The party leaving it with Mr. W. H. Hooper, at that gentleman's residence, for Mrs. C. Harrocks. Read the advt.

Millinery Goods.—Mrs. Burrows calls the attention of the ladies to her magnificent stock of feathers, plumes, ribbons, beaver and plush hats, trimmed and untrimmed; also a general assortment of milliner's trimmings, suitable for all classes and calculated to please the most fastidious. Her goods have been selected with care, and are being sold at low prices. Read her advt. in special business column.

The Sixty-Seventh.—To-day, December 5th, is the 67th anniversary of the birthday of Brother George Goddard. The event is being celebrated in a manner in keeping with his characteristics. In place of having the usual family gathering he invited all the residents of the Thirtieth Ward over the age of 70 years to assemble at his residence and have a good time. The meeting convened at 3 o'clock and will continue to a late hour in the evening. President Taylor is among the guests.

We congratulate Brother George, with him many auspicious returns of the day, and a career of continued usefulness.

HORRIBLE ACCIDENT.—Fragments of human remains found on the C. P. track, near Ogden.

When the express train arrived from the west this morning, the people were horrified by the report of the train men of a fearful fatal occurrence on the C. P. railroad. On reaching Chase's Crossing, a few miles west of Ogden, they saw on the track the head of a human being.

A little further on in that direction they observed a limb—and still nearer here they saw legs, arms, head and intestines scattered along the track for a considerable distance.

To what unfortunate person the remains belonged they do not know, neither had they any means whatever of ascertaining. It is supposed, however, that a tramp had crept upon the brakes of one of the cars to steal a ride on the No. 8 west-bound train last night; that he had lost his grip, fell under the wheels, and that the crushing weight of the train had passed over him, literally cutting him to pieces and scattering his remains along the line.

On the arrival of the train and the report of the train men on the subject, a message was at once sent to the coroner, the result of whose inquest into the cause of his death, his name, who he is, and other interesting particulars have not yet reached us.—Ogden Herald, Monday.

DESERET HOSPITAL.—A WORTHY AND USEFUL INSTITUTION.

This institution, which was established July 15, 1882, is now supplying a long felt need of the people, and to all that claim to be a home for the sick and injured. It is centrally and pleasantly located with plenty of fresh air and a good water supply. The set of surgical and gynecological instruments is a complete one, the best that could be obtained, while a pharmaceutical department connected with the hospital furnishes the necessary drug supply.

The head nurse is a woman of skill and experience, having served five years in two of the largest hospitals in Stockholm. We also have an efficient night nurse who has served in one of the same hospitals two years and a half. These nurses speak the English as well as their native language.

The visiting surgeons' hours are between 11 o'clock a. m. and 1 o'clock p. m. Those wishing to consult with Dr. W. F. Anderson should visit the Hospital during the above hours.

The average monthly attendance of patients since the organization of the hospital has been from twelve to twenty. Since November last the medical rates have been reduced. In specially complicated cases additional charges are made. Specially low rates can be made for indigent parties residing in the hospital. Wards, by consulting with Dr. Mattie Paul Hughes, the house surgeon.

The wards are substantially and comfortably furnished, with all necessary and other suitable conveniences, and the hospital will now accommodate from thirty to thirty-five patients.

E. B. SMITH, President.
J. B. WILKS, Secretary.
In behalf of the executive board.

ARIZONA ELECTION.

LIVELY ACCOUNT OF SOME CIRCUMSTANCES AT ST. JOHNS.

Our rabby St. Johns, Apache County, Arizona, correspondent, "Amram," has furnished the following, under date of Nov. 3d:

Since last writing our election has come. It is stated that in Winslow, where less than 20 names were registered, they voted over 100 persons.

There is some talk of a contest case being brought before Judge French. On election day the morning was clear and fine in St. Johns, and seemed to be in one of her pleasant moods, and your correspondent wended his way, with others, to the polls to vote the "Democratic ticket."

It took some little time for the judges to organize, and by this time quite a number of "Mormons" and Mexicans were assembled within ten feet of the polls.

By the window sat Mr. Gonzales, a rather short, stout young-looking Mexican, who represented the "People's Party." Also Mr. Morris Barba, a rather pale, good-looking Jew, who represented the "Democrats."

The polls being declared open, Mr. P. Romney offered his vote and was promptly challenged by the eloquent Mr. Gonzales, on the grounds of polygamy.

Mr. Romney stated that he was ready to take the challenge, and the figure came on. The path was administered and the judges ruled out the challenge.

Then commenced a rather noisy scene, as each party was eager to get their votes toward the polls. Still for all that the day passed off peacefully, and towards evening nature seemed to throw her smiling countenance, and sent a cloud of dust over the mixed group surrounding the polls.

About 12 o'clock p. m. the votes were all counted, and the People's Party having about four votes majority. When the announcement was made, our good natured opponent, Gonzales made a "roaring little speech," and immediately a rattling of firearms commenced outside, that reminded one of "Bedlam let loose."

However, this is the custom of the country in showing joy, as well as shooting "devil's away" when a person is sick among the Mexicans.

JUDGE PORTER.

The day before election, Judge Porter arrived in town with a letter of instruction to Bishop Udall from Judge French. In the evening he gave vent to his eloquent sentiments, and at the close of a concert in the "Mormon" schoolhouse again spoke and told of deeds of glory in future in which he was to figure conspicuously.

During the day of election he was all smiles, his fat chin was dimpled with smiles, smiles, O, he was so nice. If the "Mormons" would vote for him, why he would use his mighty influence to make the Edmunds bill non-effective in Arizona.

Those smiles continued (I believe he can beat Colfax in smiling) until the votes were all counted, then those "Adonis" like features began to contract; the face became red. The breath, well—probably not, but he acted like it. It turned in all his wrath, and in stentorian tones, whispered, no, and loudly said these words to Bishop Udall: "Bishop, not a—d—d Mormon has voted for me, and I've been their friend, I've helped the Mormons in this Territory, but now I open the vials of my wrath upon your people. They shall suffer from the effects of my influence."

This and more he said, until Sheriff Stover was compelled to tell him to cease his noise, or he would have to leave the room. The Bishop treated him with silent contempt.

Not content with this scene, the next morning Judge Porter again insulted Bishop Udall in the street, repeating his vile threats, and wound up his vile abuse by saying, "Now, Bishop, I will accept any challenge you may choose to send in order to settle our difficulty." The Bishop quietly said, "We don't settle our difficulties in that way," and walked away, leaving the raving, heated man alone in his contemptible position.

Mr. Editor, this picture is not overdrawn, and in our opinion it will be a lasting disgrace for such a man to be sent to Congress. It is to be hoped his own party will discard him. Many of them are already disgusted with his conduct at St. Johns.

With one or two exceptions, the people's nominees have been elected, unless the courts throw out some of the precincts, such as Winslow.

A Practical Exhibition.—The practical exhibition of the principles of bookkeeping, given by Dwight S. Dow and his pupils, at the Theatre last night, was largely attended and quite interesting. Mr. Dow has a clear, rapid and comprehensive method of communicating information upon the science of accounts.

The exercises last evening consisted of lucid explanations by the lecturer and practical illustrations upon the blackboard. Mr. Dow asking the pupils who were seated on chairs upon the stage, the nature of entries required in case of certain varied transactions, they giving the answers in chorus. The class showed by the promptness and correctness of their answers that the principles involved were firmly imbedded in their minds.

Information regarding the science of accounts is by Mr. Dow's efforts, being widely diffused among the young men of this city. A community of professional bookkeepers would be a calamity instead of a benefit, but the ability to keep accounts does not involve the necessity of following that branch of business as a pursuit of life, but the knowledge, whether put to practical use as a profession or not, is a handy thing to have. Even the mere exercise of the mind in that department is invigorating, and opens it to new fields. But every man, whatever his profession or business can, to some extent, make a practical application of the ability to keep accounts. Men who have direct methods of imparting useful information are a benefit anywhere.

A MODEL THEATRICAL HALL.

SPRINGVILLE COMING TO THE FRONT IN THEATRICAL MATTERS.

The good people of Springville have built the finest theatrical hall in Utah, outside of Salt Lake City. Those who have had charge of its construction must have obtained information from the very best sources. It has an excellent auditorium, thirty-five feet wide by about sixty feet long, the floor having a gradual ascent from the stage to the main entrance. The stage is fifty-one feet wide, with an opening nearly the full width of the hall, thus bringing the performance before the entire front of the audience. In fact it is a genuine opera house stage in a theatrical hall. The extent of the stage from the footlights to the back is twenty-five feet, besides dressing and other rooms in its rear. The height of the stage from the floor to the rigging apparatus is twenty-two feet. The entrances to the building are all contrived after the most improved plans for easy and rapid exit, in case of fire, opening outwardly.

Not only is it the intention to have this model theatrical hall up to the times in point of architectural construction, but the scenery is to be of the very best description. With this object in view Mr. D. C. Johnson, who takes a leading part in the management has secured the services of Mr. H. C. Tryon and Mr. Alfred Lamborne. The latter, accompanied by Mr. Spencer Tryon—Mr. H. C. Tryon's assistant—left for Springville to-day, to begin the work, and Mr. Tryon will follow in a few days. The institution will have thirteen scenes complete, with slides, wings, etc., and an appropriate drop curtain. The fact that Messrs. Tryon and Lamborne will do the painting is a guaranty that the scenes will be of the most excellent description.

Deseret Sunday School Meeting. The regular monthly meeting of the Deseret Sunday School Union was held in the Assembly Hall last evening, presided over by Assistant Superintendent George Goddard.

Sugar House and Farmer's Wards and all the city Sunday Schools were represented, except the Fourth. Superintendent Wm. Naylor reported the Sunday School of the 13th Ward in a very satisfactory condition—financially as well as spiritually—nearly one hundred dollars being now in the treasury, shortly to be distributed in prizes to the children as rewards of merit.

Sunday School exercises much the same as in other schools, with the exception that the Sacrament is not administered to the children.

Elder Andrew Jensen followed with a most interesting historical address on the introduction and promulgation of the Gospel in Denmark, Norway and Sweden, which was listened to with marked attention by all present. Space will not permit even an epitomized report of this interesting lecture, which should be reported and published in full to be appreciated.

A most pleasing feature of the exercises was a musical rendition from Aubrey's young but excellent variety band which was justly applauded for its merit.

Comptroller Joseph E. Taylor depicted a few excellent remarks on the young, counseling a strict observance of the counsel of Priest Young in regard to round dances, and hoped the young men and women would not beg for permission the Bishops to give license to break that counsel.

Miss Agnes Olsen next followed with a song, which was excellently rendered.

Supr. Goddard announced that the Sunday School Brass Band composed of young men who observed the Word of Wisdom, already had preliminary organization, and steps were being taken to raise means for procuring the instruments, $100 being supplied from the treasury of the Sunday School Union for that purpose.

Adjourned till the second Monday in January, 1883.

Benediction by Bishop Atwood. The excellent music rendered on the occasion was given by the Thirtieth Ward Sunday School.

The Fourteenth Ward Sunday School is requested to furnish the music and choir, at the next meeting of the Union. J. H. P.

Why Not?—The temperate and sensible allusion to the Territories made by President Arthur, in his message, meets with sore displeasure from the rabid wing of the so-called "Liberals" of this locality. It has been suggested that the source from which Governor Murray draws his inspiration should be nudged to prompt him to remove the President and appoint some man with a smaller conscience and more contracted views of statesmanship. The Governor and his aids are not overburdened with modesty; they are in the wholesale official removal and appointment business, and why shouldn't their power and policy be felt as far as this great Republic extends? They are great men; very great; at least we have frequently heard them say so themselves. They make that announcement in all their public speeches, and they often speak. Although they appear to be isolated in the view of their own greatness, yet they continue to assert it, just as if other people held the same opinion.
