MR. J. SACERDOTAL RAWLINS alluded flippantly to the "celestial embrace" of the polygamists being assailed, as the cause of the repeal of the law against lewd and lascivious conduct. The gentleman is mistaken; it was because the community was cursed with a mission judge whose sense of purity in the sexes was so blunted that he was unable to discriminate between a Church ordinance religiously practiced and the unbridled tust of the "Christian" emissaries who advocate the cause of the "rest of us?"

THE VANDERCOOK HABEAS CORPUS.

THE ANTI-"MORMON" EFFORT TO HAVE THE ORDINANCE PUNISHING LEWD CONDUCT NULLIFIED. 1

In the Third District Court this morning the proceedings in the appliwrit of habeas corpus, were taken up. tained to-day. The petitioner applied to be discharged from the custody of the city marshal, by whom he was held on a charge of THE rails on the Salt Lake & Fort lewd and lascivious conduct under an lialty of chrysanthemums, has a magordinance of Salt Lake City.

complaint before the justice, by Wells, Fargo & Co.: New York, he cited the following section of the city ordinance, under which Vandercook was being prosecuted:

> or prostitution within the limits of said city, shall be deemed guilty of a o both fine and imprisonment for each offense." (The term of imprisonment has since been reduced to 100 days.)

Mr. Rawlins contended that the offense alleged was simply one of fornication or adultery. The ordinance was so broad that, if it were enforced, it would cover the relationship between husband and wife, and was unauthorized in the charter granted by the Legislature. It was equally applicable to male and female, to the person with whom the offense was committed, as well as the petitioner. There was no presumption of validity of a city ordinance, such as existed in favor of an act passed by the general law-making power. The only provision in the also a roan mare from Emmet Tancharter relating to immorality was in Sec. 22, which authorized the restrain ing and suppression of "bawdy and other disorderly houses" and the punishment of prostitutes. The amendment of 1872 empowered the corporation to punish the keepers of the against chastity, with clear and defined restrictions, within which fornication and adultery were not included. Section 61 of the charter authorized protection of the "health, safety and happiness of the inhabitants," and for the "peace, good order, regulation, convenience and cleanliness" of the city. These, however, were chiefly auxiliary, and gave no power to punish for offenses against morality. The corporation could exercise no powers except such as were clearly expressed, vertised for more than they really of the corporation. The "general who were the same and were indispensable to the objects dren being the victims generally. We had the assurance of a medical man welfare" clause could not be made to was not diphtheria, and the people BISHOP F. KESLER, of the Sixteenth apply in this instance. Power had been thinking that he understood the mutgiven to punish the prostitute, and ter, took no steps to stop the spread of it could not be made applicable to a less detrimental offense, such as the who committed a single act against proposed to take steps to confine it as occasions they have almost ceased to chastity and good morals could not be adopted as far as it has been in our punished. There was no exception such as could include the charge against the petitioner. The word "prostitute" could not be construed to include the prisoner, but only related rid of this dreadful disease. to a woman given to indiscriminate lewdness, and did not apply to a man. Prior to 1876, the act of the Legislature showed that in this Territory the crime of adultery was considered as at least equivalent to murder in the second degree. That body had not authorized municipal corporations to punish for the offense of adultery The law against adultery had been repealed in 1876, because it had been construed against a certain practice in this Territory. There was no intention on the part of the Legislature to permit the corporation to punish adultery, because the legislators were advocates of polygamy, and it might be reaching home he complained to his made to apply to plural wives. Such an ordinance, if enforced, would be repealed within twenty-four hours. Au ordinance to punish such offenses as the petitioner was charged with, would not be impartial, and was therefore invalid. The specific provisions in the charter excluded any general application of the police power. The crimes of adultery and fornication were not detrimental to the welfare, peace, safety, health or happiness of the residents of the city. There was nothing in the charter conferring power on the corporation to punish the petitioner for lewd and lascivious conduct. Their powers in this respect did not even include a woman who comday appointed notaries public by the mitted crimes against morality, except she be utterly abandoned beyond hope, and it was a parody on the part the is said that he was to have been married in about three weeks. city to presume to punish offenses against chastity. In the history of the city, attempts had been made to punish murder (this statement is utterly faise) and all sorts of crime, but that S. P., dated Franklin, Idaho, Nov. 21, Ward meeting house was filled to its day had gone. These corporation 1855, we obtain the following particuutmost capacity last. Monday evening powers were becoming more and more restricted because of the opportunity given by the dramatic club of the Ward for corruption. The petitioner wanted to know it he could be called to account under such an ordinance. If the law was valid he would meet it. The jurisdiction of the police court was summary and propolice court was summary and promonstrous and absurd to contemplate punishment by the police court for this crime. This proceeding of the police court to the police court to the police court to the police court to the back, where Mrs. S. R. ceeded in anextraordinary way. "The Thompson Opera Company re ceived an overwhelming ovation at Havlin's Theatre yesterday afternoon, when they commended a week's pre-sentation of the most interesting and amusing latest comic opera success, the "Mikado." The company as well as the opera need but little inhouses, but conferred no other troduction to the Cincinnati public powers. The Legislature had delegated the power to punish certain crimes to a Cincinnati audience for six successive weeks successfully, and that company is the Thompson Company. There is only one piece that attracted large audiences in this city for six successive weeks, and that is the "Mikado." Sudden Death. - On Wednesday evening last, a young man by the name of Frank Hurd, whose parents reside in the 10th Ward, arrived in this city from one of the mining camps up Big Cottonwood Cañon where he had been employed, having ridden from there-a distance of about twenty miles-on horseback. Immediately on mother of not feeling well, and she proposed to give him something warm to drink, but he declined and lay down upon a bed, the family not thinking his ailment very serious. When next he was noticed, within half an hour of his arrival, he was found to be dead, having apparently expired without a struggle. His death was evidently caused by heart disease, and the family physician gave a certificate to that effect. He had been troubled with palpitation of the heart ever since he was a child, He was also leaded not long since, and left home to return to work before he had entirely recovered from the effects of it. It is supposed that his death was hastened by taking cold from exposure after that sickness. He was in his twenty-third year, and it

The first place they Parkinson met him and informed him that there was sickness in the house. He seemed especially anxious to find Mr. S. R. Parkinson, and showed her his search warrant, sald he had come to search the house. He went into the house and entered the room where Mrs. F. C. Parkinson was sick in bed, but on seeing her, excused himself and said he didn't wish to intrude. She in vited him to come in and search, and he turned buck and took a look around the room. As he was about to leave, she told him there was a closet he had not searched, so he got a light and looked in, but found no one. He then asked her if there was a celiar, to which she replied in the negative, but said there was a hole under the floor with a box in it, and on being asked what was in the box she said a few turnips. He opened the trap door and looked in, and she lavited him to help himself to the turnips. She told him there were two more closets up stairs, and he went up and took a look through the place, but left disappointed.

They next went to the houses of Brothers Wm. Woodward and Joshua Hawkes, but not finding the parties wanted they went up to the residence of Thomas Lowe and arrested him on a charge of polygamy.

About this time several of the boys heard what was going on and started up the street on horseback. Meeting the deputy marshals coming down, neither party offered to turn out, so there was a collision. Joseph Chatter-ton was knocked or pulled from his horse, and drew his pistol and fired, and one of the boys responded by firing back. About eight or ten shets were exchanged between the parties, when the excitement ended. Subsequently James Webster, Edson Packer and W. H.
