NEW PRINCIPAL FOR HIGH SCHOOL

Appointment Goes to Prof. A. E. Wilson, After Six Years of Study in Europe.

TEACHERS ENGAGED FOR YEAR

Salary Fund Increased by $10,000-Examination of Pedagogues June 3to 6 in High School Building.

Ogden, June 3 .- The announcement will come with a degree of pleasure to the people of Ogden that the board of education has secured Prof. A. E. Wilson for principal of the Ogden high school. Prof. Wilson needs no introduction to the citizens of Ogden and especially the Ogden high school as a number of years ago he was principal of the school and resigned to go to Berlin, Germany, to complete his education. He has now graduated from the University of Berlin with the degree of Ph. D., receiving high homors at the hands of the university. Prof. Wilson was one of the most able principals the Ogden high school has ever had, before his departure for Europe, and now, after about six years of higher preparation, will return to the school. His return is sure to add great strength to the faculty. Last year after his graduation he traveled through the greater part of Europe studying the customs and methods of the various countries in education, which will be of a great advantage to him in his work as principal. Last year an effort was made to get him to return to Ogden and again accept the principalship of the high school but he declined, preferring to get as much information as possible covering education in the largest cities of the world before again taking up his profession. His salary for the first year has been fixed at $1,800.

WHISKY BARREL EXPLODES. An unusual explosion occurred on Washington avenue-yesterday in front of Poulson's saloon. Two whisky barrels had been placed outside. The Western Union Telegraph office is next door, and one of the messenger boys placed a small lighted fire cracker on the barrel. In a moment a tremendous report was heard as if a cannon had been exploded. In the barrel gas had accumulated which became ignited, causing the explosion. The barrel went through a lower from window of the building and tore loose a piece of stone work. The report of the explosion attracted an officer and several people. The boy who lighted the fire cracker was badly frightened, but no one was hurt.

PILGRIMAGE OF THE UTAH PIONEERS SIXTY YEARS AGO TODAY.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 2, 1847.

Quite early in the morning several of North Fork in their skiff of sole leather and walked up to Fort Laramie, where they were kindly received by James Bordeaux and others, and invited to a neat and comfortable room. After a social and cheerful conversation with Mr. Bordeaux and others they walked gaged at the reasonable price of $15 to oany across, as they had learned that aveling further upon the left bank of he North Fork would, if not altogether impracticable, be attended with much the fort, and stealing all the horses and the fort, and stealing all the horses and mules they could lay their hands upon. Some weeks before the arrival of the Pioneers the Indians had succeeded in stealing all the horses and mules belonging to the fort, to the number of 24, and in course of a few years they had stolen upwards of 200 horses from them. Mr. Bordeaux told the Ploneers that ex-Governor Boggs, of Missouri, had recently passed with his company; he had said much against the "Mormons," and cautioned Mr. Bordeaux to take care of his horses and cattle. As Boggs and his company were quarreling continually and many had deserted him, Mr. Bordeaux remarked to the ex-governor, deaux remarked to the ex-governor, that let the "Mormons" be what they might, they could not be worse than himself and his men, "Is it not a little singular," asks E. W. Tulledge, "that this exterminating governor of Missouri should have been crossing the plains at the same time as the Pioneers? They were going to carve out for their people a greater destiny than they could have reached either in Missouri or Illinois—he to pass away, leaving nothing but a transitory name."

he to pass away, leaving nothing but a transitory name."

By his astronomical instruments Orson Pratt determined the latitude of Fort Laramie to be 42 degrees 12 minutes and 13 seconds, and longitude 104 degrees 11 minutes and 53 seconds, differing from Captain J. C. Fremont only three seconds, or 18 rods. By a means of several barometrical observations he wise calculated the altitude of the fort so calculated the altitude of the fort be 4,000 feet above the level of the Fort Laramie, or as it was formerly called Fort William and later Fort John, was the first permanent post erected in what is now Wyoming. It was established by William Sublette and Robert Campbell in 1834, with the design of meanonlizing the trade of the and Robert Campbell in 1834, with the design of monopolizing the trade of the Indian tribes who roamed over the country from the Missouri River on the northeast to the Sweet water on the west of the Black Hills, namely Arapahoes, Cheyennes and Sioux, Balan west of the Black Hills, namely Arapa-hoes, Cheyennes and Sloux. Being strong and warlike nations, it was neces-stry, while inviting their commerce to guard against their attacks. The fort was situated on Laramie Fork, an af-finent of the Platte a clear and beautiful stream winding through meadows where grew wild currants and goose-berries, and which were dotted here and there with groups of larger trees. It consisted of a palisade 18 feet high, with bustions is two diagonally opposite cor-

It was called Fort William, after Sublette. In 1835 the establishment was sold to Milton Sublette, James Bridger and three other fur hunters, who had united with the American Fur company, after an active rivalry of several years, during which these two powerful associations had driven all the other American fur traders out of Wyoming. The fort was rebuilt in 1836 by the new owners, at an outlay of $10,000 and was called by a part of the company Fort John but the name never could be made accoptable to the majority. The clerks in the eastern office settled the difference unintentionally by making out their bills for Fort Laramie, the name of the river on which it was situated, and much more likely to be understood than William or John, which might be anywhere. It continued to be a fort of the American Fur company until 1849, when it was sold to the government.

Laramie Fork of the Platte was named after a French trapper by the name of Laramie, who in the earliest for hunting times, was killed by the Arapahoes on this stream, which near the fort, is about 40 yards wide. Early in the morning, the company commenced ferrying across the North Fork of the Platte, which at that point was 108 yards wide, being deeper than usual; they averaged about four wagons an hour. From a small party (three or four persons) of white men, who had arrived at Fort Laramie the day before and who had made the journey from the states in 17 days on horseback, the pioneers learned that a large number of emigrants were on the road, the gentlemen referred to having passed about 2,000 wagons in detached companies, on their way to Oregon. One small company expected to reach Fort Laramie the next morning, another larger the next day and one still larger the day following. It was understood that these emigrants were principally from Missouri, Illinois and Iows, Many other companies were making preparations to leave the frontiers soon after these gentlemen left.
