S. S. S. Its effects were prompt and gratifying. It took only a short while for the medicine to entirely cure up the sores, and I am not dead as the doctors intimated I would be, neither have the sores ever broken out again. JOHN W. FORDIS, Wheeling, W. Va., May 28, 1903.

Valuable time is lost in experimenting with external treatments, such as salves, powders, washes, etc., because the germs and poisons in the blood must be removed before a cure can be effected. S. S. S. cleanses and purifies the circulation so that it carries rich, new blood to the parts and the sore or ulcer heals permanently. S. S. S. not only removes the germs and poisons, but strengthens the blood and builds up the entire system by stimulating the organs, increasing the appetite and giving energy to the weak, wasted constitution. It is an exhilarating tonic, aids the digestion and puts every part of the body in good healthy condition. Book on the blood, with any medical advice wished, without charge.
