

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Republicans have the names of two Generals on their ticket. It is predicted that they will have to write another after the election. His name is General Defeat.

London advices say that several French firms having large orders from the Chinese government for rifles, have been instructed to complete them as quickly as possible.

There are 118,000,000 copies of the Bible in the world, and yet some people do not own more than one copy, and half the time cannot find that.

Capital punishment has not been abolished in Georgia. On the ninth of next month a murderer will be hung in Augusta and another in Waynesboro. Both the criminals are colored.

Ingersoll argues that because God needs nothing from us, worship is superfluous. The eloquent speaker, but shallow reasoner, seems to forget that we all need something from God.

The salaries of the Utah Judges have been raised to $3,000 a year. Why was not the Governor's pay raised also? Territorial Federal officials receive only the salaries of department clerks. It savors of parsimony rather than economy.

Kansas is said to have the cheapest built church on the continent. It only cost ten dollars. Its walls are built with sods. The roof is covered with sods, and the floor is of earth. Its size is 25 feet by 25. It is guaranteed to last 100 years.

The army world in New Jersey and Long Island appears to have assumed the proportions of an Egyptian plagues, and the newspapers attribute the existence of the enemy to the ruthless destruction of all kinds of insectivorous birds during the past few years.

A gentleman by the name of I. H. Smith, who is more liberal than erudite, lately subscribed for the building of an Episcopal Church in a neighboring Territory. He was very much pleased when the church was finished to see I. H. S. in gold letters on the altar. He took them for his initials.

A farmer who tried the experiment of raising potatoes from large and small seed reports as follows: "I harvested 280 bushels to the acre from large seed, 240 from small seed, making 40 bushels in favor of the large seed." This corresponds with the general experience.

The Cincinnati ticket pleases the Democrats fully as well as the Chicago ticket charmed the Republicans. And it strikes more terror into the ranks of the enemy than any ticket which the "unterrified" have framed for upwards of twenty years. The contest will be heavy, with the odds in favor of the democracy.

The following sentiment which was found written in the family Bible of Mrs. Hegeman, who was killed in the accident at Gilmore's Garden, New York, is worthy of adoption by every man and woman on earth. "I expect to pass through this life but once, if there is any kindness to show or any good thing I can do my fellow beings, let me do it now. Let me not defer nor neglect it."

Clover and timothy should be cut when in full blossom; if allowed to get ripe the quality of hay is not so good. By beginning early the work need not be hurried. Use the mower after the dew is off in the forenoon. Cut only as much as can be well cared for. It is often remarked that the average quality of hay is not so good as before the introduction of the mowing machines, from the temptation to cut the grass faster than it can be cured.

St. Nicholas for July, 1880, ready June 25th, has a patriotic flavor appropriate to the season; and, in an article written and thoroughly illustrated by Mr. Daniel Beard, it tells the boys and girls how to celebrate the Fourth of July with "Paper Balloons"—how to make them, and how to send them up with safety to both balloons and senders. Poems, seasonal and humorous, and pictures of fun and frolic appear here and there in the number, and the pages devoted to very young readers, to "Jack-in-the-Pulpit," remarks, the "Letter-box," and the "Riddle-box" are filled with fresh, varied and amusing items, stories, letters from the boys and girls, and puzzles.

WHY IT FEELS HUMILIATED.

The Northern Christian Advocate feels humiliated. "This is not in consequence of any sign being put in its editors, nor because of the Methodist church in America, for which it speaks, has been subjected to any public indignity, but simply because that religious organization, numbering nearly two millions of members, after a hundred years of labor, 'stands of assets to the amount of only $20,000,000, of which only one cent is devoted to Church work.' The Advocate is chagrined to think that this is so, while one man in New York has amassed $75,000,000 during his life time, and his son could buy up the whole Methodist Episcopal Church and then have a fortune left."

If the accumulation of property is the great end in view, perhaps that "Christian" Journal has some cause for sadness. But even then this is not a very bad showing. Two millions of members and sixty-three millions of property do not appear a very small financial proportion. Which is the Advocate mourning, God or Mammon? What is the great object of the church for which it speaks? The amassing of material wealth or the enlightenment of mankind? Judging by its lamentations it would appear that Mammon was the deity before which it bends, and this view is strengthened by the sight of the inevitable subscription list and contribution plate, which are constant features of every Methodist gathering, and the tools in the hands of the average Methodist minister.

If the success of the early Christian church had been gauged by the Advocate's standard, the Apostles and Fathers would have had greater cause for feeling humiliated than the Methodist editor. They counted souls instead of skeletons, and rejoiced over converts more than buildings and chaises. And whereas they felt no grief at the withdrawal of their earthly possessions, but counted all such things as dust when compared with the higher riches. "I will not be troubled." "If the Advocate felt humiliated" as the lack of true gospel characteristics in its $83,000,000 church; at the absence of divine power and divine authority in its ministers; at the undividedness of its representatives in conference assemblies; at the absence of its efforts to crush by the arm of the law a society of worshippers whose doctrines they could not overcome by argument; at the pride, uncharity, worldliness and vanity of its preachers and people; there would be some sense in its sorrow and reason in its abasement. But as it is, the only words which rightly apply to its vexation over the church accumulations of a century, are disgusting covetousness and amazing greed.

CHICAGO, 23.—The Times-Globe special says it is the intention of General Hancock to resign his position as Governor of Illinois. He has made up his mind to do so. He does not hesitate to say that, in his opinion, the democrats have, in General Hancock, a man whose integrity and strength of character he has never known equal. "This is the substance of the Chicago Tribune's public statement on that subject."

gun to give a revised version of Gen. Hancock's conduct in the Surgeon's office. Mrs. Pratt, daughter of Mrs. Burrill and first wife of Professor Toney, denounce Hancock. A review of Hancock's career in the Fifth military district in 1863 shows him to have been the chief of conspirators who frustrated the overthrow of the reconstruction laws. It is shown that Gen. Hancock's last active military campaign, that against the Cheyenne Indians, cost the Government $9,000,000 and proved a failure.

The country hereabout is intensely dry and the weather hot, with no apparent signs of rain. The census shows that several Massachusetts cities, besides Boston, have made rapid gains in population. Lowell which in 1870 had 41,000, now has about 60,000. Lawrence has advanced in ten years from 25,000 to 35,000, and Lynn from 28,333 to nearly 40,000. Increase in the cities and manufacturing towns has not been made at the expense of the country towns and villages, which seem to hold their own.
