

SUNDAY SERVICES AT TABERNACLE

Interesting Discourse by Elder
Orson F. Whitney of Quorum
Of Apostles.

LARGE CONGREGATION THERE.

Designs of the Almighty Relative to Man Was the Theme of the Address.

The purpose of God in forming the earth and His design relative to man whom He created and placed therein, formed the theme of an interesting discourse by Elder O. F. Whitney, of the quorum of apostles, at the Tabernacle yesterday afternoon. The subject was handled in the speaker's usual masterful style, and was a fitting prelude to the peace meeting that convened immediately after the close of the regular services. The selections rendered by the choir, too, were in keeping with the day, the numbers being "Earth With Her Ten Thousand Flowers," "Behold the Mountain of the Lord," and "There's a Sound From the Vale, There's a Voice From the Mountain." The words of the last named anthem are from the pen of Elder Whitney, music by Prof. Evan Stephens, and deal with the overthrow of Gog and Magog, previous to the ushering in of the reign of peace.

There was a very large congregation present. President John H. Winder presiding over the meeting. Elder Arnold H. Schultess offered the invocation, and the benediction was pronounced by Elder Seymour B. Young.

Elder Whitney said that the day had been set apart for the holding of peace meetings throughout Christendom, the purpose of which was to awaken a feeling that it is hoped will bear fruit in the disarmament of the nations and the ushering in of the millennial reign of peace. No people are more interested in such a grand consummation than are the Latter-day Saints, and no religion is more calculated to weld an influence to that end than is the religion called "Mormonism." Peace on earth and good will to men form the keynote to the structure. The mission of Joseph Smith was to restore the Gospel of peace, preparatory to the coming of the King of Kings.

REVELATIONS OF ST. JOHN.

On one occasion, said Elder Whitney, the Prophet Joseph Smith was asked the meaning of certain visions seen by the Apostle John while upon the Isle of Patmos. The questions propounded "If I should see the vision of the seven churches, and the seven churches are contained in the 77th section of the Doctrine and Covenants, and the same were read by the speaker. Commenting upon the interpretation, he said that some people understood Mormonism so imperfectly that they imagine it to be narrow, evil and selfish, while those who really do comprehend it, and who know the reverse is true concerning it. The description given by Joseph Smith of the creation of the earth and the destiny of man was the whole sum and substance of the Maker's design and execution. The earth was not made of nothing, neither was it formed in six days of nothing. Matter, as well as spirit, is eternal, and the earth was created of material already in existence, in a period of time after God's own reckoning.

After a dwelling place had been prepared for him, man was created, with the purpose in view to see whether he would obey the commandments of his Creator. There had been a first estate, pre-existence, and the promise had been given aforesaid that they who kept their first estate should be added upon. Mortality is the second estate, and those who keep the same are to be added upon eternally. The conflict in heaven when a Redeemer of the world was to be chosen was briefly rehearsed by the speaker. The plan of Lucifer was to have men whether they were willing or not, while Emmanuel purposed to extend to all a free agency and to redeem men from their sin at the cost of His own life. This purpose of the Father is to make of earth a heaven and eventually to bring about universal peace. This planet yet to become celestial and will be the eternal abode of the meek and righteous. God never did create anything to destroy it, and neither the earth nor its inhabitants are to be subjected to such a fate.

The sixth day of earth's existence is well nigh over, declared Elder Whitney, and the dawn of the seventh day draws on apace. We are living in the Saturday evening of the history of this planet. The times and seasons were set aforesaid, and the plans for the redemption of God's footstool and the redemption of man were provided for before either were created temporarily. The Gospel of Jesus Christ is pre-existent and eternal, and there is no other. Because the Bible is not a full and complete record of God's dealings, it must not be concluded that He has neglected any creation of His hand. Adam's apparent step downward was in reality an act of progression; he felt that men might be. He was redeemed by obeying the Gospel, looking forward to the propitiation wrought by the Savior, as we must needs look backward to the same event. Mormonism is not a new religion, but it is the eternal Gospel restored anew, through the instrumentality of modern prophets. It proclaims the second advent of the Son of God, the resurrection of the righteous, and the ushering in of the millennial reign of peace.

LEIGHTON BENEFIT VETOED.

Strange Action of Munger Beck Results in No Performance.

The Leighton players who started out so auspiciously at the Grand a couple of months ago have joined the procession of unprofitable theatrical ventures in Salt Lake and today the company in its entirety is no more while the Theopian barque is on the rocks of the financial reef.

The whole trouble seems to be that Mr. Leighton insisted in putting on high class plays while the clientele of the Grand were clamoring for the popular melodrama of the "villain-in-hand" type. Consequently the masses did not patronize the house to the extent anticipated, furthermore Mr. Leighton brought his company here on a percentage basis. Then Mr. Leighton "had trouble" with some of his leading support, all of which is not conducive to money-making.

Two weeks ago Mr. Leighton undertook to put his financial standing before the members of his company and the ghost did not wait that night. The members of the company made the best of a bad job and concluded to stay with the ship. Then came the presentation of "The Prisoner of Zenda" and the box office was scared and it looked as though there would be trimmings with the frugal supper Saturday night. But the salary was good.

Last week Messrs. Clark and Chambers, the second man and the character man of the aggregation of actor folk, (so claimed the stage hands), had a most stormy session with Mr. Leighton.

Then came the benefit proposition at the Orpheum and Messrs. Clark and Chambers declined to go on unless Mr. Leighton apologized or asked them to help out. Mr. Leighton, apparently did not comply and an attachment was levied at the box office by members of the company. Just prior to this some of Mr. Leighton's friends, including Mr. R. M. Shaw, took up the benefit proposition at the Orpheum. They guaranteed the advertising in the papers and started everything for a final big send-off. The Orpheum management was approached and as Mr. Bray, personal representative of Martin Beck, the general manager of the Orpheum circuit, was in town, the matter was laid before him. The outcome was that the Orpheum theater was tendered to Mr. Leighton for the occasion, who would waive his orchestra augmented by half a dozen volunteer musicians of the city agreed to help out and give the players a rousing and artistic send-off. Two actors were secured to take the places made vacant by Messrs. Clark and Chambers and it looked as though there would be a big benefit. The advance sale was good one.

But late on Saturday night there was a wet blanket thrown on the affair. It came in the form of a dispatch from the headquarters of the Orpheum circuit in Chicago and signed by Martin Beck, which stated that Mr. Leighton was not to use the Orpheum theater under any circumstances, regardless of the promise made by Mr. Bray.

Just about this time the transient actor who had been secured to play the heavy in "The Prisoner of Zenda" stalked in, threw down his manuscript and walked out again.

These two incidents finally closed the career of the Leighton players as far as Salt Lake is concerned. There was no benefit at the Orpheum last night, and Mr. Leighton is still wondering who is responsible.

INQUIRY FOR RELATIVES.

A letter was received by Sheriff Emery today from the corner at Weaver, Cal., inquiring as to the relatives of Joseph Anderson, who shot himself at that place on May 13. The letter states that Anderson was about 29 years old, about 6 feet 2 inches tall, had dark hair and blue eyes, and was a good burly.

PILGRIMAGE OF THE UTAH PIONEERS SIXTY YEARS AGO TODAY.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 19, 1847.

This morning, the grass being poor, the pioneers moved on early, traveled three miles and halted about 6 o'clock for breakfast. There were two small streams to cross near this place. At half past 6 the thermometer stood at 55 F. The sky was thickly overcast with clouds—wind east, with rain, which continued during the day without much cessation, and accompanied with some thunder. One and a half miles from their breakfast halt, the pioneers crossed the bluffs, at the eastern edge of which they crossed a stream which the called Wolf Creek, about 20 feet wide so named from the following circumstance: When Heber C. Kimball went ahead of the company in the morning to search out a road across the wasteland, he followed the creek about a mile, until he, after crossing a high bluff, found himself in a deep hollow, where, upon turning to his left, he discovered two very large wolves standing at a distance of about five rods, gazing at him. One of them, he said, was nearly as large as a two year old steer. On looking across the creek he saw several others of the same tribe, all staring fiercely at him. This startled him considerably, and more especially because he was unarmed. He attempted to scare them away by making a noise, but they would not run, so he concluded to leave the field to them and move away himself as soon as possible. In doing so they did not follow him. A dead carcass which he discovered near by satisfied him that he had interrupted them in their repast. On mentioning this circumstance to Brigham Young, the president named the stream as above stated.

The pioneers crossed the bluffs a mile, and descended upon the bottom, where they again crossed a small stream. On account of the rain they halted about a mile west of the bluffs. Towards evening they traveled on in the rain two miles further. Their CONDITION IS SERIOUS.

Claude Russell Suffering From Effects of Bad Beating.

The condition of Claude Russell, who was viciously assaulted by three young toughs in a dance hall last night, is still very serious, but his chances for recovery are decidedly good. The matter was brought to the attention of Judge C. B. Diehl in the criminal division of the city court this morning by Asst. County Atty. Job Lyon, who was present to represent the prosecution in the arraignment of Thomas Claypool, Albert Gallifant and William Arnold, who were arrested on the charge of assaulting Russell. Arnold was released on $400 bail last Saturday but was rearrested yesterday owing to the serious condition of Russell. The matter was brought to the attention of Judge C. B. Diehl in the criminal division of the city court this morning by Asst. County Atty. Job Lyon, who was present to represent the prosecution in the arraignment of Thomas Claypool, Albert Gallifant and William Arnold, who were arrested on the charge of assaulting Russell. Arnold was released on $400 bail last Saturday but was rearrested yesterday owing to the serious condition of Russell. The matter was brought to the attention of Judge C. B. Diehl in the criminal division of the city court this morning by Asst. County Atty. Job Lyon, who was present to represent the prosecution in the arraignment of Thomas Claypool, Albert Gallifant and William Arnold, who were arrested on the charge of assaulting Russell. Arnold was released on $400 bail last Saturday but was rearrested yesterday owing to the serious condition of Russell.

Mr. Lyon insisted that the court increase the bond of Arnold and Claypool from $400 to $1,000. This was resisted by Atty. Newton, counsel for the defendants, but Judge Diehl fixed the bond in the sum asked with the understanding that it would be reduced. Mr. Russell's condition improved so that he would be absolutely out of danger. Gallifant's bond was fixed at $400, which was furnished and he was released. The case has been set for next Friday for hearing provided the injured man is able to leave his bed.

It is claimed by the prosecution that young Arnold, who has posed before the public as a prize fighter, and Claypool, inflicted the most serious injury to Russell. Arnold was a pupil of William Bear's and took part in several preliminary bouts in this city.

TWINS FOR OLD SLEUTH.

Officer C. A. Carlson Now Has a Family of Twelve Children.

Police officers are rapidly consuming a box of good cigars furnished by Police Officer C. A. Carlson. The reason for the appearance of the cigars at headquarters is the arrival at the home of Officer Carlson of a pair of twins, boys, making twelve children in all born to Mr. and Mrs. Carlson. The genial officer was happiness personified this morning, and was proudly telling his fellow club swingers what a fine pair of boys he has. There are ten children in Carlson's family now, two of which have died some time ago. He is being heartily congratulated upon the arrival of the twins and some of the officers declared their intention of bringing "Franklin Roosevelt" there was no race suicide among the members of the Salt Lake police force.

SAD DOMESTIC TRAGEDY.

Father and Son Laid to Rest; Family Is III.

A double funeral occurred yesterday, when Charles M. Paden and his little five-year-old son were laid to rest. The father died on Tuesday last, from acute Bright's disease, after a short illness, and on Saturday the child, Dallas, passed away from the same ailment. Benjamin Young, of the Methodist church, conducted the obsequies, and interment took place in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

It is said that three other children in the family are suffering from meningitis, the mother is almost broken up at the terrible calamities that have visited the household. The Padens came to Utah from the foot of the Sierras, and they have as yet few friends or acquaintances here. Through the efforts of the Young men's union, a fund was raised Sunday evening to relieve the immediate wants of the family, and it seems that it will be a long time before the family can be aided in any way, and as such to demand kindly considerations.

whole distance traveled during the day was only eight miles.

THURSDAY, MAY 20, 1847.

At 5 o'clock in the morning the thermometer stood at 45 degrees in the pioneer camp. There was a moderate west wind, while thick clouds overspread the sky. In less than a mile the pioneers crossed the bluffs, at the eastern edge of which they crossed a stream which the called Wolf Creek, about 20 feet wide, with considerable depth. This forenoon they traveled 7 1/2 miles, and halted for noon directly opposite the place where the Oregon road strikes the North Fork. Four of the pioneers (Orson Pratt, Luke S. Johnson, Amasa M. Lyman and John Brown) launched the pioneers boat and crossed over, being obliged to drag it the most of the way over shoals of quicksands. They found the grave of one of the Oregon emigrants, buried the previous summer, and made up the bluffs, where here make up near the river. These bluffs are composed principally of horizontal strata of limestone, and are thinly covered with sand, and there were some scattering cedars. The Oregon road came in through an opening in the bluffs, in that there was some ash timber from what the Oregon road struck the place was called Ash Creek or Ash Hollow, also mountain cherry, and wild currants. The four pioneers mentioned soon recrossed the river, which is here about one-third of a mile wide, generally speaking the river bottoms in this region of country are wider, and the bluffs not so elevated on the north as on the south side of the river. A short distance below their noon halt, the pioneers passed a lonely cedar tree, upon the north bank of the river, in the branches of which were deposited the remains of an Indian child, with which were also deposited the necessary equipments (according to Indian tradition) for a future land of enjoyment. The grave of it may be seen (such) was as solitary as the tree. This afternoon, 3 1/2 miles from their noon halt, the pioneers crossed a creek, now called Blue River, which had an average width of five rods, and was from one and a half to two feet deep. They traveled that day 15 1/2 miles and encamped for the night.

J. W. COTTLE APPOINTED.

As Superintendent of County Infirmary He Succeeds James Sabine, Jr.

As announced in the "News" a few days ago, Joseph W. Cottle was this afternoon appointed by the county commissioners as superintendent of the county infirmary to succeed James Sabine, Jr. The new superintendent will enter upon his duties about the 1st of June. His appointment has been made with much consideration as it was rumored that he would be appointed as soon as the present administration came into power. However, Commissioner Mackey has been holding out for Sabine and has kept him in the place up to the present time. The back of Cottle was too heavy to be overcome and he has finally won out and secured the appointment.

SHERIFF EMERY WINS.

Mrs. Foley's Case for False Imprisonment Fails to Convince the Jury.

Sheriff C. Frank Emery and his bondsmen today won in the damage suit against them for false imprisonment in the case brought by Agnes G. Foley. The trial was had before a jury in Judge Ritchie's court and lasted several days but it took the jury just about five minutes to arrive at a verdict. The case was submitted to the jury about 10:30 o'clock this morning, and the jury could select a foreman and sign a verdict it was ready to report. The verdict was unanimously in favor of the defendants. Mrs. Foley was arrested and detained by Sheriff Emery and his deputies on Sept. 16, 1906, upon the request of the sheriff of another county. She sued for $20,000 damages, but the jury found that she was not entitled to anything.

DAILY GRAIN LETTER.

James A. Pollock & Co., bankers and brokers, furnish the following, received over their private wire this afternoon:

Chicago, Wheat—After covering a range of more than 3 cents for the day, most of which was in the shape of a very sharp advance following the opening, wheat closed with a net gain of 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 over Saturday. Private London cables quoted wheat cargoes strong and higher. Many dispatches from Minnesota and the Dakotas told of low temperatures and ice forming over night with ground in many places getting very dry. The Jones report, which was known to a good many in the trade before the opening, was largely responsible for the swift turn in the market on first trades. That authority gives the total of winter wheat at $25,000,000 bushels against 24,000,000 bushels indicated by the government May 1. Regardless of bullish news from all quarters, there was heavy liquidation by the longs at the advance and this kept up more or less all day.—Logan and Bryan.

MUCKERS GET INCREASE.

Tintic Workers Presented With Involuntary Raise by Mine Operators.

The Tintic mine owners' association announced this afternoon through Harry Joseph that it had voluntarily raised the wages of carmen, trammers and muckers 25 cents, making their wages $2.75 per day. This will mean an increase of over $1,500 in the monthly pay-roll of Tintic. The mine owners decided to raise the wage scale at a meeting held in this city several days ago, but deferred public announcement of their action until today for various reasons. The employers realized that living expenses have increased in the camp, and to meet the increased demands upon their employees added a welcome twenty-five cents to their wages. Miners in Tintic are now paid $2 and $2.25 per day. This scale was put in last fall.
