"All blinds, curtains and screens shall be withdrawn from the doors and windows of all saloons, bars, wineries and other places where intoxicating liquors are sold, and all interior doors, screens and blinds and curtains shall be so opened that an unobstructed view of the interior of such places may be had from the sidewalk or exterior of all such saloons, bars, wineries, or other places where intoxicating liquors are sold, during all of the time on the last day of the week, commonly called Sunday."

Big First Night House.

Salt Palace Show Drew Large Audience At Beginning of Another Week.

The Salt Palace theater held its largest Monday night audience of the season last night, the commencement of another week of amusements. And it was a very good bill that Manager Meyer offered his patrons who were likewise liberal in their appreciation of the entertainment. With two exceptions the faces were new. Edwards, Chester and Edwards did a revolving ladder turn that brought forth a volley of applause, while Barn and La Sule in "Society" also contributed in no small degree to the risibility of the occasion. May Moore made a hit in her singing and dancing act, while Linden and Wren caught the eye of the crowd in the "Colored Lady from Dixie Land." Julia Blanchard failed to appear last night on account of a delayed train, but will be seen this evening in a "Novelty Globe" which is described as a clever creation.

Violent Attack of Diarrhoea Cured by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and Feh-haps a Life Saved.

"A short time ago I was taken with a violent attack of diarrhoea and believe I would have died if I had not gotten relief," says John J. Patton, a leading citizen of E. Fulton, Ala.

My friend recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I bought a twenty-five cent bottle and after taking three doses it was the best remedy I ever used. It cured me in half an hour and I consider it the best remedy in the world for bowel complaints. For sale by all druggists.

ARREST OF A WRITER'S SON

Intervention of Father's Brother Kept Him from Languishing in Jail.

Eugene Field's son Frederick, who was born in Denver, and who lived several years of his childhood and boyhood in that city, says the Denver Post, and locked up in the central police station for several hours on the charge of having attempted to defraud the Morrison hotel out of $130.

This may lead the old friends of Eugene Field's erratic and tempestuous youth here in Denver to wonder whether or not the performance of his son is not just one of his father's old antics.

It appears, however, from the testimony of W. A. Jackson, manager of the Morrison hotel, that neither the charge nor the arrest of Eugene Field's youngest son was anything of a joke at all, but an extremely serious matter, involving a pecuniary loss of more than a hundred dollars to Mr. Jackson.

Young Field, who is now 21 years old, is charged with having gone to the hotel, rented a room with bath and refrigerator, and then, after having been there until his bill amounted to $130, he refused to pay it, but he refused to do so. Mr. Jackson says he urged the young man kindly but firmly, and even explained to him in a fatherly manner just what would happen to him if he did not pay, but that the youth remained impervious to both advice and entreaty, and that he was obliged at last, with great reluctance, to use force.

It was police force that he used, and he used it effectively. Mr. Field was obliged to spend several hours in jail, and was finally released through the kindly offices of his uncle, Roosevelt Field, the writer. He was found over to appear in the Harrison street police court the next morning to explain why he had failed to settle his bill, but he did not appear. As soon as the case was called on, it was withdrawn by Manager Jackson of the hotel, who stated that a settlement had been effected out of court. It is believed that Roosevelt Field was the man who effected the settlement.

Frederick Field has refused to give any explanation of his reasons for refusing to settle the debt.

WHAT SALT LAKERS DRINK

Waters of City Creek Are First Class, Those of Parley's Just "Ordinary."

City Council Hears Just Completed Analyses of the Waters of City and Parley's creeks for the board of health. The results show that the City creek water is of first class purity, and that of Parley's creek is of ordinary purity. The results for the analyses were taken from the streams after the recent heavy rainfalls so as to ascertain if the flood waters contained any great amount of disease germs. The analysis of Parley's creek water was found to be the waters of either stream. The waters contain no nitrates, phosphates or metallic impurities. The Parley's water contains a larger percentage of solids than the City creek water, the principal solids found being calcium sulphate, silica, sodium chloride, sodium sulphate and magnesium carbonate.

THIRTY YEARS OF SERVICE

Event in Career of a Man Who Has Grown Up in the Street Car Business.

Orsen P. Arnold, Jr., celebrated last evening, the thirtieth anniversary of his service with the various street car companies of this city; and as Mr. Arnold's birthday was only last Sunday, the celebration also partook of the nature of a birthday party. Mr. Arnold started at the interesting age of 15, as a water carrier during the days of the old mule cars that ran every 15 to 30 minutes, and did well if they carried 20 passengers at one time. Later, Mr. Arnold was promoted to the position of Lord High Changer of Mules, and later on, was made a Charioter in Ordinary under his father, then assistant superintendent. The young man continued to improve both in experience and position, and when the electric system of propulsion was substituted for mule power he was retained in the service and became assistant superintendent himself. He has always been a faithful man, attentive to his duties, and ever ready to sacrifice his own personal interests for the good of the company's employees, and the service he is engaged in.

So last night, when the thirtieth year of service was celebrated, Mr. Arnold's friends entered most zealously into the spirit of the occasion because they could from long extended acquaintance appreciate thoroughly the value of such a citizen to the community. The evening was most pleasantly spent. Mr. Arnold invited his friends to a street car ride, and two cars, handsomely decorated, were filled with them. The ride was followed by a banquet at the City of Parley's, where, profusely decorated and well loaded tables and music enhanced the enjoyment of the occasion. Toasts were responded to and speeches made by Vice President W. P. Reed, Secy. Joseph Wells, and others in honor of the occasion. Mr. Arnold begins his thirty-first year of service today, justly feeling that he stands well in the estimation of his fellow citizens.
