Governor Bartlett Dead.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 12.—Governor Washington Bartlett died at the home of his cousin, Mrs. Dr. Buckel, in Oakland, at 5 o'clock this afternoon. The governor has been in a critical condition for a month, and death has been expected any day during the past two weeks. His death resulted from a chronic affection of the kidneys.

Gov. Bartlett was a native of Savannah, Georgia, and was 63 years old. He removed to California in 1849, and has lived here ever since. He always took an active part in politics, and had filled a number of offices, among them being that of mayor of San Francisco for two terms, viz., between 1882 and 1886. He was elected governor of the state on the democratic ticket in Nov., 1886. He will be succeeded in office by Lieut. Gov. R. W. Waterman, who was elected at the same time on the republican ticket.

Barratry.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 12.—The American sealing schooner San Jose arrived here to-day from the Arctic and is now anchored in the harbor awaiting the action of the United States authorities. She was seized in Behring Sea in August by the revenue cutter Richard Rush, and after her papers and skins were taken away she was ordered to go to Sitka. Instead of obeying orders, Capt. John S. Lee headed for this port. A warrant has been sworn out by Lieut. Howison, of the revenue cutter J. F. Hartley, for the arrest of Lee on the charge of barratry.

WASHINGTON.

McGarigle's] Extradition — Experimenting with Sugar, Etc.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Secretary Bayard has not yet returned to the city. No confirmation or denial can be obtained from him as to the correctness of the assertion of Sir James Ferguson, in the House of Commons, that orders have been issued from Washington that no more vessels engaged in the

in the waters of Alaska are to be seized for illegal fishing, and that those seized have been ordered released pending negotiations at Washington. It is suggested by a gentleman acquainted with the case that the statement may have been made by Sir James Ferguson to meet political exigencies. The sealing season is about ended and this fact may account for the fact that the revenue cutter Rush had make no recent seizures.

The application of the governor of Illinois for the extradition of McGarigle, the fugitive Chicago ex-warden, which has been received at the Department of State, will be reserved for the special consideration of

when he returns to the city. A legal point of gravity is involved in the application and its consideration may, therefore, occupy some time.

Secretary Whitney has invited members of the Senate and House naval committee and a number of other persons interested in the subject to go down New York Bay on a dispatch boat to witness the test of a dynamite gun on the 20th inst., when an effort will be made to destroy a schooner with dynamite shells.

Commissioner Coleman has just returned from an official visit to Fort Scott, Kansas, where the department of agriculture is conducting experiments in from sorghum by the diffusion process and expresses himself as being delighted with the results obtained already. He says:

The experiment consists in a trial of the new process in making sugar in this country, which dispenses entirely with the costly and ponderous mills steam engines, etc., and uses a far simpler and less expensive method for extracting the juice, by which all saccharine matter is obtained instead of about half as heretofore. The new process is called the diffusion, or saturation process. The cane is cut into chips and passed into a battery of 12 cells, each holding a

TON OF CHIPS,

Hot water is applied which rapidly exhausts the saccharine matter and, so thoroughly that there is scarcely a trace of it left. The cells are entirely practical, being speedily filled, manipulated and emptied, one man attending to the entire operation. The mill at Fort Scott is capable of working up, every twenty-four hours, one hundred and fifty tons of cane, making therefrom 18,000 pounds of sugar or more. A yield of from ten to fifteen tons of cane per acre was being secured which would produce, by this process, from 1,200 to 1,500 pounds of sugar. This sugar is worth, by the carload, 5¼ cents per pound, nor is this all. To every ton of cane, aside from the sugar in it, there are some ten or twelve gallons and also the seed raised upon the cane, amounting to about five bushels per acre, and just as good for feeding all kinds of stock as Indian corn. Indeed, the seed, it is estimated, will pay for raising the cane, which is a merit possessed by no other sugar plant. The department is also conducting manufactory experiments in New Jersey. The results of these experiments upon the country will, I believe, be most beneficial. Our nation is paying $100,000,000 annually to the sugar producers of other countries, and if we have demonstrated that we can profitably produce it, it is a matter of the highest importance to the country. It will not only keep this money at home, but it will save to our people $50,000,000 annually in customs duties. I can not see why our people should not go to

MAKING SUGAR.

A complete sugar factory will cost about as much as a flouring mill and can be run at a great profit, according to the present experiments. Farmers are glad to raise cane at two dollars per ton, and at that it pays better than other farm products. I look upon these experiments as being as important to this country as the invention of the cotton gin. They have demonstrated that we have a sugar plant that can be grown and made profitably into sugar, south of the thirty-ninth parallel (out of the reach of the early frosts) to the Gulf of Mexico, and that this country can and will be independent of every other nation for sugar. This new process will be tried on sugar cane."

In regard to the purchase of bonds by the government

said to-day to a representative of the Associated Press:

"Criticism upon the action of the Treasury Department for refusal to accept any of the offers of bonds last Wednesday, it seems to me, is inconsiderately made. In the first place the offers were higher, considering the lapse of time they had to run, than they had heretofore been, and did not present as favorable terms to the government. In the next place, the number offered was much less than on former occasions. These facts may well give rise to the inference that people holding the bonds preferred them to the money. The government wants to

to answer the requirements of law relative to the sinking fund, and it is willing to advance the interest on such bonds as are not bought, and thus supply any immediate demand there may be for money. These two movements of the Treasury Department are calculated to release a good deal of money and turn it into business channels if required; but they are both executive acts and must be performed in regard to the interests of the government as one of the parties to the transaction. There is no disposition to drive a sharp bargain with the holders of the bonds, but it will not do to say there is no side to the bargain except that of seller and holder, and that these bonds must be bought and the

as their interest alone dictates. Competition offered in the sale of bonds is the just way to fix their price, and will be fairly pursued as long as it seems to protect against an undue advantage on the part of the sellers and results in offers which upon business considerations ought to regulate their value as between private parties. The government ought not to be expected, regardless of any public purpose, to identify itself with private business or speculations.

Railroad Row.

PORTLAND, Sept. 12.—An Oregonian special from Garfield, Whitman County, Washington Territory: A gang of 75 laborers from the Spokane & Paluse Railroad construction force, yesterday morning tore up the O. R. & N. Company's track and put in a crossing, and now remain guarding it. The O. R. & N. had not sufficient force to dislodge the tresspassers. The Spokane & Paluse is practically owned by the Northern Pacific, and is a branch from the main line reaching into Paluse Valley, the finest grain-producing section in eastern Washington, a district hitherto regarded as O. R. & N.'s exclusive territory. This is the first open rupture between the O. R. & N. and the Northern Pacific.

The Lutherans.

GREENVILLE, Pa., Sept. 11.—At the opening of the afternoon session the report of the committee on Swedish home missions was considered. It showed that much work had been done, but a need of a greater effort. Especial emphasis was given to the statement that the church ought to put forth greater efforts in Utah, as a large number of Europeans who had been converted to Mormonism were once Lutheran, or at least from Lutheran countries. A resolution was adopted authorizing the committee on foreign missions to appoint, in their discretion, a person to take charge of this work, his duties, salary, etc., to be decided by the committee.

The A. O. U. W.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 12.—Representatives of the Supreme Legion of the Ancient Order of United Workmen began a session this morning. The report of the supreme recorder, W. H. Bohn, shows receipts from the beneficiary fund of $124,827; general fund, $12,150; balance in hands of treasurer October 1, 1887, $7,288. Disbursements—Beneficiary fund, $124,000; general fund, $16,217; balance in hands of supreme treasurer September 1, 1887, $4,145. During the year the order has been extended into Utah, Idaho, Wyoming, Tennessee and Florida.

THE GREAT DEBATE.

The Mitchellstown Murder Discussed All Night by the Commons.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—As Gladstone entered the House of Commons this afternoon, he was greeted with cheers by many thousands of persons who gathered near the Parliament buildings in anticipation of the discussion to take place on the Mitchellstown affair.

chief secretary for Ireland, announced that a telegram had been received regarding the affray at Lisdoon-Vard last night. The dispatch stated that five moonlighters were captured. Constable Wheelan was killed and three others seriously hurt. A number of rifles and revolvers and also a quantity of ammunition were captured. The five men captured were arrested inside the house of farmer Sexton. Two were identified to-day. Farmer Sexton, whom the gang went to murder, had been summoned by the league and censured, and had to promise to surrender his farm, but did not do so. The gang then entered his house, when the police, laid in ambush,

SURPRISED THEM.

Balfour, replying to Harcourt, said the instructions the police were now acting under were the same as they received when Sir William was a member of the Gladstone government. [Cheers.] With regard to Gen. Bulers, Balfour said he resigned now simply because he desired not to delay his return to the war office. Referring to Harcourt's contention that the suppression of public meetings was illegal, Balfour said he did not know at what period Sir William lost his knowledge of law, but it was a matter of history, under the common law of Ireland, that Sir William, himself, acted with Gladstone and Forster in proclaiming 130 meetings absurd. They describe such meetings as

FREE DISCUSSION.

They were heralded by placards of an inflammatory nature, and it was obviously their object to defeat the laws. Forster outrages intimidation regarding the Mitchellstown affair. Balfour said it had been clearly ascertained that the action of the police was in the face of extreme protection. The sole responsibility rested upon those who convoked the meeting. [Cheers.] Sir William had on his lips the words, "Liberty," "justice" and "free speech," but the actual weapons he and his friends used in the Irish contest were, obstruction in Parliament and resistance to the law; outside, violence and intimidation worse than violence. The government did not favor

THEIR POLICY.

They believed that the firm administration of the law and the suppression to their utmost, of the evil fomenting discontent, would bring to Ireland a united people, undismayed by criticism, and, with courage unshaken, they would persevere in the course that must end in the conciliation of Ireland. [Loud cheers.]

Gladstone on rising was loudly cheered. He said it was natural that debate should be mainly directed to the Mitchellstown outrage, but Sir William Vernon Harcourt had performed a public service in drawing attention to the Ennis meeting. Balfour had declared that the government would persevere in their endeavor to

by a firm administration of the law and by the removal, not of grievances, there were none [Laughter]. Minister Balfour here interrupted: "Injustice" was my word.

Gladstone said he was much obliged. He saw no difference, but it was best to be verbally correct. Resuming, Gladstone protested against Balfour's statement that he expected only hostility from the opposition whenever anything beneficial to Ireland was proposed. The opposition hailed with pleasure and did everything possible to further it despite the unwise policy of coercion which was calculated to destroy social order. The opposition had enjoined upon the Irish people to law and their advice was more effective than all the government's coercion and constabulary, managed as it was at Mitchellstown. Balfour had met Sir William Vernon Harcourt's speech with a simple tu quoque, which was usually the resort of persons in a difficult position, but which legally meant nothing. What signified it, for the purpose in view, if the late government did the same thing? He was not prepared to admit that, but if they did, it was no excuse.

Balfour had announciated that all the liberal meetings might be suppressed on the ground that they were called for improper purposes. With regard to the Mitchellstown tragedy, which at once moved and harrowed the feelings of the country, seemed marked by singular rashness and imprudence. It was competent for him under such grave circumstances to decline to enter into any discussion till an equally grave inquiry had been held, but instead of that he rushed headlong to the conclusion that all the police had done was right, and that if they had acted otherwise they would have been guilty of great neglect of duty. So long as Balfour remained in his present office, they might rely upon it that the same course would be pursued. It was a gross, dangerous error for all the body of police to force their way through the dense crowd. There was no proof of any attempt to storm the barracks. On the other hand, were two old men and a boy. Gladstone hoped to hear before the debate closed that this sad and grievous affair, which had created a sentiment of horror and disgust throughout the kingdom, had not been kept in the dark, but had been probed to the bottom. [Cheers.] He feared that all that was occurring in Ireland tended to support the contention of the opposition that the government legislation was directed, not against crime, but against the combination for liberty of speech and public meeting. He was convinced that the people of England would not follow the government's course, which could lead to nothing but distress and disaster. [Cheers.]

said he had been in a position to see all that occurred at Mitchellstown. Stringent orders were given to the people by the leaders to avoid disturbance. There was no objection to the presence of the government reporters, but the police could not force them through the densely packed crowd, and they were driven back. They then advanced to assault the crowd, the affray being begun by a constable drawing his sword and wounding a horse. There were, in not many moments, more than fifty people fighting the police. There were women and children in the crowd and the men had a perfect right to resist the attack. When the

there was no danger of any of them being attacked, either inside or outside the barracks. The police behaved like wild beasts, battering people about without mercy. The chief constable showed a deliberate intention to break up the meeting.

Labouchere held the chief constable and resident magistrate responsible for what had occurred, and he accused them of deliberate murder. [Cheers.]

Parnell's motion to adjourn the debate was defeated.

Dillon, who had just arrived from Dublin, gave his account of the trouble. He blamed the government for departing from the

of asking for accommodations for reporters. Never before had he seen an attempt, after a meeting had commenced, to rush the police and reporters through the thickest part of a crowd.

Lord Randolph Churchill said the debate would bring vividly before the country the nature of the struggle in which the government was engaged in Ireland; the difficulties with which they had to contend; the resources of their opponents. He spoke sarcastically of Gladstone's appeals to the Irish people to exercise patience and, thought the opposition had made a capital blunder in pumping Harcourt up, because the house could recall speeches of his as forcible and eloquent in the OPPOSITE DIRECTION.

The government were justified in the course they had taken. Parnell, in moving the adjournment of the debate said, it was unreasonable that he should be asked to address the house at this late hour.

After division on his motion, Bradlaugh and Butler continued the debate. The house adjourned at 5:15 a.m.

Criminal Cases.

WYANDALE, Ks., Sept. 12.—The jury in the case of Geo. Hamilton, charged with train wrecking, reported a verdict of not guilty this morning, after having been deliberating since Saturday morning. Hamilton was charged with being one of the strikers who, in April, 1886, wrecked the Missouri Pacific freight train near here and killed two men.

BUTTE, Mont., Sept. 12.—A Miner special from Fort Shaw says: John Embody, 70 years of age, residing alone on his ranch at the head of Dearborn Creek, was found dead and

PARTLY BURNED.

An ax was used, his skull being cleft. He has children living in New York State. He had sold out to go to them. The money is missing. The murderer is a young man from the Northwestern Territory; name unknown. He stole the team and horses to escape across the line. Officers are on his trail and expect to overtake him.

Miner special from Sun River, M.T.: Great excitement here over the brutal raping of Mrs. Glines by Alonzo Golding, who has been captured. Golding is a colored barber. The woman resisted and was badly treated. Golding barely escaped with his life when taken by fifty enraged men. He will through the night, as the citizens are wild with excitement.

TROY, Sept. 12.—Chas. P. Ide, bookkeeper of the First National Bank of Glenn's Falls, has confessed to the embezzlement of $18,100 in the years 1881 and 1882. He was an officer of the Baptist Sunday school, and generally respected.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Sept. 12.—The sheriff of Page County, Iowa, arrested here to-day Mrs. Josephine Travener, who is now residing here, but whose home is at Essex, Iowa, on the charge of child murder, on information furnished by the woman's divorced husband.

The Constitutional Centennial.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—The preliminary work of arranging the details for the great constitutional centennial anniversary celebration on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, is almost at an end and the strangers who will participate in the event are already arriving. The programme, as arranged for the industrial parade on Thursday and the military parade on Friday, besides one for exercises to be held on Independence Square on Saturday, are very elaborate, and if favorable weather should prevail, the will far exceed former expectations The processional display will include 300 floats representing progress in art, manufacture and science since the signing of the Constitution. It is estimated that there will be 20,000 men and women in the line, triumphal arches being erected in various places.

The vessels of the North Atlantic squadron were anchored at breakwater this morning, before proceeding up the river. Among the arrivals are the sloops-of-war Dolphin and Galena and the cruiser Atlantic.

President and Mrs. Cleveland are expected to arrive on Thursday. Among the entertainments of the week, one of the more notable will be the reception to Mrs. Cleveland by Mr. and Mrs. George W. Childs at Wooter, their country seat, on Saturday afternoon.

Farwell for President.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—Senator C. B. Farwell was interviewed to-day by a representative of the Daily News, regarding the suggestion that his name be used in the next republican national convention, as Chicago's candidate for the Presidency of the United States. Farwell was loth to say anything. Persistent efforts finally overcame his reserve and he made answer that it would be time enough to consider what action he would take when his name was endorsed by the convention.

Congressman Mason of this city is credited with the first mention of Farwell's name in this connection. The News' interview calls attention to the circumstance that Farwell is a self-made man, a merchant prince, a successor of Logan in the councils of the nation and intimates that a statesman and millionaire upon whose brow all these honors rest, would prove a suitable choice for even the exalted office of chief executive. Senator Farwell stated that Judge Gresham was his choice, with General Sheridan as second favorite and John Sherman next.

DEAFNESS Its causes, and a new and successful Cure at your own home, by one who was deaf twenty-eight years. Treated by most of the noted specialists without benefit. Cured himself in three months, and since then hundreds of others. Full particulars sent on application.
