BOY SMOTHERED IN CAVING SANDBANK

Little Harry Buchney Met Death
While Playing in Sand Pit
Near Weber River.

GLAD DAY FOR WEBER OLD FOLKS

James Robertson Held Up—Boy Falls
From Tree—Two Injured on Cut-off.

Harry Buchney, a twelve-year-old boy, son of W. Buchney, was smothered to death Saturday night about 3 o'clock by a sand bank falling on him, covering him several feet, so that before assistance could be had he was dead. The unfortunate boy went with two companions to the sand bank down near the river bed, on Thirty-third street, where they spent the latter part of the afternoon digging caves in the sand. Harry was just finishing his cave, when suddenly the earth overhanging him slid down, covering him completely. His brother ran to the scene of the accident, but a short distance away and informed him of the cause. The old man responded and with a shovel quickly dug the boy out, but it was too late, life was extinct. Everything was done to revive him, but without avail. His parents were notified and had the remains removed to their home, 3205 Washington avenue. They have only recently come to Utah from England, and the death of their son, who was a bright little boy.

BANK CLERK HELD UP.

James Robertson, a clerk in the First National bank, was held up and assaulted shortly after midnight Saturday by a lone highway. Mr. Robertson had been working late on the books at the bank preparing for the first of the month. On arriving at his home on Jefferson avenue he was about to open the gate and enter, when the robber placed a gun in his face with the usual command to hand up his hands. Robertson was not quite as quick as the hold up thought he should be and was dealt several heavy blows on the head with the pistol. The man then went through the pockets and relieved him of $4 in cash and an open face silver watch. The police were immediately notified and a fair description of the man furnished, but they were unable to locate him.

INJURED ON CUT-OFF.

Frank Gray, an American, and Nick Panchuk, a Greek, sustained serious injuries while operating a steam shovel at Promontory Point on the Lucin cut-off Saturday. While the shovel was being operated in the air, the chain broke and flying fragments struck the men in the back and head. The victims arrived at the Ogden General hospital late last night. Their injuries are thought not to be fatal.

INJURED BY FALLING FROM TREE.

William Henderson, son of City Surveyor H. Henderson, aged twelve years, met with a painful accident Saturday evening by falling out of a tree while looking for birds' nests. The boy had climbed the tree looking for birds' nests and was out on a small limb about twenty feet from the ground when it broke, precipitating him with considerable force to the gravel sidewalk below. He received a severe scalp wound, both wrists were sprained, also an ankle, and he was otherwise badly injured. Some passers by saw him fall and quickly picked him up and carried him to his home, where a physician called for his injuries, and he is now getting along nicely.

about and searching for the food accompanied the feeding; there is no doubt that the exercise is a substantial aid to the digestion and assimilation of the food.

A thoroughly cooked "Johnny Cake" makes a most acceptable food for young chicks, and we give a receipt for one from the "Reliable Poultry Journal." Two quarts of bran (or shorts), two quarts of coarse cornmeal, one quart of wheat middlings, one half quart of clean beef scrap, one handful of good chicken grit. Rub these together dry, with from two to four infertile eggs, and mix all together with just enough skin milk to moisten. Rub the whole into a moist, crumbly mass with the hands, then put in a well greased pan (a roasting pan about three inches deep is best) and press it down hard to stick the cake together. Bake this in a slow oven till thoroughly cooked (from four to six hours), then it will crumble easily and has no stickiness or toughness about it. Thorough baking is most important.

A popular food with some chicken raisers for the first week or two is either cracker crumbs or dried bread crumbs, thoroughly mixed with finely chopped hard-boiled eggs, and a very little (or no) moisture added. But hard-boiled eggs are a very concentrated food, and there should be at least four or five times as much cracker crumbs or bread crumbs as egg. Pinhead oatmeal or rolled oats makes a superior food for young chicks, and where pinhead oatmeal can be bought by the barrel (or in bulk) at a cost of not more than three cents a pound, it is an excellent and economical food. The little chicks should be fed five times a day, say every two or two and a half hours, for the first four weeks, and then only three times a day. The grain mixtures should be thrown into scratching litter, to promote the exercise of scratching. If chicks are fed a soft food all the food not eaten within forty minutes should be removed to prevent its souring in the hot sun. Chicks need a variety of food. After the first few days they should have two or three feeds a day of cracked wheat and the cracker corn. There are now being sold in the market prepared chick-foods, consisting of a number of seeds and grains, so proportioned as to furnish, with the addition of meat meal or beef scrap, a balanced ration. These chick-foods are giving most gratifying results in sturdy growth of chicks. Broiler raisers estimate that it requires eleven to twelve weeks to grow a two-pound broiler, but a year ago a Massachusetts poultry raiser grew White Wyandotte chicks to weigh two pounds apiece at eight weeks old, and these good results were due to the use of a prepared chick-food consisting of all dry seeds and grains with the addition of a good meat meal.

Within a few years the "dry-feeding" method is being taken up by some of the most progressive poultrymen, and the resulting saving in labor combined with most gratifying results in growth of chicks and egg-yield of pullets and hens, is convincing proof of a great benefit to the poultryman. Dr. Notagie, of Goshen, Mass., is an earnest advocate of dry-feeding, and in the community where he lives he is spoken of as the man that feeds his chicks but twice a week. We have had a high authority in the matter of dry-feeding, and we have seen the results of his method. I visited Dr. N. last December, and had great curiosity to see the birds that had been raised on dry-feeding. The pullets were splendidly plump, were well rounded out and plump looking as yearling hens, and were laying, in spite of the zero weather of winter. They laid about 150 eggs, and from Dec. 1 to Feb. 15 the 250 birds gave the doctor 4,800 eggs, which is an average of almost nineteen and a half eggs apiece—and that in an Arctic winter! The birds were all healthy and vigorous. From a letter of Dr. Notagie to the Reliable Poultry Journal, describing his method of feeding we quote:

"Looking at the subject of feeding from the beginner's standpoint, I am certainly convinced that fewer mistakes are made in the feeding of chicks than in the feeding of chickens. The reason for this is that chicks are raised to a healthy maturity by feeding dry grains and beef scraps (or meat meal) from feed boxes constantly filled, provided the chicks can run at will. There is no need of rushing and tramping crowds of chicks, but a contented and lively set of youngsters that are plump and happy. They will find time to dig holes in the dirt under the feed boxes, to pull at the roots of the weeds, to pull at the roots of the weeds, to pull at the roots of the weeds, to pull at the roots of the weeds, to pull at the roots of the
