DENVER STUDENTS WIN THE DEBATE.

Was Fast and Furious, but Colorado Boys Showed General Superiority.

THE VERDICT WAS UNANIMOUS.

Question Discussed Was, "Resolved That the Monroe Doctrine Should Be Abolished."

Superiority in delivery and in general work upon the platform won for Denver university last night, the first inter-collegiate debate with the University of Utah. The verdict was the result of independent voting by the judges before consultation, and was unanimous in awarding first place to the visiting team. All three judges likewise agreed in placing the argumentation of the local boys on a par with that of the visitors, but gave an additional 16 per cent to the visitors for their superiority in the more finished points of delivery, and skill in handling material.

The Salt Lake Theater held a fair-sized audience of students, alumni, and friends of the University, who listened to the debate with interest, and who seemed to be in sympathy with the sentiments of the judges. The visitors received the decision with good grace and were hearty in their congratulation of the victors after it was over. A noticeable feature was the absence of partisanship in the cheering. Yell leaders, students, and their friends, and of hukky voices, were rendered quiet by the Denver speakers with as much vigor as they did the home talent, and even disregarded the request of the chairman not to applaud, by heartily cheering for Wayne C. Williams during his final speech which was the most brilliant effort of the evening, and attested all question as to where the victory belonged.

Williams proved himself a wonderful speaker, clear, forceful and persuasive to a high degree. He won instant favor with the audience in his first effort, and his marked earnestness the most loyal supporters of the opposition turned to him camp.
