than the other methods in force, which the New York World has sense enough to disapprove because it sees their futility.

We have noticed in several agricultural papers recently the recommendation of noted horticulturists to fruit-growers to girdle the trees for the purpose of increasing their bearing qualities. Go a-head with your girding. This "Mormon" tree, however, is not of the Upas variety; it is rather of the species of the tree of life. And just as sure as you girdle it, or water it with the blood of that the Territorial law-as well as the Saints, or the tears of the women and children whose homes anti-"Mormon" fanatics are endeavoring "Mormon" who falls to do this vio to make desolate, the tree, inlates the obligations of his religion, stead of "dying out," will wax but there is no territorial law on the stronger and stronger, spreading forth its thrifty boughs in all direcsubject. This ought to be properly understood. It is urged as the only ob tions, and bearing fruit to the honor ection to the admission of Utah into and glory of God and the amazethe Union as a State, that it would ment of all girdlers and advocates of violence. regulated by secular law. THE following communication with the atove heading appears in The Hour, a New York weekly magazine of good repute. We copy it as evidence of a thoughtful feeling on the subject, which is increasing in the country as the reaction from the recent passionate and unreasoning agitation progresses:

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

POLYGAMY IN A NEW ASPECT. To the Editor of the Hour.

Sir-The World has, I think, done good service in publishing the let-ters of Mr. Robinson from Utab, in ters of Mr. Bobinson from Utab, in the which Mormonism and polygamy are discussed temperately and with a blas parhaps toward the unpopular side of the question. It is a wise provision of the law which allows the even the most desperate criminal to have his case presented to the jury to his own chosen counsel. There may be two aldes to every question which affects the social interests of the mankind, and any institution which has been held in honor by millions of human beings and has had the sanctions of powerful religious organizations much have some reason for its existence. The two great monotheles of the custom of one man having seven and the Jewish - have countenanced the custom of one man having sov-eral wives, and both the Koran and the Bible expressly sanction this patriarchial institution, while not a text in either can be tortured so as to approve only monogamic alii-

The relation of the sexes is des-tined to pass through all possible variations. This is characteristic of variations. This is characteristic of every institution created by the ar-gencies of the life of man on this planet. The race has tried and is trying every possible scheme of gov-erament, from demogracy to auto-oracy, from the government of eve-rybody to the absolute control of one person. And so with the lating characteristic by all who have commented upon the recent publication of the great Frenchwoman's private letters. We live in revolutionary, times, when the most sacred tenets of religion have been attacked and when social customs are arraigned for criticism. The last word has not been spoken even on marriage, and scientific in vestigation may yet give us a stand-ard as much superior to monogamy as the latter is to polygamy or to polygandry. The longs and heart were in a normal condition, except a slight ruffling of the sorta in the vicinity of the heart. The neck was not dislocat-ed as at first supposed, but there ed as at first supposed, but there was a rupture of the sterno cleido mastold muscle, on both sides, as well as of the pysid membrane. It follows therefore that death resulted from suffocation, not dislocation would be "a polygamous State," etc. This is because many persons, like the writer of the article in the Hour are under the impression that of the spinal vertebre. Those Latter-day Saints who practise the Church doctrine of plurality of wives act entirely under religious motives, reg-ulations and ordinances. They seek no sanction of secular law. The objection, there-fore—the only one entitled to con-sideration—against Utah's state-hooi is entirely without foundation.
