GEO, M. SCOTT & CO. term, in supplementary proceedings in the suit brought by Frank P. Mursh, in connection with the investigation of the Morey letter, as he made no contract with the committee.

Ex-United States Senator Wm. II. Bainum, chairman of the Democratic National committee, was examined. He said that about two weeks before the opening of the Democatic head-quarters in 1850, Hadley, who had been previously introduced to him, came to him for money to start a Republican Hancock Club. Hadley was told he might be spared $500. After the publication of the Morey letter, word came from New Hampshire that Morey could be found out about at Lyfin, Mass., Hadley said he would go for his expenses only. He was given $200 or $200 for expenses before going. The committee was afterwards informed that Hadley had gotten into some trouble and the committee gave him $1,000 as a simple donation. This must have been before Hadley's letter asking for pay for his services. Barnum has no recollection of promising Hadley anything for his services, and said it had not been a subject of consideration among the members of the committee that Hadley had a claim for compensation. Barnum in reply to the questions said that the circumstances connected with the Morey letter made a fair impression on his mind, but Hadley's mame was not strongly identified with them.

declination the convention nominated him for governor, and Henry H. Foxson of Quincy for Lieutenaut Governor. It is stated President Seelye will accept the nomination.

After recess the State ticket was completed as follows: Secretary of State. George Kempton; Treasurer and Receiver, Gen. C. B. Knight: Attorney General, Samuel M. Fairfield; Auditor, Wm. W. Sherman. In the declaration of principles the belief is expressed that in the present campaign the paramount issue is the temperance issue. No mere party questions are in order until intemperance is put down and stamped out. James G. Blaine's action in view of falling to vote the prohibition amendment in Maine, proves him to be "an eminently fit exponent of the cowardly position of his party on the question of prohibition." A telegram was sent congratulating the prohibitionists of Maine upon

The Czar Startled.

The Czar and Czarina inspected several hospitals and schools. Their majesties laid the foundation stone this afternoon of a new wing of the Red Cross Hospital. This evening the Czar and party proceeded to Wilna, where they will attend the military manævres. Despite the difficulty of approaching the Czar, a bourgeoise managed to present the Emperor a peapproaching the Czar, a bourgeoise managed to present the Emperor a petition. The Czar at first was visibly startled, ordered his carriage stopped and promised to help his suppliant. The latter, however, was arrested. There has been a thousand arrests in connection with the visit of the Czar. To-night the Czar drove to the theatre incognito. The carriage was blocked in the passage by two trains of cars and the Czarina became frightened. The Czar prevented her jumping out of the carriage. He then alighted and helped to extricate the train. The Czar was unrecognized. Several Polish noblemen did not attend the Czarina's reception. Only the officers and the wives of the officials were present. Of 800 persons invited to attend the ball given in the Czar's honor by Gen. Gourka, only 400 accepted. The nobility were absent. A Nihilist manifesto was liberally circulated throughout the city.

overnor Hendricks in Toledo Tolero, 10.— Governor Hendricks addressed 4,500 people at the Fan grounds this afternoon, the subject being the importance of agriculture and mechanic arts. In the evening he spoke to a democratic mass meeting ing the importance of agriculture and mechanic arts. In the evening he spoke to a democratic mass meeting in the Fifth Ward, to an andience of 3,000. In the course of his speech Hendricks said: "The democrats declare in their platform at things that the revenue must be reduced to the requirements of the government economically administered. What do you say to that, my fellow citizens? Are you a democrat, are you a granger, or an independent? Whatever may be your party relation, what do you say to that proposition of the Chicago convention, that the revenue shall be reduced to the needs of the government, economically administered. (Applause.) If you do not like that, don't vote with the democracy, for when the democracy comes into power, I undertake to say, that the machinery will be turned for awhile, backward did I say? No, forward, in favor of reform, reducing taxation to the needs of the government economically administered. What are you going to collect any more for (voice, 'stealing') why should we have an extraordinary taxation twenty years after we have passed away from the condition of the war?" Passing from this subject Headricks said: "The republican party under the leadership of the chieftains who are at its head, have now abandoned substantially their old friends, the Germans, and they are laying hold of my Irish friends with a zeal, that is absolutely heautiful. What have the Germans done, that they should be abandoned by the republican party thus?

CLOTHING. mans done, that they should be abandoned by the republican party thus? The only fault I know of the Germans is that he says when he lived in Germany beside the Rhine he thought he had a right to decide for himself what Manufacturers of and Dealers in COTTON SAIL DUCK, "Woodberry," Druid Mills, "POLHEMUS" and other favorite brands, all numbers—Hard, Medium and Soft. many beside the Rhine he thought he had a right to decide for himself what he would eat and drink, and wherewithal he should be clothed. What say you, my German friends. Is prohibition right or wrong? (a voice wrong.") Wrong! Of course it is. In my State our democracy have fought this battle well out upon the idea that whether a man shall take a drink of beer or of whisky it belongs to himself." The Governor then recited at length the case in the Administration of Marcy, and the McSweeney case in 1881, when Blaine was Secretary of State, as a tending to show which party was the true friend of foreign born citizens. Concerning the latter, he said: "In the month of June, 1881, shortly before Mr. Garfield received the deadly wound, McSweeney, an Irishman ba birth, havins six or seven American born children, however, and having lived in San Francisco in pursuit of ligitimate trade for 21 years, having been completely naturalized, and bearing all the honors upon his permit of American citizenship, thought he would return for his health to Ireland. He did so, and in the TOCK FOR DYERALLS BLUE BROWN ON IN THE GREY COTTON CANVASS of all numbers—14 to 150 inches wide, for Deck, Car, Trunk and Wagon Coverings, Machine Aprons and for other purposes, constantly in store and BRASS & PLATED WORK FOR WATER, CAS & STEAM. Refer by permission to David James, Salt ized, and hearing all the honors upon his permit of American citizenship, thought he would return for his health to Ireland. He did so, and in the month of June he was arrested in Ireland by British constables and landed in a British jail. No charge was preferred against him, no violation of laws was assigned against the seized freeman. Until then, without fault, without crime, without violation of any English law whatever, he was seized and thrown into a hideous dangeon. His wife wrote a letter to the State Department at Washington, informing the Secretary of State that her husband was ther under arrest and imprisonment without charge. The letter was received at the State Department in Washington on the 19th day of August. James 6. Blaine was then Secretary of State, and then acting as President of the United States, Mr. Garfield then languishing upon his bed of pais. That letter was unopened, so far as we know, at least unanswers. It is never was answered so long as Bilane continued in the State Department, and he remained in that department until the month of December, that letter being received in the August before. For four months he neglected to give attention to an appeal made by a woman in a distant is not applying to him for the honor of his country, for the justice of her laws, for the dignity of her citizenship, that her husband should be relieved. It was not a question of express written law. The statutes of the that her husband should be relieved. It was not a question of express written law. The statutes of the country, then in force, made it the duty of the President, whonever any person from this country should be held in unlawful imprisonment, that he should demand the cause of the imprisonment, and if the answer did not justify the imprisonment he should demand the release of the man. That was the law and yet James G.

did not justify the imprisonment he should demand the release of the man. That was the law, and yet James G. Blaine—the dashing, as they say. [Laughter and applicate,] neglected to answer it, and during the whole of the four months that he held that high office, and controlled the seal of our country, no answer was made and no instructions to our Minister at London, and McSweeney did not come out of jail until the spring following another administration. I am not speaking on this subject to Irishmen. I am speaking to my fellow-citizens; to every man who fells prouder and stronger when the flag of his country floats over him. To all such I say will you endorse the conduct of Blaine, or will you rally under the banner which Marcy, under Pierce's administration, did erect over us all?"

Gov. Hendricks closed with an allusion to the manner of his nomination, and with a strong appeal to the democrats to carry thio in October, as that would decide the contest in November.
