THEATRICAL.—We were sorry to see so poor a house to witness the performance of yesterday evening. "The Apostate" deserved a better fate. The "Pirates" of Mr. McCullough was a powerful and highly enjoyable piece of drama. The other characters were creditably enacted, although we must say, there was altogether too much prompting required in several scenes. "The Obstinate Family," a pleasant little farce, found good favor with the audience. Messrs. Graham, Lindsay, Margotta and Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Bowring, and Mrs. Romney. This evening, Melopoeia leaves the field to her gay sister, Melba. Melba and Thalia return to-night, the bloody dagger rests for awhile, and mirth will fill the Temple of Art, surely to the delight of a large number of admirers. Two comedies are announced, "Playing with Fire" and "Wild Oats," and another good little sugar-plum is thrown in by Mr. McCullough in the shape of his splendid recitation of "Shamus O'Brien," a perfect masterpiece of noble elocution. In both comedies Mr. McCullough will appear. Mr. Wilson will appear again as "Waverly" in "Playing with Fire." This bill should attract a house, crowded from parquette to ceiling, it is certainly the best comedy entertainment presented for some time past. Next Monday we shall have a rare treat, "Romeo and Juliet" will then breathe forth their sighs in the face of the pale moon, and we shall listen with Juliet to the songs of the Nightingale from "yon pomgranate-tree." (We think it is a squalling baby) Day and night we have Mercutio will amuse us with his satire and wit, and old Friar Lawrence will give us a touch of his wisdom. Whatever is most intoxicating in the odor of a Southern Spring, languishing in the song of the Nightingale, or voluptuous in the first opening of the rose, is breathed in to this poem. But even more rapidly than the earliest blossoms of youth and beauty decay, it hurries on from the first timidly held declaration of love and modest return, to the most unbridled passion, to an irrevocable union; then, amidst alternating storms of rapture and despair, to the death of the two lovers, who still appear as their love revives them, and as by their death they have obtained a triumph over every separating power. The sweetest and truest love, love and hatred, festivity and dark forebodings, tender embraces and sepulchres, the fulness of life and self-annihilation, are all brought close to each other; and all these contrasts are so blended in the harmonious and wonderful work that a unity of impression, that the echo which the whole leaves behind resembles a single but endless sigh. The cast is one of superior excellence. Madame Scheller will give life to the character of "gentle Juliet," Mr. Waldron will be the "sweet Romeo," and Mr. McCullough the witty and brave Mercutio. Mr. McCullough plays Friar Lawrence, Mr. Lindsay Tibalt and Mrs. Clawson the Nurse. This is a great cast, and we shall "never look upon the like again."

GAMBLERS ROUTED.—Last night, at about 9 o'clock, the police made a descent on a gambling house over the Miners' National Bank, and arrested the parties present and took possession of the implements of the profession. This morning at 4 o'clock the officers perpetrated a similar piece of rudeness in a gambling hole situated 1 up stairs, next door to the Merchants' Exchange. The several offenders made their bow before His Honor Justice Clinton this morning, and at the close of their interview left a hundred dollars, and a city purpose. Gentlemen of this profession who may be visiting our city, will find that gambling will not pay here. Our police officers are keen of eye and scent.

FINED.—John Ryan, under the influence of laughing gas of some equally potent stimulant, became rather too demonstrative in the Theatre last evening, during the performance of the "Apostate," and called loudly for "More." This being an infraction of etiquette and of the rules of the house, John was taken under the fraternal care of the managers, and not being in a condition to take care of himself he was accommodated with an apartment in the City Hall, and this morning, not having his X ready to pay for the kindness and accommodation tendered to him, he took a grating contract on the city streets for that amount.

BEAR LAKE.—Mr. Leventhal, of this City, arrived from Bear Lake last night. He left Paris last Sunday. Mr. L. speaks highly of the hospitality of the people of Paris. Referring to the carrying of the mails from Cache Valley to Bear Lake, Mr. Leventhal thinks great credit is due to General Rich and his son Thomas for the enterprise and daring evinced by them, especially the latter, with whom Mr. L. traveled thirty miles across the mountains over an Indian trail, there being from four to six feet of snow on the journey. Mr. Leventhal says to undertake such a journey regularly at this time of year, when it can not be done without risking life, for the sake of carrying letters and papers to and from the people of Bear Lake, is surprising, and is worth far more in dollars and cents than is paid for it.

FLOODED STREETS.—We have heard repeated inquiries made within a few days by the citizens of South Temple Street, and others who travel on that street as to where the water-master could be. The street is in a disgraceful condition through the overflowing of the water. It is suffered to run down the ditches on an evening, and they soon freeze up and dam the water, and it finds egress through the middle of the street, and makes the crossings impassable except at the risk of getting wet feet. Other streets are in the same condition. We saw some children attempting to cross the street this morning, but they did not get over without wetting their feet. In summer this might not be very hurtful; but at the present season it is dangerous to life and health, and speedy measures should be taken to remove this evil. If, when the weather is warm, the street of which we speak is covered with mud and water, when it is cold and freezing it is covered with a sheet of glare ice, which makes walking exceedingly dangerous to ladies and infirm and aged persons. We believe there has been some action taken by the City Council in relation to the water, under which the city water-master is authorized to turn all the water into the main stream upon and after the 1st of November of each year, until again needed for irrigating purposes. We do not think our gentlemanly and efficient water-master is altogether to blame for the wretched condition of our streets; some of the citizens who want water doubtless take the liberty of wasting the water, without his knowledge, and turning the water into the ditches; but the public blame him, as they think he ought to take effective measures to prevent everybody from taking such liberties.

FLOATING WESTWARD.—Some of the public journals give interesting and graphic descriptions of the heterogeneous crowd of desperately reckless characters that are gradually floating westward as they are driven from the towns on the Union Pacific railroad by vigilance committees. Hear what the Humboldt Register says: "Persons just down from the upper Humboldt state that cut-throats, gamblers, and desperadoes of every name and grade, are coming westward in perfect shoals, as they are driven out from the new towns on the Union Pacific road by the terror of vigilance committees. Many of this lawless class of desperadoes care no more for the life of a man than for that of a coyote, and only the fear of a rope in the hands of an outraged community deters them from indiscriminate crime and murder. From present appearances they promise to make it lively along the railroad this winter. It is an excellent prospect that fore-warned is fore-armed." There is no harm in our citizens being amply prepared, so that should a surplus of scoundrelism float this way during the present winter, and attempt to ply their hellish practices in this city we may be prepared to give them a proper reception.
