THE EVENING NEWS.

Wednesday, - - October 9, 1872.

IN BEHALF OF THE FEMALE RELIEF SOCIETY.

How truly laudable our sisters' aim!
How well deserving they of endless fame!
To aid the aged, sick, infirm and poor;
Their many troubles mitigate or cure;
Give help substantial to the weak or blind,
Regardful of the body as the mind;
To cool the parched tongue, the fever'd breath,
Assist the sick to shun the gates of death;
Be "good Samaritans," whose hearts can feel,
Filled with compassion and with skill to heal;
Strive in the gap of ebbing life to stand,
Pour in the oil and wine with grudgeless hand;
Devising kindnesses, the road to pave
Of aged pilgrims, travelling to the grave,
Whose fading powers demand, but seldom find,
Consideration due, or treatment kind;
To shield the orphan in its state forlorn,
Protect from cold and hunger's piercing thorn;
Not like too many, stand supinely by,
And grant at most perhaps a fruitless sigh;
But fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters be,
And help them to a bless'd futurity;
Assist the widow to endure her loss,
Nor grudge a helping hand to bear her cross,
No. 'Tis our sisters' noble aim to be
The true embodiment of charity.
Most surely he who sits enthroned above,
Fails not to recognise such works of love.
Pure angels too, and spirits of the blest,
The Order's heavenly origin attest.
'Twas God inspired the Prophet to commence
The fund of blessings issuing from hence.
Commencing small, just like the mighty stream,
Or coming daylight's feeble, dusky beam,
Or like a tender plant, that needed care,
The ruthless storms and scorching heat to bear;
May it increase till, like a mighty flood,
Accumulates its means of doing good;
Until its light expands to perfect day,
And grateful myriads share its genial ray;
Or like a giant tree, spread far around,
Where fruit and shade for millions may be found.
Help on the cause who can, nor grudge to be
The friends and saviors of humanity.
Far brighter laurels then your heads will grace,
Than if by war you conquer'd half your race.
To dry the springs of human misery
Is noble work, is true felicity.
Long may our sisters live to bless their kind,
Approv'd of heaven, and fill'd with peace of mind.
And when from mortal cares each shall be free,
May all rejoice throughout eternity;
Alike the comforters, and once distressed,
Abundant entrance find among the bless'd.
There all with one accord in praises sing
Of our Redeemer, Father, Priest, and King.

The Japanese Girls.

A Washington correspondent of the Evening Post writes:

"A painful rumor comes to us in regard to one of these children. It would appear that they were, some months ago, domiciled in a house by themselves, with a good and faithful housekeeper—Miss Hane—and furnished with competent private teachers. The disposition of them was made by way of preparing them to be sent to different schools in November; and they have been so persistent in their studies that one of them has been compelled to give up her lessons on account of an affection of the eyes with which she has been afflicted. Not less than three oculists have been consulted, and they all declare that she must not use her eyes, and is in great danger of becoming totally blind. Indeed, the difficulty is so serious that the Japanese Minister has informed the unfortunate child that she will have to return to Japan, and another student be sent in her place. The name of the sufferer is Rio Yoshonians, and she is not only the eldest of the party, but particularly bright in intellect, and noted for her many amiable qualities. When the final decision was made known to her that she must return to Japan, she acquiesced without a word of complaint; but her companions were greatly distressed, and manifested their sorrow in the most touching manner. When little Ume Tsuda, the youngest of the girl students, was informed that they were to be separated, she expressed a desire to go and live with the lady who took charge of her on her first arrival in Washington, and as the Japanese minister gave his consent and the lady in question was very much more than willing, it is understood that the oriental waif will spend the coming year in Georgetown, which she has learned to look upon as her American home."

An Honest Theatrical Manager.

LONDON, Sept. 2, 1872.

Apropos of the dramatic profession, I should not omit to mention that one of the events of the week is the publication in the Era of a letter from W. S. Gilbert, the author of "The Palace of Truth," drawing attention to a most generous communication sent him by John McCullough, the lessee of the California Theatre, who sends Mr. Gilbert a check for a sum in the neighborood of £80, being the author's share of a four weeks' successful performance of "The Palace of Truth." Mr. Gilbert, of course, has no legal claim whatever to such a payment, and the remittance took him quite by surprise. He was delighted to hear that his charming fairy comedy had had so successful a run on shores so far away as those of your Golden State. But that you should have a manager who considered the eighth commandment an all-sufficient copyright, and who, without any previous communication, and of his own noble generosity, should remit a square account of the earnings of the play, and a handsome balance in hard cash, was a disclosure of California conscientiousness more wonderful than any he could have looked for, even had California been unfolding her inner consciousness under the spell of the enchanted palace itself. John McCullough has certainly, by this act, shown that the highest type of a gentleman is not restricted to any particular climate, or to the members of any particular profession, and he has by it gained a place in the esteem of the dramatic world here, for which he and California will, in time, be no losers.—Cor. S. F. Chronicle.

A Scrupulous Witness—The Quakers Outdone.

The Norfolk Journal says:

"A witness in an assault and battery case, which came before the Mayor a few days ago, refused either to swear or affirm, saying he had conscientious scruples in that respect. The case being an unimportant one, and the assault being admitted by the assailant, the Mayor declined to insist upon the matter, but told the recusant witness that if the case was an important one he would be compelled to insist upon a compliance with the law. The witness said his Bible taught him to swear not at all, and he would go to prison before he would do it. He evidently thought an affirmation the same as an oath. As this is rather a novel question, we subjoin the law on the subject. According to chapter XVI., section 17, Code of 1860, 'the word oath shall be construed to include an affirmation may be substituted for an oath, and in the like cases the word "sworn" shall be construed to include the word "affirm." According to chapter XIII., section 7, 'if any person required to take an oath shall declare that he has religious scruples as to the propriety of taking it, he may make a solemn affirmation, which shall in all respects have the same effect as an oath.' The penalty for refusing to be sworn or to make an affirmation is confinement in jail until the witness is willing to testify. We understand that the peculiar views entertained by the witness referred to above are shared by several other persons in this community."
