

SECOND SESSION OF CONFERENCE

Yesterday's Afternoon Service Attended by Large Gathering of Saints.

MUST OBSERVE ALL LAWS

Only By This Means May the Promised Blessings Be Realized—Keynote Continues as Theme.

The afternoon session of the second day of conference convened at 2 o'clock, President Francis M. Lyman announcing the opening hymn, President Smith and counselors not having arrived, but they came in while the singing was in progress. The building was again crowded to its capacity, and the speakers of the occasion, Elders George Albert Smith, George F. Richards and Orson F. Whitney, were listened with rapt attention. "Come, come ye Saints," "O, say what is truth" and "The Spirit of God like a fire is burning," were sung during the service by the choir and congregation, and the solo, "Rest in the Lord," was rendered by Elder Charles E. Pike. The invocation was offered by Patriarch Joseph E. Taylor, and Elder Seymour F. Young pronounced the benediction.

ELDER GEORGE ALBERT SMITH.
Elder George Albert Smith rejoiced that the eighty-ninth session of the Doctrine and Covenants had been so forcibly called to the attention of the conference by President Smith. If men and women fail to keep the commandments of God, they will not claim for promised blessings. The favor of the Lord flows to those who observe the things of the kingdom. The land of Zion is composed of North and South America, and millions of people live upon it. This land is blessed above all other lands. Upon this land the gospel was restored, and every word that came from the mouth of the Lord is a testimony of its truth.

By reason of the non-observance of the Word of Wisdom a lack of faith has in some cases been manifested among the people. The commandment is susceptible of being observed by the weakest of the weak. The speaker found, he said, that in many of the cases of the Word of Wisdom, the law is strictly kept by the leading authorities. For instance, in St. George stake, with 22 wards, the stake presidency, the high councilors, and bishops, with two exceptions, observed the commandment and these two decided to make it unanimous. The only saloon in St. George, had been put out of existence, with much good resulting to the community. The exercise of the franchise to curtail the liquor traffic is an injury to no one, and takes no right or privilege away from anyone. Utah should have been the very first state to start the temperance movement, by reason of the commandment of the Lord giving so much power to the Word of Wisdom. The opinion of the speaker that this nation is the grandest and best in all the world.

ELDER GEORGE F. RICHARDS.
The spirit of this conference is to awaken an interest among the people to keep the Word of Wisdom, said Elder George F. Richards, the second speaker. It is necessary that those who are called to lead the people, should observe this law themselves, and teach the same to the people. When the Church was in financial distress, the president of the Church was inspired to call upon the saints to be more faithful in the payment of the tithes and offerings. The result was most satisfactory, and the speaker felt that a call to duty in the matter of the Word of Wisdom would be equally gratifying, coming as it did the advice of the Word of Wisdom. The Word of Wisdom should be observed, not only from a spiritual and physical standpoint, but as a matter of personal and national economy. Above all, it is a commandment of the Lord, and should be obeyed without question. That reason alone should be sufficient to any consistent Latter-day Saint.

On the road to perfection, the first principles of the gospel should not be forgotten nor laid aside, but should be carried forward with the more advanced principles. One of the fundamental principles of the gospel is repentance, and this should be brought into requisition in the matter of reformation regarding the Word of Wisdom.

The warfare in the spirit world between the Son of God and Lucifer, the son of the morning, was referred to by Elder Richards, who said that the warfare was just as pronounced here as it was in the other world. The struggle between good and evil is constant, but victory is on the side of the humble, penitent, and self-sacrificing.

The speaker had observed, he said, in his travels that reproval concerning non-compliance with the Word of Wisdom did not apply to many of the Latter-day Saints.

ELDER O. F. WHITNEY.

"It is about 2,000 years, according to our chronology, since Jesus Christ died on Calvary," said Elder O. F. Whitney, the last speaker of the afternoon. "It is over 100 years since Joseph Smith came into the world to restore the gospel of the Son of God. It is over 18 years since the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints was organized. Has the restoration of the gospel helped the world? Have men and women grown better or worse? The speaker said he had faith in mankind and believed the world is 6,000 years nearer to God than when Adam was driven from Eden. The world is growing better, in spite of the sins of man and of commission. The Latter-day Saints are in a better condition today than ever before. Conditions are improving, though there is room for further advancement and betterment. There is no room for excuse for stagnation. The saints should go on to perfection. There will always be a need for the exercise of faith, repentance will be necessary as long as men do wrong and backslide. Progress, not stagnation, was intended by the injunction of Paul as to loving the first principles of the gospel of Christ, and pressing on to perfection. "I cannot conceive that a religion like Mormonism could be preached for 78 years and the world be no better for it. Despite the imperfections of mortals, I believe the people are growing better," said Elder Whitney.

A minister friend had complained to the speaker that Mormonism did not recognize nor approve the efforts being put forth in the world by people not of their faith. The divine had been informed that he was outlandish, mistaken, as the Church and its adherents did recognize and support all good wherever found. Mormonism stands for progress and development and it is a fountain of charity and good will for the entire human race.

Extracts were read by Elder Whitney from the pen productions of Henry Van Dyke on "The World Growing Better." The writer speaks of three essential phases of goodness, justice, and self-restraint and in two points of mainly, justice and mercy, the world was growing better, in the opinion of the writer. The injustice formerly existing towards sinners, for your devotion has been all but obliterated. And many great improvements were noted.

But how is it with self-restraint, the third essential? Speaker, as well as the writer, expressed a doubt as to whether the world was really growing better from the standpoint indicated. However, two were stronger than one, and Mr. Van Dyke was of the opinion that after all there was but little cause for discouragement. In the matter of the non-compliance with the Word of Wisdom, Elder Whitney thought he saw an instance of the lack of self-restraint on the part of some Latter-day Saints. It is more a matter of thoughtlessness than of a desire to do wrong. God will not be thwarted in His plans and purposes. God will triumph over Satan. God is the helmsman, God is on the throne, and will watch over His own, and this answers the question of Mr. Van Dyke as to which way the tug of war will go. The closing remarks of President Smith were as follows:

"We feel to give to God praise and gratitude from our hearts for the manifest interest shown by you, the Latter-day Saints, the people of the church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, in this semi-annual conference. During the inclement weather of yesterday this building was filled to overflowing, and overjoyed meetings were held in the Assembly hall and in the Barratt hall, and the Spirit of the Lord was enjoyed richly by all who heard. We thank you and the Lord will bless you, my brethren and sisters, for your devotion to His cause, for your love for His truth, for your union and fellowship with another and for your fellow-ship toward those who are called to labor in your midst and to preside over you in the various organizations of the Church. I feel in my heart to say not only God bless you, but as I may exercise my own right as a witness to the Lord Jesus and as an apostle of Jesus Christ, I bless you with all my soul, because you love the truth, and you manifest it. There is nothing in the world that draws me nearer to women so near to my heart as that they love the truth and that they love God, that they love the cause of Zion and are devoted to the interests of the Church. This endears men and women to my heart; I love them when they love this work and when they show their interest in it. It lifts my soul to heaven and fills it with joy unspeakable."

God bless you in your joys, in your minds, in your labors, in your homes, in all your positions and above all things, point out upon you His Spirit that you may rejoice more and more abundantly in God's glorious work that He is inaugurating in the world in the latter day. Praise be to you and all that pertains to you and to the kingdom of God, is my prayer, in the name of Jesus, Amen."

AT THE UNIVERSITY.

Where is the villain who wrote the "false" University "yell book" and who is he, is the question bothering the students at the State University. The book was brought to light at the Monday afternoon session of the executive board of the associated students. It appears that the book was written for the sake of the associated students, and the books left unaltered for with the printer with a bill attached in favor of the executive board. Miss Maud May Babcock is looking into the advisability of presenting a Shakespearean production this winter. The University Engineering society will hold its first regular meeting Wednesday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock. The students will visit the state fair Wednesday and the faculty have declared a half-holiday for that purpose. Some People Compromise

When they think it is "too hard" to quit coffee at once and shift to straight Postum, they compromise the case by using Postum with a little coffee in it. Of course, that isn't "strictly business" and a person will not as quickly recover from coffee ails as if pure were used, but the compromise is better than to stick to the old coffee habit and continue to suffer. Gradually less coffee can be put into the brew and soon only Pure Postum is used. Then can be expected that the old aches and ails will disappear.

SCENE AT NIGHT ONE OF GAITY

Fair Grounds Thronged With Well Pleased Crowds
Last Evening.

VAUDEVILLE A STRONG CARD

Many Acts of Merit Presented—Display of Fireworks a Big Feature —Real Indians Appear.

The evening feature at the fair grounds last night was the vaudeville entertainment on the park opposite the grand stand, which as a whole was a highly meritorious performance. A large platform had been erected upon which the performers appeared. A circle of electric lights surrounded the stage and the various acts were presented under their glare.

The show opened with a triple trapeze act which contained a number of new features. The Smythe sisters—three of them—followed with some clever contortionist acts which were skillfully executed. The "Dare-Devil" Volio, advertised to "leap the gap" in hair raising style, rode his bicycle down an incline something like they have in circuses, and made a leap which failed to elicit a hand-clap. The small boys present were much disappointed, many of them complaining that the rider did not even "turn a somersault."

The lady on the tight wire was a clever performer, and the antics of the accompanying clown caused a deal of merriment. The lady contortionist, dressed like a real stage soldier, blew a fairly good tune on her gold lined instrument, but her triple tongueing fell down considerably and her support was extremely ragged edged. The high diving of the Norins, man and wife, was the most meritorious feature of the evening, nine separate and different styles of diving from a high tower into a pond of water 18 feet long by 12 feet wide by 4½ feet deep, being exactly as advertised. When Mr. Norin climbed up to the top of the 60-foot tower and dove headlong into the small patch of water below people held their breath until he bobbed up from the pond unharmed. The diver also donned a suit of burning paper and dove into the pond which had been covered with burning oil, after which his wife made her only dive from half way up the tower.

The most novel feature of the evening was perhaps the aggregation of Shoshone Indians, who gathered in a circle in their showy blankets and to the weird sound of the pom-pom executed war cries and gave a correct imitation of the Indian war dance. The entertainment closed with an exhibition of Pains fireworks, and this was a most beautiful display. Among the pleasing features were the "frothy" order, consisting of two paper articles which were consumed by their own fire before reaching a very great height.

The "search-light artist" almost spoiled several of the acts by inopportune flashing of the powerful rays upon the performers and in the eyes of the audience, but altogether the evening at the fair grounds was a very enjoyable one.

WOMEN'S WORK AT FAIR.

Meritorious Display in This Section
Attracts Many Visitors.

In the women's department there is a meritorious display of handiwork, ranging from patchwork quilts to the finest specimens of needlework. The students and the faculty have declared a half-holiday for that purpose. The University Engineering society will hold its first regular meeting Wednesday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock. The students will visit the state fair Wednesday and the faculty have declared a half-holiday for that purpose.

There are many other varieties of hand lace work, all showing care and excellence. A large display of embroidery is seen also, the articles be-

Supervisors of the State Fair—No 1.

LESTER D. FREED.

Department A.A.—East Horses.

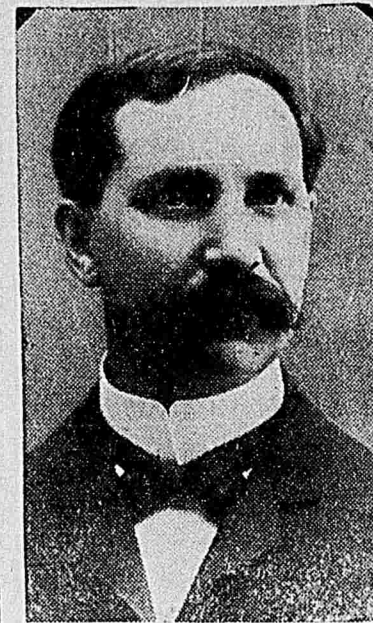

Lester D. Freed, the wellknown authority on Morris chairs and automobiles, is exhibiting marked diplomacy as supervisor of the fast horses at the fair. Yesterday morning in the absence of "hotter" races, Mr. Freed gained for himself the sobriquet of pilot of the race track ferry, and hero of the thrilling three act piece "Alone in a Sea of Mud." The picture presents Mr. Freed at a thoughtful attitude superintending by his breaking the automobile record from Third South to the fair grounds on Saturday night. In the unheard of thing, two horses and thirty minutes, during which his machine sunk into the roadbed of the streetcar company and tied up the entire Harlan system for an hour. Now that the sun shines Mr. Freed is handing out the best races seen on the fair grounds in the memory of the oldest inhabitant.

log mostly in sofa cushions which show handsome designs. Perhaps the most artistic of these is a cushion embroidered in peacock design, the arrangement, blending of colors and work being most excellent.

Some of the cases show pretty specimens of crocheted and knitted work, and gowns and cloaks, home-made, and ready for wear. There is a good show display, in fact, throughout the department.

In connection with the women's work, it will be appropriate to mention the needlework display in the schools, the Utah Agricultural college showing a most noteworthy display. It is in charge of the instructor, Mrs. Cooke, and fills several cases in a large corner of the art building. In it are shown the specimens of the students' work, in hemming, tucking, etc., from the beginning up through various pieces of handwork to handsome lingerie and gowns, the first efforts being kept in books in the various stitches, to which references can be made in judging the pupils' work. Everything is seen, evidencing the progression from the crude blocks, or samplers, to the most difficult work; there are most exquisite specimens of lingerie in baby trousseaus, and ladies' hives, whose fineness of touch and detail would be a credit to any establishment; and there are two gowns, a tan silk and black silk, both handsomely made, and showing in every detail excellent handwork. Nearly all the graduating pupils of this department made their own commencement gowns, and all were creditable. There were in evidence, also, many pieces of dainty embroidery, also the work of the pupils. This kind of needlework, the assistant explained, was purely elective, while the simpler and more practical needlework was imperative. The display is complete and impressive.

In the china department, a fine display of hand-painted pieces, some of the handsomest pieces being the vases and jardinières, while daintier, though no less artistic, are the tea-sets, and other smaller pieces shown in the display. There are two or three competitors in the fair whose work is of such even excellence that the judges will perhaps have difficulty in making awards.

FRANK J. HEWLETT.

Department I—Manufacturers.

Frank J. Hewlett, the man responsible for the diffusion of the aroma of the spices and rubies throughout the Third ecclesiastical ward and vicinity of his factory generally, is the headliner in the Manufacturers Hall at the State Fair and is filling the bill as an expert mathematician, color expert, human encyclopedia and peacemaker extraordinary. In his capacity of mathematician he solved the problem of getting 50,000 square feet of exhibits in 40,000 square feet of space. As a color expert he has indulged in divers vocal contests with the decorators in his domain who are addicted to riots of hues without due regard to local surroundings. As a human encyclopedia, he is a ready reference for bewildered exhibitors, while when it comes to the star role of peacemaker he has referred more disputes on the fair grounds, with perfect satisfaction to the principals, than did Siler in his palmist days.

WOMAN'S NARROW ESCAPE.

Johanna Hansen Is Struck by Car, but Not Seriously Hurt.

Johanna Hansen of 788 West Seventh South street, aged 69, narrowly escaped death yesterday afternoon at Eighth West and North Temple streets, where she was standing on the westbound track looking toward an eastbound car she wanted to take. Mrs. Hansen did not hear the warning gong of a car rapidly approaching from the east, so did not move as the car came up. The motorist, James Cunningham, threw on the brakes as hard as he could, Mrs. Hansen was struck and thrown under the car. But the car was under such control that it was stopped as the woman, who barely touched the prostrate woman, she was quickly rescued from her perilous position unhurt, and brought downtown, with only a bad shaking up.

Lieut. Upham Thinks Dark Clothes Better Than White.

Lieut. John S. Upham of the Fifteenth infantry had an experience the other night at the fort that he will remember for some time; and if he doesn't, his brother officers will see that his memory is suitably refreshed. High living has developed an "abdominal yaywardness" that is not in accord with the ethics of military and artistic symmetry in general, applied to the human form in particular. The lieutenant, after sitting up nights, thinking the matter over, concluded to try a protracted system of physical exercise. So he donned a white cap and sweater and started in long after dark, up and down a long road back of the post. Presently the sentry noticed a ghost-like form fitting along the vista, as it were. He studied the situation long enough to convince himself that he had not been drinking, that his mind was clear. He reasoned it must be a derelict patient escaped from the post hospital, turned in a general alarm and brought out the sergeant of the guard with his squad. The sergeant did not agree with the sentry that it was an insane patient from the post hospital. He believed it must be a spirit from the realm of Pluto, and that the white robe was of ash-stained as indicated to a high thermometrical environment. So the sergeant called out the regimental fire department, as best suited to the occasion. The martial firemen agreed with the sergeant, laid a line of hose, and as the lieutenant

"Avast there! Whatcher doing?" came from the unearthly figure in white in anything but an immaterial yell.
