BRYAN DISCUSSES RAILWAY PROBLEM

At the Present Time Government Ownership is Not An Issue.

IS THE ULTIMATE SOLUTION.

Regulation Must be Tried Under the Most Favorable Circumstances Before More Radical Remedy.

Lincoln, Neb., July 20 .- In a statement made today by William J. Bryan under the heading, "Covernment Ownership Not an Issue," Mr. Bryan

"Government ownership is not an Immediate issue. A large majority of the people still hope for effective reguthe people still hope for effective regu-lation. While they so hope they will not consider ownership. While many pemocrats believe, and Mr. Bryan is one of them, that public ownership of railroads is the ultimate solution of the problem, still those who believe that the public will finally in self-defense be driven to ownership, realize that regu-lation must be tried under the most fa-vorable cricumstance before the masses will be ready to try a more driven to ownership, realize that regulation must be tried under the most favorable cricumstanes before the masses will be ready to try a more radical remedy.

"Regulation cannot be sufficiently tried within the next year. There is no desire anywhere to make government ownership an issue in 1908. Mr. Bryan fully agrees with those who believe that it would be unwise to turn attention from regulation on which the people are ready to act, to government ownership, upon which the people are not ready to act, to inject the government ownership question into the next campaign would simply give representatives of the railroads a chance to dodge the issue and deceive the public. "So far the railroads have been successful in preventing effective federal regulation, and state regulation has as a rule been restrained by the United States courts. It is about 20 years since the interstate commerce commission was created. It required about 10 years for the courts to find out that the powers conferred were insufficient.

since the interstate commerce commission was created. It required about 10 years for the courts to find out that the powers conferred were insufficient and then it took about 10 years to secure an amendment. The railroads fought the amendment at every step and the president was finally forced to compromise with the railroad Republicans in the sciate in order to secure their support. Even that amendment, secured with tremendous effort, falls short of what it should be. It alms to stop passes and rebates. The railroads profit pecuniarily by both the stoppage of rebates and the prohibition of passes, but extortionate rates still exist. State legislation for the reduction of rates has resulted in an agitation which will deprive the state of authority and centralize all rate legislation in Congress.

"The Democratic party must meet the issue presented; it must resist the exercise of federal power for the regulation of interstate commerce and it must insist upon the exercise of state authority for the exercise of state authority for the exercise of state authority for the exercise of all of the power vested in the state. This question has grown in importance during the past year and its prominence will be increased if any effort is made to impair state rights. The Republican party is as impotent to regulate the railroads as it is to exterminate the trust and reform the tairff.

"The Democratic party has in three national conventions demanded reforms, while the Republican platforms have been silent on the subject. The resident has partially adopted the Democratic view on this subject, but so far the Republican leaders have resolutely opposed it. The president is helping to educate the people up to the need of railroad regulation, but his party, under its present leadership, is nowerless to accomplish this or any important reform. If the Democratic party will clearly and unequivocally demand, first, the asceptaining of the value of all the railroads; second, the preventing of over-capitalization, and whird, the reducti

CREED FOR CHRISTENDOM.

Chicago, July 22.—Abbe Felix Klein, instructor in literature in the Catholic institute at Paris and one of the leading churchmen of Europe, delivered his first address in America yesterday, speaking to 2.000 persons at the U4-versity of Chicago. The subject of his sermon was "The Common Creed of Christendom."

"We who are Christians can come together whatever the differences exist, and so our friendship is not based upon a misunderstanding. But we all know that these divergencies of view do not prevent us from agreeing on many common points.

"We know that we have the same holy scripture and that our moral system, our ethics is equally based on the decalogue and the gospel. And above all, we know we can recite them together, with one heart and one voice, the apostles' creed, the sublime and simple summary of Christian doctrine.

"What a joy it is in spite of so much lamentable separation, for us to be able to make our common profession of faith in the same terms as did our fathers is centuries ago. Not only stronger, but more desirable, has been this creed of ours than the Roman empire.

"The world has been overrun in every direction by the Christian faith. But glorious as have been its conquests, its greatest glory lies in itself. All our dogmas lead up to the one single affirmation and the one immense phenomenon of which they are separately only phases or aspects. This phenomenon consists in the participation of the world with the life of God."
