UTAH STUDENTS NOW IN EUROPE
George Thomas of Logan Brings a Good Account of Their Work.
ALL PROGRESSING NICELY.
Where They Are and What They Are Doing—Heehee State May Well be Proud of Its Sons and Daughters.
George Thomas of Logan has just returned from Europe where he has been for the past two years studying political science, following a course in Harvard, where he secured a master's degree. While absent his time was spent in the universities of Halle, Paris and Berlin, from the former of which he emerged some months ago with the degree of Ph. D., which he will likely use to advantage in one of the many institutions of learning in his own state.
Mr. Thomas speaks highly of the success attending Utah students in that land. He says Hugh Doughty is developing wonderfully and making splendid progress in his chosen field. For a time Mr. Doughty studied with Heilmann in Berlin, also in the Staats conservatory, but he is now in Paris under Bouly, the famous teacher. Last year he appeared in the conservatory and received favorable mention for the work done. He will likely stay in Paris another year studying opera and the piano.
Miss Arvilla Clark, says Mr. Thomas, is doing exceedingly well with Heilmann. She is also studying opera, with Rothmehl, who is said to be the best opera teacher in Berlin. Miss Clark appeared at the Theater of the West last May in "Aida," and received an ovation and high praise from those who witnessed the production. Her stage work was pronounced excellent and when her voice training is complete and there is no reason why she should not do well in this line of work.
Of Miss Mattie Read of this city Mr. Thomas has the same words of praise. Miss Read recently studied in London. "News," passed her first examination in the Staats conservatory a short time ago, and received the compliment that she played like a musician, indicating that she should have a whole new line of high praise from those who witnessed the production. Her stage work was pronounced excellent and when her voice training is complete and there is no reason why she should not do well in this line of work.

He was appointed second lieutenant in the Tenth U. S. cavalry in 1867, and his promotion was steady.

THE BOY WAS GAME.
Walter Nielson Comes Out Conqueror in an Exciting Runaway.
For sheer pluck and grit Walter Nielson, the 14-year-old son of H. P. Nielson, who operates a store on the corner of Third North and Third West streets about fills the bill. Walter drives a big bay horse. He generally takes a chum or two along with him on his rounds. Yesterday he had the seven-year-old son of Engineer Sorenson of the Oregon Short Line as his comrade. Walter undertook to give the boy a good time so he started the horse or the rope. Then he found that he could not stop the animal. The sprinkling wagon does not visit Third West very often, so when H. P. Nielson and Dave Margetta, who happened to be in the store at the time, saw a big cloud of dust coming down the street from First North and heard the yells of the two youngsters as they vainly tried to stop the animal they concluded that there was something doing. Both men got to the middle of the street as the runaway shot past. Both made a dive for the horse's head and both landed on their backs in consequence. At this point the frightened horse took to the tracks of the Salt Lake & Ogden and the way these two youngsters bumped over the ties was a caution. Three times the horse fell and a woman rushed out and endeavored to throw her apron over the horse's head, but apparently he had a date in Ogden and was going to get there on schedule time. By the time the "jummy" horse in sight things became interesting.
The boy put one arm around little Sorenson and hauled him up on to the seat and told him to crawl to the rear end and drop off. "If you see I am going to get killed," "cause I'm going to stay with her." Instead of doing as he was bid, the Sorenson boy stood straight up on the seat and took a high dive off into the road. Everybody who saw the affair, and by this time half the neighborhood was out, expected that the youngster had broken his neck, but he came up with a badly cut face. In the meantime Walter was staying with his horse, while the engineer of the "jummy" stopped his train and called the youngsters. Before reaching the exit in the vicinity of Eighth North, Walter stopped the horse and

THE NEW COMET IN SALT LAKE
Most Recent Visitor to the Solar System Photographed for the Deseret News by Astronomer Rordame—Where the Stranger is and How to Find It.

THE BORELLI COMET.

HOW TO FIND THE NEW VISITOR.
Above is a good half tone of the Borelli comet whose advent was noted in the "News" last week. The picture is from a photograph made last night by Alfred Rordame, a well known photographer and scientist of this city, through a large telescope, and was successfully developed this morning. The comet can be seen with the naked eye, though, of course, a view through a telescope is more satisfactory, though opera glasses will do. This new visitor of the solar system will be found, according to the Lick Observatory astronomers, about six degrees southwest of the bright star Alpha Cygni—the brightest and most northern member of this constellation and a star of the first magnitude.
The constellation, popularly known as the Swan, lies not far to the east of Vega, also a first magnitude star, and also twice as far almost directly south as the star Deneb, which is also known as comet B, being the second body of that kind discovered that year, and the same was chronicled by the scientific journals as Rordame's comet. It was photographed later by Prof. Hussey of the Lick observatory and published in various periodicals. Mr. Rordame is an enthusiastic student of astronomy.
rapidly swelling in size, the celestial wanderer ought to be easily recognized. The two prominent tails, already observable in the comet, will grow, possibly, with the increase of 19 miles, and the comet reaches a perihelion, which it will do next month, but when it leaves the solar system and plunges again into the cold depths of space these striking appendages will be largely lost to the retreating comet.
The photograph by Mr. Rordame was taken with exposures of 17.24 and 20 minutes, with an interval of 19 minutes, and the guiding telescope being kept on the nucleus of the comet leaves the stars as trails on the plate. This accounts for the series of circles. Mr. Rordame discovered a comet in 1901, and it may very soon be known as comet B, being the second body of that kind discovered that year, and the same was chronicled by the scientific journals as Rordame's comet. It was photographed later by Prof. Hussey of the Lick observatory and published in various periodicals. Mr. Rordame is an enthusiastic student of astronomy.

H. P. Kumpke, Druggist, Leighton, Ala., writes: "One of my customers had a child, which was sick, and threw up all food, and retained nothing on its drive off into the road. Everybody who saw the affair, and by this time half the neighborhood was out, expected that the youngster had broken his neck, but he came up with a badly cut face. In the meantime Walter was staying with his horse, while the engineer of the 'jummy' stopped his train and called the youngsters. Before reaching the exit in the vicinity of Eighth North, Walter stopped the horse and
