

BREVITIES.

A popular vessel—Courtship.
In the newest style of boat the toes are pointed and curve upward, elongated like Chinese slippers.

Father Cleveland, of Boston, is said to be the oldest minister in the United States. His age is 93 years.

Reverdy Johnson carried a musket as a private soldier in the battle of Bladensburg.

How to take the census of the children of a neighborhood—Employ an organ grinder for five minutes.

Queen Victoria has granted a pension of £100 to Mrs S. C. Hall in consideration of her long and useful literary services.

Mr Laird was greeted during a recent visit to the Liverpool Exchange with hootings, and cries of "What about the Alabama?"

Lord Napier will reach Bombay, a peer and a world-renowned general, less than a year after he left it a comparatively obscure officer.

The small-pox which recently threatened to become an epidemic in Milwaukee, has, through the efforts of the Board of Health, almost entirely disappeared.

We have ever found that blacksmiths are more or less given to vice. Carpenters, for the most part, speak plainly, but they will chisel when they get a chance. Not unfrequently they are sly, and often annoy one with their sly ways.

Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, at their annual meeting, elected three trustees, in compliance with a proposition of Mr. Beecher. Their record for the year is good: $50,000 for pew rent; $10,000 for benevolent objects; $60,000 for a new mission building.

Josh Billings writes to a Tennessee lecture committee that the price of his lecture on "Milk" was ninety dollars and forty cents. He added that he had, in some instances, been careless enough to throw off the ninety dollars, but the forty cents he must have to maintain his reputation.

A letter-writer in the South says you cannot go on a cotton plantation in Alabama now without hearing the command, "Senator, stand right smart to your cotton picking; Judge, you go and bring my horse round;" or, "Colonel, have a shoe put on that mule right along."

Verdi proposes that, in honor of Rossini's memory, the most distinguished Italian composers, with Mercadante at their head, should unite in composing a Requiem Mass to be executed on the 13th of November, 1869, that day being the anniversary of Rossini's birthday.

A statue of James Watt, whose name is so renowned in connection with the development of steam as a motive power, has been erected in Birmingham. This statue, which is eighteen feet three inches in height, is the work of Alexander Munro, of London, and is executed in Italian marble.

Park Street Congregational Church, in Boston, has a remarkable history. Since its organization, nearly sixty years ago, no fewer than 36,000 have been connected with it, and two hundred who became foreign missionaries received religious instructions from its pulpit. Among its pastors were the late Drs. Beecher, Dwight, Linsley, and other distinguished names.

The Rev. Rufus Ellis, pastor of a Unitarian Church in Charlestown, Mass., makes this explanation of his withdrawal from the Unitarian Conference, "I can not consent to apologize, even as often as once in two years, for being a believer in Christ, and I can not deal with Christianity as I would with any mere dogma or form, by leaving it out of the covenant as a non-essential."

A distinguished visitor once entered the counting room of the late Baron Rothschild, who was very much engaged. Without looking up, he said, "Take a chair and be seated." The gentleman addressed, feeling aggrieved at such a reception, remarked, "You did not, perhaps, hear my name; I am the Count—." "Oh, yes," replied the banker; "take two chairs, if you please."

Eckman, the French novelist, is thin and pale, with light hair. He wears spectacles, and is a great musician, besides smoking ten cents worth of tobacco every day. Chastrian, his associate, is a short, heavy set, broad backed individual, with a wide forehead, thick, straight, black hair, a big mouth, and a bushy moustache. They live to themselves, and are scarcely ever seen in society.

A cowardly fellow—a "gent"—looming for the enchantment of servant girls, kicked a newsboy the other day for pestering him to buy an evening paper. The lad's revenge was ingenious and complete. He waited till another boy accosted "the gent," and then shouted, in the hearing of all bystanders, "It's no use to try him, Jim; he can't read."

"Mr. Timothy," said a young lady who had been showing off her wit at the expense of a dangle, "you remind me of a barometer that is filled with nothing in the upper story."

"Divine & line," replied the adorer, "in thanking you for that compliment let me remind you that you occupy the upper story completely."

A subscriber for the Rochester Democrat, marvelling at the continued disappearance of his paper, stationed himself where he could witness how it got beyond his door if the carrier left it, and was not a little edified to observe his cat demurely seize it and cautiously carry it behind a refrigerator, where, upon looking, he discovered seven or eight missing numbers, folded as when left by the boy.
