SUBSCRIPTION FOR THE FAM-ILIES OF THE TENNESSEE MARTYRS.

To the Presidents of Stakes, Bishops and the Members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Baints. DEAR BRETHREN:

As Memorial Services have been hald in the different Stakes out of respect for our martyred brethren, suggestions have been made about a subscription to assist the families of the deceased. If this should meet the feelings of the Saints, I, as Trustee in Trust, will place One Hundred Dollars as a commencement for a fund of that | feelings toward the Latter-day Saints'

ARE YOU REGISTERED?

THOSE who intend to register so that they can vote at the November election for Delegate to Congress, should find out who is the deputy registration officer for the precinct in which they reside, and call on him some time during the week ending September 18th and get their names on the registry list. Voters who have moved from one precinct to another since the last election or since the last revision of the registration lists, as well as persons who have been recently naturalized, and citizens, male and female, who have recently reached the age of ironical, and there appears to be no twenty-one years, should attend to this duty so that they may be qualified to vote. All citizens who are entitled by law to vote at a general election shouldsee that their names are on the registration lists for the November election. This is a necessary and important duty. THERE is likely to be a lively time 884. Singiser, the present Delegate, desires re-election and has been laying the wires to secure the Republican tion. But he has proved himself so very near to nothing that it is quite unlikely he swill succeed at the Convention and almost certain that he would be overwhelmingly defeated if he could succeed by any of his tricky tactics in getting nominated. He has had his run of official life, and is about as near political death as he can be without being actually defunct.

He is opposed on the Republican side by W. S. Taylor, a bona side resident of Idaho, which Mr. Singiser is not in its arouses 'against them the bitter feelproper sense, and expects to gain the support of all the northern part of the AN IMPORTANT ENTERPRISE Territory, because he is an advocate of office for none but actual residents and of the annexation scheme. EASTERN papers are complitining of the increase of drinking habits among the weaker sex of the humbler class but is most noticeable in so-called but is most noticeable in so-called preparatory steps toward the coloni-"ladies." The Boston Ster claims that sation of the Holy Land by the Hebrew this is more prevalent in New York race, in fulfilment of the predictions o than at "the hub," but admits that at their ancient prophets regarding their great hotels one cannot enter the dining hall without seeing ladies with a bottle of wine before them. That paper confines its condemnation of this abit among ladies to their drinking in public, on the principle, no doubt, that seems to govern in other matters in society—that it is not pasticularly wrong unless it is found out.

In this connection the story is told by the Ster of a young married lady of connection with the grand charity balls and the flower parties at Delmonico's, who made a wager with a young bachelor of the Union League who was staying at the same hotel, one not far from the Ocean Pier, that she should "drink him down." The Star says the lady is a fline-looking blonde, and, attired in an evening dress of white brocade, ap-peared on the scene of the refined coupeared on the scene of the refined cou-test, where Mr. W. awaited her, also in evening costume. The champagne was ordered, and, according to the waiters, "the fun began." It ended by the gentleman being assisted from the room before his third bottle could be uncorked, while the lady, with spark-ling eyes and flushed cheeks, drank his health in the first glass from her third bottle, and swept from the table with

It will be a sad day for the United States when the drinking habit becomes common among the women, for it will corrupt the very fountains of life and sap the foundations of poses. In the navy yard at Brooklyn are the Java and Colossus, They are great war vessels, but they never dipped the wave. They were built during the war, but were never quite finished, and have stood on the ways ever since. The Java was a great double-turreted monitor. Two millions and a half were spent on her. Her machinery was put to place in 1864, and the vessel could have been launched in three weeks. She never was stirred. The machinery was left there rusting and spoiling for twenty years. The Java, a fast steam cruiser, cost a million and a half. The Brooklyn, another unfin-ished war ship, stands close by. These three hulks, after rotting to pieces, are to be broken up and sold. It seems a scandal to say it, although everybody recognizes the disgraceful fact. A prominent municipal officer in New York, in a recen Investigation, did not hesitate to admit that his place had cost him just so many thousand dollars, and that it was a very profitable investment for him. What a man buys and pays for is not properly a gift."
