Extreme Judicial Action -- It is scarcely possible to imagine a more extreme judicial action than the one taken by his honor Judge Twiss of the Second District Court, in the case of the woman Belle Harris, who regular meetings were hald; now it appears; is still in custody for contempt. The question put to her by the grand jury and which she declined to noswer was, so we are a number having been added to the informed, whether she had ever been married, and if so to whom? She was taken into court and the Judge deciding the question was proper, and the witness persisting in her declination to answer, fined her $25 and re.nanded her to the custody of the Marshal until further order. Now the witness is on the way to this city a prisoner.

We refrain from commenting to any extent on this case at present preferring to await developments, but we may have something to say regarding it shortly.
