HOW HE FOOLED THE POLICE.

Ban a Gambling Joint in Connection With Horse Racing for a Number of Years.

Jack Wren, whose Australian champion Bill Squires, is on his way to the coast in quest of the puglistic championship of the world, began life on Johnson street, Collingwood, as a hair dresser and tobaconist. Collingwood is a suburb of Melbourne, 15 minutes' journey from the city by cable car. At that time, perhaps 15 years ago, the totalizator system of bookmaking was rampant, and a by word mong good sports, who were more or less beaten out of their money every time if not by the horse then by the tote time if not by the horse then by the tote proprietor. Wren commenced in a small way, se-cretiy and sliently among his friends-and then word began to go round that an 'honest tote' was running out at Col-lingwood. His business grew apace. His gain was always 10 per cent of the gross receipts, the balance was pooled and di-vided between first, second and third horses in ratio proportions. Wren rose above his competitors in that when holding his clients' money the temp-tation to get away with the whole amount (sometimes $5.600) instead of taking his 10 per cent, never assailed him. It was a matter of very few months when the "to-bacconist and hairdresser" business was one in mame only and later it ended its reathery existence entirely for its pur-pose from the beginning was a blind to the police and plan-clothes detectives. PURCHASES LARGE PROPERTIES. PURCHASES LARGE PROPERTIES.

Wren's next move toward the perma-nent organization of the illegal totaliza-tor was one which attracted notice. He first bought the shop in which he had lo-cated and then set agents afoot to pur-chase the whole of those properties sur-rounding it. The deal was eventually successful and Jack Wren became the owner of an entire block of stores and tesement houses. The second basketball game between the Apollos and the Lehi team was play-ed at American Fork last evening and the Apollos got even with the boys from the sugar town by defeating them 31 to 30. The first game was captured by the Lehi team and caused considerable sur-prise among basketball fans. Some time during next week a third game will be played. The teams lined up as follows: Apollos, Lehi.

successful and Jack Wren became the owner of an entire block of stores and tenement houses. Preparations were then forwarded to-ward the construction of a police-proof totalizator, and the work was carried out quietly and without display. The mai neurance was on Johnston street, and through the premises of a woodyard. The owner of this one-time yard, which never carried above $2 worth of stock, was a pald employe of Wren's and clients of the "tote" had first to pass this man-before access could be gained. The plans, when completed, provided a large care-like structure in the center of the yards abutting on the middle of the block. The yards of the tenement houses and stores had been curtailed and the fences removed, thus giving a large open space in the center, in which the cage was erected. This cago was 100 feet in length and built of iron bars, with pas-sageways, connecting with the four streets. Men robed in black from head to foot and wearing masks and gloves were stationed within the cage to receive the best made. When money was handed in the amount bets made. When money was handed in the amount was entered against the horse on which the bet was made upon a large black-board inside the cage and visible to all. No word was ever spoken by the assist-ints. Silence reigned. Bettors received a licket bearing the amount paid in and the name of the horse. Telephone connec-ion declared the winner and placed horses and the winnings were immediately paid ut. ets made Carnes was very wild, passing 10 bata-men. Travels a Fast Mile. A most novel race was that which took place at the Auditorium rink last even-ing when Charley Wilkinson, champlon speed roller skater of the state, raced on roller skates against Diefenbucher on a bloyde. The event was witnessed by a large crowd which became greatly ex-cited as the race proceeded. The event was the first in the series of three and the racers covered a mile. The time made was the fastest of record here, the distance being covered in 1.55. Wilkinson took the lead on the start and maintained it until the end of the race. Diefenbacher was at a disadvantage in making the sharp turns but even in the straightaway the little champion held his own. The next two races will be a five-mile race against time for the world's record those who will try for the record are Earl La Mont and Fred Hamer.

Meet Demands. The rush of the shipping season in au-fomobile factories is now in full swing. Thousands of men are working day and night, making a superhuman effort to meet the great demand for motor cars. Many of the factories find themselves overrun with orders for immediate ship-ment, and for lack of ability to meet the demands placed upon them are losing or-ders. Others being more fortunate are able to cope with conditions, showing that their early claims for prompt ship-ment, have not been exagterated. This is the case with the H. H. Franklin Manu-facturing company, who are shipping sev-of which is the Type D. with a consider-able number of the 6-cylinder cars, sim-tiar in construction to the trans-continen-tal car and the Chicago-New York rec-ord-breaker. VICTORY OF STANDARD OIL.

Most persons who are afflicted with Contagious Blood Poison hesitate to go to a physician for several reasons. In the first place the expense is heavy, and they know that the inevitable treatment will be mercury and potash, strong minerals that act with disastrons effects on the delicate parts of the system, and which do not, after all, really cure the disease. What they want is a safe, reliable treatment that can be taken at home and a per-fect cure made of this loathsome disorder without unnecessary exposure or expense. Such a remedy is S. S. ... it is the only medicine that goes down to the very bottom of the trouble and drives out the last trace of the poison so that there are never any signs of its return.
