

Enterprise, some four and a half miles from Mountain Green; and about five miles further on, the portion of Morgan City which lies on this side of the river, is reached. A few minutes after leaving Morgan City, the road and the river are in a narrow gorge of the Cañon which leads into

ROUND VALLEY.

In this little valley, which is more oblong than round, the line keeps the same side of the river, but there will probably be some hard work at the extremity that leads into it, at the jutting point where the gorge is the narrowest; but it is not all located here, and I cannot speak understandingly. There were some three camps in Round Valley, that of the Mill Creek Ward, that of Bishop Hickenlooper, 6th Ward, S. L. City, and another, the name of which I did not learn. When passing out of this little valley going upstream, we reached a very narrow part of the cañon and immediately after came to the site of

THE TUNNELS.

Of which there will be at least two, probably three. The wagon road suddenly turns to the left and winds out and in, following the course of the river, while three mountains over-lap—or rather dove-tail into—each other. The line will have to be carried through these and over the river, which it will cross several times. The two tunnels are respectively, 300 and 500 feet long; and the third will be 300 feet long either a tunnel or a cut 60 or 70 feet deep; and apparently all will be through the solid rock. From Round Valley, to the south-easterly end of the "Narrows" above Lost Creek, is the heaviest work on President Young's contract. Bishop Sharp expects to be at the heavy cutting above Round Valley this evening with 100 men, to commence work. For a portion of the way here the bottom widens out, and the construction will be very easy, the line again running on the same side of the river as before, which it keeps up to the mouth of Echo. About a mile before arriving at the point where Lost Creek empties into Weber is reached. From the names given to places, and natural curiosities, it might be inferred that his satanic highness had had considerable business in this locality at one time. But we will let that pass. This is a natural curiosity for a rock, and has no connection with the railroad, other than being of interest close by the line of construction. A huge line of rock runs down the abrupt side of the mountain, with a deep groove in the centre, looking like the descending arm of a vast centrifugal railroad. How it could have been formed in its present shape will probably be told, when the secrets of the formation of a thousand equally wonderful natural curiosities are made known.

THE DEVIL'S RUN

TO THE MOUTH OF ECHO.

From Lost Creek about two miles up, the river passes through a narrow gorge, called par excellence "the Narrows." the surveying of this portion has had to be principally done in boats. As the wagon road here leaves the river, and winds around the base of the mountain, passing Lost Creek settlement and going over a high ridge beyond it, I could not see the line of road, but was informed, and can readily believe it, that there is considerable heavy work in passing through this gorge. From this point to the mouth of Echo, some six or seven miles, the work is not very difficult, and is being prosecuted with vigor. There are quite a number of camps scattered along the distance.

Correspondence.

SPRINGTOWN, July 14, 1868.

Editor Deseret News:—In a late issue of your valuable paper, I discovered that a Chicago writer gives to the late Hon. S. A. Douglass the credit of drafting the bill prohibiting polygamy in the Territories; but that the bill did not become a law until after the death of its framer.

The above statement brought, most vividly, to my mind a conversation between Joseph Smith, the Prophet, and the honorable Senator, at Carthage, Ill., if I mistake not, in the year '42 or '43, to which conversation I listened with much interest. The Prophet said to Mr. Douglas, among many other things: "You will aspire to the Presidential chair; this is all right, and you have my good wishes for your success: But," continued the prophet, "Mr. Douglas, I want you to remember this one thing: If you ever lift a hand or a voice against the Latter-day Saints, you will never be the President of the United States." It appears that Mr. Douglas did raise a hand against the Latter-day Saints by framing the above mentioned bill, and that he did lift a voice against us in his Springfield speech recommending the "cutting out of the loathsome ulcer," and it would almost seem that an untimely death vetoed his rapid strides up to the temple of fame. The prophets words were fulfilled, and the nation mourned the loss of one of its most able and shrewd politicians, and possibly one of its wisest statesmen.

Mormonism is a difficult question for the children of this world to dispose of. God is in it, and whoever attempt its overthrow, whether as individuals or a political party will, like Mr. Douglass, die before they gain the honor they seek. Does any one think that the railroad will confound the sun, moon or stars, or any other work of the Creator? All men may yet find out that Paul spoke truly when he said: "Ye can do nothing against the truth, but for the truth."

ORSON HYDE.

SALT LAKE CITY, July 21, 1868.

Editor Evening News:—I have travelled from the South up as far as Ogden, and have carefully noted the crops, and my judgment is confirmed—that fair average crops may be expected. I rode around Ogden, through her many shaded lanes, enjoying vastly the scenes of promised plenty. Millions of grasshoppers were on the wing, seemingly destined for the Lake shore, where their companions lie in heaps in a due state of preservation.

I noticed among the many solid improvements at Ogden, Bishop West's fine rock flouring mill, beautifully and substantially built, containing four run of stones, with ample provisions for custom, merchant work and storage. It cost $65,000. I paid a visit also to the Excelsior Woollen Mills, owned by Randall, Pugsley & Co.; they are in every way worthy of their name. I spent Sunday in the Tabernacle, occupying the nice, clean, carpeted and sofaed stand, and spoke to the people of the comfortable things of the Kingdom, to me a pleasure, which was enhanced by the sweet tones of the organ and choir.

Elder Jesse C. Little was present, and, with his indomitable will, was pioneering the way of his Great Manufacturing Association, capital $50,000, in shares at $50, thus putting this essential scheme of co-operation within the reach of thousands. Success must attend Bro. Jesse. During his discourse, so eloquently and reasonably urged, he exhibited some fine specimens of wool sent from Kentucky by Bro. Laney, now there on a mission. I thought if the people could only be induced to change the order of their stock raising and adopt the plan of Isaiah, (see chap. 7 verses 21 and 22,) we would have fine wool and butter plenty. I am told that in Kentucky they will get sixteen pounds of wool at a clip from one sheep; here I have seen nearly sixteen sheep clipped to get one pound of wool, and there is also a great scarcity of butter considering the number of cows milked by a family.

Great preparations are being made to celebrate the 24th. I visited the Sunday Schools here and found them somewhat deficient in books and "Rewards of Merit." I thought if the Superintendent could have had but a glance of your choice stock and knew the low prices at which you are selling them, the little folks would soon have the incentive. Some, I know, object to this giving "Rewards," but I have seen us old children like a present or reward as an incentive to endure to the end.

I was impressed here, as elsewhere in my travels, with the great increase of waters. It seemed to me as though the denizens of the low streets in several of our cities would yet be glad to get on the bench, for the water marks are gaining that way. It is a great treat to travel up through Davis and Weber counties; the impression you get is that the people live at home, and you feel as though they know and appreciate it.
