THEATRE.

Do not forget the great play of "Hilary" tonight at the Theatre, which was written especially for Mr. Murphy, the comedian, who has made it a great success by his capital delineation of Dutch and Irish peculiarities. He appears tonight in all his drollery, with dances, comic songs, etc., and all who can enjoy a funny time had better go to the Theatre and see him and his specialty. "Hilary" has been on the occasion will consist of the best of the company, a full orchestra, and it is to be hoped, a splendid house.

RETURNED.

We had a pleasant visit this morning from Brother H. J. Faust, who, on Saturday evening, reached his home in this city, after a very pleasant trip to and from Europe. Elder Faust, who has been the object of the trip, being to improve the health of his wife, who, at the time of their departure, was very ill, and that object, we are gratified to learn, has been completely answered, Mrs. Faust being now well and hearty. During their absence they have been busy traveling and sight-seeing. They went direct to England, visited the metropolis, and saw many of the noted sights, scenes, and cities. After leaving for the continent they visited France, Belgium, Switzerland, Germany and Prussia. In Prussia, Bro. Faust's native country, he found many reminiscences of his home, and never seen before, and others, never since he was a small boy; and their meeting, reunion and association in fatherland was very agreeable to all. During their peregrinations our travelers visited Baden-Baden, so famed for its waters and general health, also Strasbourg, noted for its cathedral and clock, and for General Ullrich's defense of it against the Prussians. While in Belgium was traversed by them; the Rhine and its famous castles were also inspected; Lyons, Marseilles and other large cities in the south of France were visited, besides many of the battle fields of the late war, and Versailles, Paris, etc. At Versailles they saw forty thousand Communist prisoners, most of whom were within walls, but as the prison accommodation was not sufficient some of those considered least culpable were confined in tents. During their absence they have traveled fifteen thousand miles, and although their trip has been unusually interesting, they have held many of the grandest sights of Europe, they have seen nothing which, in their estimation, is everything that makes life enjoyable, can be compared with Utah's peaceful valley, and gladness and pleasure inseparable were experienced by them on again reaching their mountain home.

SAVING MESSAGE.

The time at meeting yesterday morning was occupied by Elder Wilford Woodruff and Joseph F. Smith. In the afternoon, a lengthy and very interesting discourse was delivered by Elder Wilford Woodruff.

ACCIDENT AT OGDEN.

The Junction, of Saturday last, has the following:

LAST THURSDAY MORNING.

Joseph Parry, Jr., and John Taylor, employed by Mr. D. C. Nelson, of the Ogden Livery Stables, went to the R. R. Depot to meet a visiting train. While coming down the Y from the U. P. to the U. C. track, the Utah Central was being backed up to the freight warehouse. Not seeing this, the young men turned to cross the track, and had no sooner reached it, than the rear car dashed on the team, killing one of the horses and slightly injuring the other, which fortunately broke away, and seriously damaged the carriage. Parry and Taylor leaped in time to save themselves from injury. The car was knocked from the track. Mr. Nelson and others, who saw the danger the horses were in, tried to stop them, but the warning was not heard.

RECENTLY WITH A GRIEVOUS.

Grizzly bears are not noted for their social or amiable tendencies, and the bravest and hardiest mountaineers would a little rather not be compelled to make with one when alone, and attack him single handed. "A. C.," our correspondent at Brigham City, sends us the particulars of an adventure or rather encounter with a bear, by a settler of Cache Valley, in Wallville canyon on the evening of the 17th inst., which, for amiability of character, and its harmless termination is probably unequalled. The following is the story, as told on the day following, by the narrator and hero of the adventure:

"Last night as I was walking alongside of my team through the canyon, between here, Brigham City, and Cache Valley I was, at some time, under the impression that a man on horseback was riding ahead of my team, and so close, as to sometimes hinder my horses from moving as fast as I wanted them to. At last it came to a sudden stop, the horses being unable to advance over the supposed horse and rider. I advanced toward the front of the team and saw a grizzly bear close to my feet, taking a calm view of me and my team. I was a little scared, for the first time in my life I quickly cocked my revolver, which had been about in my waist, and I went into the wagon and watched him closely, but it was very dark, and a good aim in any event was not possible. After I had driven ahead a little, I saw the grizzly bear walking slowly before the horses. I spoke to him and he came and commanded me to stop, and a very loud voice, while my team stood still again, which made him walk about one and a half rods to one side of the road, where he sat himself, taking a good look at us, as if to say, 'you can't scare me.' I drove on again, holding my pistol in one hand, and the grizzly bear in the other. The bear kept close by the side of the wagon, and after a little while was in the road again before the horses. I turned a little and saw him, by letting the horses trot lively, and I saw him more of him till he traveled a mile, and arrived at my old camping place, where I unhitched the horses, and saw that my animals, when I was with my companion right before me again. I hitched up my horses again and rode for Copenhagen, where I arrived at 11 o'clock."

Our correspondent says: "bears seem to be abundant this season, and men should be well armed, and not travel alone. We are realizing a good harvest of grain here, and our cornfields and vegetable patches look desirable and thick, covered by the last swarms of locusts, whose eggs seem to cover all the ground around us."

Downs. A letter sent to Hon. Wilford Woodruff, dated Wallville, Cache Co., says that Alma Ammon Kingston came to his death on the 12th of July, by drowning, he having returned the same day from a thirty-one days' trip north. He was 19 years, 3 months and 11 days old. He was followed to the grave by one hundred wagons and carriages containing citizens, besides a large number on foot.

NEW REFORM.

The introduction of Soda Water and Sarsaparilla, by Day & Co., has done more in the way of a Temperance Reform than all the lectures that have been delivered in the country. The natural condition of man is a thirsty one, and it has long been an established fact that water will not quench thirst. The question then arises, can we find a substitute as harmless in its effects, and more delicious in taste than anything yet discovered? We find it in Day & Co.'s Soda and Sarsaparilla. If every one would sign the Pledge and drink nothing but this Celebrated Beverage, much degradation, misery, shame and crime would be prevented in the world. If any one doubts the truth of our remarks let them step into the first place they come to and try it. It will speak for itself.
