A WORKINGMAN WRITES ON TYRANNY OF UNIONS

To the Editor:

Reading the articles contained in your excellent paper of late upon the labor proplems, the writer is under the impression that the employers as well as the general public think there is more unity among the laboring men than there really is. There are internal dissensions among the workingment lack if harmony and disunion among the unions. There are many skilled workers in this city, lots of them, who will not join the unions; who will rath-er "go on to the farms" than deliver up their individual rights and liberits to a few self important men who ard as though they were the "whole thing." And they have in their own opinion, good reasans for not associating them-state they do not need to join for the stake of getting good salaries, as their mode mechanic is "worthy of his bire." They say they cannet and will not per-petrate a fraud upon the employers by assisting men who are not worth $2 a day to get $4; they say that they are in favor of a grading classification of wages in the unions.
