

A POTATO SORTER.

An Improved Potato Sorting Apparatus for Which Advantages Are Claimed.

HOMER'S POTATO SORTER.

I would have two wire covered cylinders, one within the other. The inside one should be of a larger mesh than that of the outside one. The potatoes would pass through the mesh of the inside one, and the outside one would catch the larger ones. The potatoes would pass through the mesh of the inside one, and the outside one would catch the larger ones. The potatoes would pass through the mesh of the inside one, and the outside one would catch the larger ones.

WIRE VIEW OF POTATO SORTER.

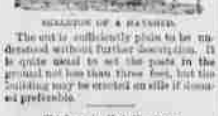

In the device I have attempted to describe, an arrangement might be made whereby one end of the cylinder could be raised or lowered, making it more or less steep. If the cylinder were raised, the potatoes would pass through the mesh of the inside one, and the outside one would catch the larger ones.

Vinegar Made from Honey.

Vinegar made of honey is pronounced better than any of the expensive foreign vinegars. It is made of pure honey in the following way: Take three pounds of honey, add eight gallons of water, and water, one pint of yeast. Mix well and let it ferment in an open vessel, covered with clean cloth. After it has fermented for about a week, add a quantity of six ounces of alcohol, six ounces of chemically pure acetic acid, one-half ounce of tartaric acid, and one-half ounce of sodium bicarbonate. In two gallons of water, add the vinegar, and let it stand for a week. It is then ready for use.

Masked for High Winds.

By the illustration here reproduced from The Pacific Farmer, is shown the structure of a haystack or barn roof, and of having against high winds.

Chicken in Hot Weather.

Attention has been recently called to the fact that chickens are very much exposed to the sun when the weather is hot. It is advised that chickens be kept in the shade, and that they be given plenty of water. It is also advised that chickens be kept in the shade, and that they be given plenty of water.

IMPROVING INDIAN COWS.

Methods for bettering the Very Good Results from the West Coast.

Early this year there was a great improvement in the quality of the cows in the West Coast. This was due to the fact that the cows were better fed, and that they were better cared for. This was due to the fact that the cows were better fed, and that they were better cared for.
