Stolen Stories Labeled "Special." The Tribune continues to steal and fake stories from the leading newspa-pers of the country, and label them as "specials." It had a batch of them yesterday. It had more of them today. It has them every day. Its grand and petit larceny is almed particularly at the New York papers. Time was, what-ever the Tribune was, when it would not steal. That time appears to be past. The case that the Deseret News cites today is only one of a great many that are constantly occurring. On Wednesday last the New York World published the them which follows, regarding Miss Alice Roosevelt. That paper reached here yesterday afternoon. This morning the item appeared in the Tribune with a "lifted" date labeled "Special to the Tribune." The public will form its own conclusions at this "marvelous enterprise." Here are the two stories.
